ELI STALCUP

This subject, who is one of the most industrious farmers and stock raisers in the vicinity of Worthington, Greene county, Indiana, never had the roaming disposition that characterized so many of the young men with whom he was reared, and he was preferred to test the advantages of his home county rather than risk his fortune elsewhere, having been born at Bloomfield, January 4, 1829, and he is now living one mile north of Worthington on a fine farm.

Mr. Stalcup's father was Stephen Stalcup and his mother's maiden name was Mary Underwood. Grandfather Eli Stalcup, a native of Tennessee, came to Indiana long before our subject was born, settling in Greene county on a farm, where he spent the remainder of his life. Stephen Stalcup was brought to Indiana when a young man, where he soon began farming and trading, having received his early education in Tennessee. Purchasing a good farm in Greene county he remained here during the rest of his life, rearing ten children, all grown to maturity, the subject of this sketch being the third in the order of birth. He attended subscription schools during a part of several years, but his father was in close circumstances and it was necessary for his son to help on the place when there was work to be done. The country school houses in those days were of the most primitive sort, being built of logs with puncheon seats and greased paper for window panes.

Eli was always called upon to take the lead in all kinds of heavy work about the place owing to his unusual physical strength, so he did the major part of the work in clearing the heavily timbered land where his father settled and with whom he remained until maturity, then he went to work as a farm hand, for which he received only seven dollars per month, but which he continued working at for a period of five years, during a part of which time he was employed on a shingle machine, being associated with his brother, Wesley. Then he bought a house and lot in Worthington, where he lived for several years, renting land and tilling it, in that neighborhood. In about three years he traded his town property in part payment on a farm, on which he has since lived. This farm at first consisted of eighty acres in the forest, upon which was a small log cabin, in which the subject lived for a short time, then building a log house, in which he lived for ten years, which he regards as the happiest days of his life. He cleared most of the land himself, hiring a few hands to assist. He has added to his original piece of ground until he now owns over four hundred acres, seventy-six acres of which are in the Eel River bottoms, which is fertilized by overflow, but the overflows are not of a nature to be of serious injury to the land or the crops on it, for it produces immense crops of corn. He raises corn crops on his upland fields, usually follows them by crops of oats and clover, but he uses no commercial fertilizers, being able to keep his land in good productive condition by other methods.

Mr. Stalcup feeds nearly all the corn the place produces to hogs and cattle, which he turns on the pastures in summer. He handles Poland China hogs exclusively, and he has the largest drove of sheep in the vicinity of Worthington. His farm is fenced mostly with woven and barbed wire. His house is commodious, convenient and in good repair, and his outbuildings are well kept.

Eli Stalcup was married the first time in 1853 to Margaret J. Brookbank, of Sullivan county, Indiana, and six children were born to this union, all of whom died young, except Sarah Ellen, who is the wife of Levi Swango, now living on a farm in Greene county. They have seven children, six of whom are living. Mr. Stalcup's first wife died August 18, 1868, and he was again married May 16, 1869, to Clara Terhune, a native of Ohio, but who was reared in Greene county, Indiana. Four children were born to this union, namely: Nettie, the wife of Grant Fulk, living in Greene county, to whom four children have been born; Harry E., who is married and has two children, lived on the home place, working with his father; Lena May, is single and lives at hoem; Elza B., is living at home working with his brother on the farm.

The subject of this sketch enlisted in Company A, One Hundred and Fifteenth Regiment, Indiana Volunteer Infantry, in 1863, and served eight months, but served two months over time, having been at Cumberland Gap when his time expired. His two cousing, Stephen and Calvin Stalcup, were also soldiers.

Eli Stalcup's wife has been twice married, first to James E. Terhune, who was a soldier in the Thirty-first Indiana Volunteer Infantry, having served with this regiment for four years, being in all the battles in which the regiment was engaged. He died one year after his marriage from a disease contracted in the line of duty as a soldier.

Both the subject and his wife were members of the Protestant Methodist church.

Mr. Stalcup is a loyal Republican, but he always desires the best men in any public office, not caring to support "political rings" of questionable standing. He was constable for two terms and has been supervisor, but was never a candidate for important public offices.

The subject is a plain, honest cotizen, who has won his success by hard work and habit of industry in whatever he undertook, and the record of his family is one that cannot be questioned.
