CLARENCE VIRGIL EDMONDSON

It is difficult to construct a brief account of the life of Uncle Clarence when his ninety years have been so busy. One can start with his birth on Lake Border Stock and Grain Farm at the edge of the village of La Clair, Ind. (known as Chizeltown) on the Hendricks-Morgan County Line, 1½ miles southwest of Hazelwood. He was the oldest of five sons born in this location to Robert and Della Edmondson.

Schooling was commenced at the old Richland building still standing 1¼ miles west of Hazelwood. Since all roads were unimproved and transportation was by "shank's ponies," the path to school was through the fields along an open ditch. From Richland, Uncle progressed to the Hazelwood 3-room building and in December, 1895 moved to the Clayton school after his father had completed a new house on the farm just south of the Clayton cemetery. The first year of high school was at Cartersburg which was reached by means of a horse hack. High school was then completed at Clayton and graduation at the end of two more years was held at the new Presbyterian Church located on this present site. Formal schooling was completed in 1904 after one year at the Plainfield Academy.

One of the important parts of Uncle Clarence's life began in 1903 when he joined the Clayton Presbyterian Church during Dedication Week of the then new building. Since that time, he has been an active participant in all the activities of his church and has served in many capacities. For several years when there was no resident minister he served his turn as acting moderator of the Session.

After graduation at the Plainfield Academy, perhaps the most important year of Uncle Clarence's life began. It was not unusual for a young man of his training and talents to look to school teaching as an occupation, but not many combined their first year of teaching with wooing and winning their mate. It all apparently came naturally. He obtained a job teaching in Brown Township north of Brownsburg and rented a room at the Hopkin's home near the school. On March 11, 1906, he married Mary Hopkins, the beautiful daughter of the household and went to housekeeping where he was born, at Chizeltown. Farmong became his occupation and school teaching was left behind.

The following December, a move was made to a new house built on present U.S. 40, known to most of us as the Turkey Farm. Several years and three children later, (Walter, Esther, and Helen) the family moved to the home south of the cemetery. Years later the final move was made to his present home in Clayton. A year ago last October he lost his partner of over sixty years.

The foregoing biography has done little to picture the man. Along with farming, he started an insurance business and traveled much of the state as an adjuster. He was an early employee of the Production Credit Association. One of his chief interests shared with Aunt Mary was travel throughout the United States. He has been keenly interested in the history of his family and has recorded many of these facts in writing. Historical tools and relics have occupied many of his days of recent years. It is a great privilege to be his nephew and to till the land of his birthplace.

THE EDMONDSON FAMILY

The name of Edmondson is of ancient Angle-Saxon origin and was first taken as a surname of the sons of one Edmond or Edmund. It appears in ancient records in various spellings, but that of Edmondson is most commonly found in America today.

Families of this name were residents at an early date in the English counties of York, Lancaster, and London. They were, for the most part, of the landed gentry and yeomanry of Great Britain. Among the earliest records of the names in England are those of Robertus and Johannes Edmondson of Yorkshire in 1370. Margaret and Leonard Edmondson of Lancastershire were reported in the early sixteenth century. The Yorkshire line was represented in the early sixteenth century by Lawrence Edmondson, who resided in the city of York. (Media Research Society, Washington, D. C.)

William Edmundson, the Irish Quaker, was born about the middle of the seventeenth century in Westmoreland County, England. He early embraced Quaker beliefs and is widely known as "The Quaker Evangelist" and "The Hammer of Ireland." He traveled to Ireland and also made trips to the American Colonies. His journal indicates his trips in America, and it is known he visited the Edmondsons here, both on the Eastern and Western shores of the Chesapeake Bay. According to the Edmondson family history in Jay County, Indiana, their family descended from William Edmundson who had settled on the West shore. William, in company with George Fox, made a visit there in 1672. (Maryland Historical Society Magazine, September 1955.)

William Edmundson had a brother John, who was a soldier in Cromwell's army and was sent to Ireland. While there, he became a Quaker and remained there until his death at the age of 96. William mentioned he had received a letter from John in 1707, and that he was 63 years old and in poor health. He was living in Timahoe, Queens County, Ireland, at that time.

William Edmundson had always spelled his name Edmondson, but when his journal was edited after his death, the spelling was changed, and his descendants followed this later spelling. (Maryland Historical Society Magazine, September 1955.)

Thomas Edmundson, with other members of his family, migrated from the West shore of Maryland about 1835 where they had lived for generations and settled near Pennville, Indiana. The town was named after their family friend and patron, William Penn. Thomas became the ancestor of the Edmundson clan now located in Jay County, Indiana. The ancestral home of Thomas Edmundson still stands near Belbee and is still occupied by an Edmundson. (Edmundson Family History, C. V. Edmundson, Bryant, Indiana.)

John Edmondson, also a Quaker, had already settled on the East shore of Maryland. When the other families settled on the West shore, this was evidence that they were not only friends, but relatives. According to the Maryland Historical Society Magazine, while John and William were not brothers, they were close relatives--probably cousins or uncle and nephew.

The Roman numerals indicate the generations beginning with John Edmondson of Talbot County--1657 to 1693.

I

John Edmondson had settled in Calvert County, Maryland, in 1657. We find land rights had been claimed in 1658 for John Horne and his servants, Richard Marcham and John Edmondson. In 1665 John represented his patron, John Horne, as his attorney in Calvert County. From the time of his arrival, his importance as a land owner, merchant, politician, and Quaker grew rapidly. At the end of five years, he had accumulated considerable property. He began to sell his holdings in Calvert County and moved to Talbot County where he lived until his death. He is reported to have been interested in 140 land deals and was the largest real estate holder in the colony. His first year in Talbot County, he bought the Sarke Plantation of 350 acres and later the same year bought another parcel of land called "Dover," which contained 200 acres. He then bought "Jack's Cove" of 450 acres and then, "Third Haven" of 200 acres. This piece of land was later known as "Edmondson's Neck," and on it he built his home, "Cedar Point." From it he deeded the land where Third Haven Friends Meeting House was built and still stands.

John Edmondson married Sarah Parker, the daughter of one of the Commission Governors. In his will, dated January 2, 1674, he mentioned his wife, Sarah Edmondson, by name.

Both John and Sarah lie buried in the Third Haven Meeting yard at Talbot, Maryland, although there is no stone to mark their graves, for the early Friends did not use markers. In a larger measure, the Meeting House itself is a monument to the memory of this man of large affairs, who cherished in his heart the simple faith of the Quakers.

He died in 1698. His final will was made August 9, 1697, and was probated March 7, 1698. It was recorded in Kent County, now Dolamore, and a copy is found at Dover. To show the complicated condition of the estate, it was not finally closed until 1769, twenty-one years after his death. Both the original executors were long dead.

John and Sarah were the parents of ten children, some of whom did not outlive their parents: Sarah, eldest, born November 24, 1664, and married William Johnson, a mariner of England. Both apparently died before John and Sarah. John, the oldest son, was born February 2, 1666, and married Susannah O'Nealy on March 28, 1685. He died without children. Grace, second daughter, was born September 22, 1668. She is not mentioned in her father's will, so apparently had died.

(Maryland Historical Society Magazine, September 1955.)

II.

James, second son, was born on February 25, 1670. He married Madelon Stevens on December 18, 1691. They had four children among whom was John who married Margaret Pollard. They had a second son, Pollard Edmondson, who on March 5, 1738, married Mary Dickerson. Among their descendants is the Duchess of Windsor.

Pollard Edmondson, Sr., was an officer in the Revolutionary War and was a commissioner at the erection of the present courthouse at Burton, and his name is recorded on the corner-stone. (Maryland Historical Society Magazine, September 1955.)

III

John, the son of James and Mary Pollard Edmondson had the following children: Elizabeth, born in 1731; Francis, 1736; Thomas, 1739; Solomon, 1744; and Mary, 1747. (Maryland Historical Society Magazine, September 1955.)

IV

Francis, whose wife's name was Rachel, was married in 1758. Rachel died in 1760. There were at least four children: Mark Green, Mary, Solomon, and Samuel. (Third Haven Quaker Meeting records, Annapolis, Maryland.)

Samuel, who was born about 1761, married Susannah Kemp at Baynside Meeting October 13, 1797. He, with his uncle, Solomon, in early life went to Guilford County, North Carolina, and was there at the close of the Revolutionary War. At the Battle of Guilford Court House, it is recorded that Samuel helped bury the dead and cared for the wounded the day after the battle. At that time he was twenty years of age. This record is in the Historical Library in Indianapolis. In Quaker records at Guilford College, it is recorded that Samuel and Solomon, and son, Solomon were received from Duck Creek Monthly Meeting by certificate dated September 27, 1784. On December 1, 1788, Samuel was dismissed from this Meeting; the reason was not stated. (Baynside, North Carolina, Quaker Meeting records.)

According to the will of Francis Edmondson, made January 2, 1775, and probated April 29, 1786, his estate was left to Rachel, his wife; Mary, a daughter; Mark Green; Solomon; and Samuel, sons. It was stipulated in the will that Samuel was not to come into his inheritance until he was twenty years of age. This will is found in the Justice Archives Building at Dover, Delaware.

It would appear that after the war, Samuel returned to Maryland for a while at least. No record is found in county records in Guilford County, North Carolina, that he ever owned owned land or was married there. He was married at Bayside Meeting to Susannah Lamp on October 13, 1797.

Solomon, his uncle, who had married Susannah Wilkinson in 1785, came with his family: a son, Solomon, and three daughters, Mary, Margaret, and Sarah. John and Mary were born later. Mary and Margaret married brothers named Dillon. Sarah married a Jones.

On November 2, 1802, Samuel moved to Knox County, Tennessee, from Guilford County, North Carolina, and bought a farm of 175 acres on Beaver Creek about twelve miles northwest of Knoxville, according to Knox County land records at Knoxville. There he raised a family of eight sons and three daughters. The sons' names were Isaac, Solomon, Thomas, John, William, Wesley, Francis, and Samuel. The daughters were Susan, Elizabeth, and Rebecca. Susan and Elizabeth married the Ledginger brothers and stayed in Knox County. Rebecca married John England of Knox County on March 2, 1830, and later moved to California. Susannah having died, Samuel married Rebecca White on January 7, 1827. According to Clay County, Indiana, records, Samuel died in Knox County, Tennessee, at the age of 96.

VI

Isaac, who is listed in the census of 1830 at Knoxville, was living in Knox County at that time. He married Anne Wheeler on August 21, 1829, and is reported to have moved to Missouri, settled there, and raised a family. J. Howard Edmondson, present Governor of Oklahoma, from accounts given in his biography is probably a great-grandson of Isaac. In the Saturday Evening Post, he gives information that his grandfather came from Tennessee. Isaac was said to be a vagabond and made almost yearly visits to his brother in Tennessee, his brother in Clayton, Indiana, and to Missouri in Clay, Greene, and Newton County, Indiana. When brother

Will of Francis Edmondson in Part

I, Francis Edmondson of Kent County on February 2, 1775, in the province of Pennsylvania being in perfect health, and of sound mind, memory, and of understanding, but considering the uncertainty of this transitory life, do make, publish, and declare this my last will and testament in manner and form following:

First of all, I give and bequeath unto my daughter Mary Edmondson all that part of a tract of land which I bought of Solomon Edmondson it being part of lott lying in Kent County . . . containing 100 acres more or less to her and the heirs of her body lawfully begotten forever, but if my said daughter Mary should die without heirs then I give all the said tract of land to my son Mark Greer Edmondson and to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten forever.

Also I give and bequeath to my son Solomon the two tracts of land which I bought of John Greer lying in Kent County- and near to Weston town called the Bear Gordin. . . .

Also I give and bequeath to my son Samuel Edmondson my dwelling plantation lying upon Hungman Branch with all my lands adjoining containing about one hundred and ninety acres. To come into the possession of the said land and plantation at the death or marriage of my wife. To him, his heirs and assigns forever.

Should not to come into his inheritance until he is twenty years of age. . . .

(See in Ancient Archives Building, Dover Delaware.)

Francis became tired of Uncle Ike's visit, he would put him to work, and he would silently depart. (Family stories.)

VI

Solomon came to Indiana, settling on a farm near the ~~St.~~ off neighborhood in Morgan County and lived there for several years. He is listed in Morgan County records as being a taxpayer there in 1828. He later moved to Hamilton County, bought a farm of eighty acres there which he sold in 1849. A curious fact was unearthed in the Morgan and Hamilton County records that he actually traded his Morgan County farm for a farm of like size in Hamilton County. At this time, nothing is known about his family. According to family story, he died there in Hamilton County.

Thomas, son of Samuel, left his native Tennessee and moved to Arkansas, settling near Grand View in the edge of the Ozarks. His sons were: Braxton Clark, Albert Jackson, James Newton, Benjamin Franklin, and John.

VIII

Braxton Clark Edmondson lived at Grand View, Arkansas, and raised a family. About 1900, he came to Indiana to visit his kin. He landed in Clay County, and with his first cousin, Samuel Austin, ~~drove~~ to Clayton where they visited their cousin, Benjamin. The writer of this history well remembers that visit.

The family of Braxton Clark consisted of Grover Cleveland, who years ago went to California and is supposed to be still living there. He was a Lawyer, Teacher, living at Duarate Calif. ~~He died Dec. 1966~~

J. W. Edmondson became a Baptist minister and went to southern

Dear Cousin--Now that Thanksgiving festivities are over, I will get to the task of replying to your delightful letter of recent date.

I remember our correspondence of many years ago and also how my interest was kindled in the history of the family by its disclosures.

I am sorry to report that I have not obtained much that would add to the information you have.

In the briefing given us by my father, the history of the emigration from Tennessee is almost identical with the information you have of that phase of the history of our progenitors.

He also supplied us with a bit of traditional lore, to which he attached great significance, to the effect that any one of the name spelling it with two ds was to be accepted without further questions.

This rule, I have observed religiously through the years, notwithstanding the fact that I have been without the means of verification to give it full credence, however, I have passed it along to my family whom I have instructed to treat it as altogether reliable.

I always thrill with pride when I contemplate the rich heritage which is ours; bequeathed by these intrepid old pioneers who had their part in writing some of the most readable chapters in the history of the development of our great country.

The thread of religious fervor of which you spoke in your letter, was also a part of our legacy, as our grandfather, too, was a Methodist minister; but who was not actively engaged in the work of the ministry, due to ill health in his declining years. He had, however, according to Father's report, been active as a young man.

He was married to Mary Sams in Tennessee. After some years, his health began to fail, and he was ordered by his doctor to take to the out doors, to travel, and to live in the open as much as was possible.

In obedience to these instructions, he began a step and go pilgrimage to the west, which took him into Ark. at about the time of statehood for that area. (1836)

He found himself, after a long slow journey, on the bank of Mulberry creek in Johnson County, Ark. occupying what was then called a "Three Face Camp", and the stories of the loneliness of living in this isolated region as handed down by grandmother were almost beyond belief.

From here he moved on to Washington County and settled in the Oxford Bend, on the White River, not too far from the town of Payetteville.

Here most of his family was born and reared. A family consisting of five sons and four daughters. The elder of the sons was John, who was followed by Ben, then came Braxton, who was my father, and who was two years the senior of Uncle Newton. The youngest of the family was A. G. (Albert Jackson) who was known throughout his lifetime as Jack.

He was the father of Charlie with whom you visited on your last visit to the Ozarks.

Of the girls, Betsy Ann was the elder, and was married to James Warren, who was a native of Overton Co. Tennessee; Jane became Mrs. Riley Baker and Martha was joined in wedlock to Alva Ferguson who was first cousin to my mother who was a Ferguson also. Rebecca became Mrs. Hal Denney. She was the younger of the lot.

John went away to the Mexican War, and served for the duration in the army of Gen. Taylor. He was present at Buena Vista and witnessed the wild flight of Santa Anna as he sought to elude capture after his stunning defeat. He returned home at the close of the war, but the monotony of every day life was not to be tolerated and to feed his growing appetite for adventure he set sail for the gold fields of California. If he ever swung a pick or rocked a pan, the news of it never got back to the family. But a rumor seeped through, somehow, that he had joined a party who had been retained by an American mining syndicate to guard a property in Lower California, the title to which was in dispute. In the fighting that ensued he was killed.

This is the story that remained shrouded in mystery till its confirmation by Uncle Ben who had followed pretty closely upon his heels in about the year 1854.

Ben having joined a wagon train which was outfitted in Springfield, Mo., made what proved to be a one way trip to California first and then to the gold strike in Jackson county, Oregon. He retired from the mining business and became a rancher in southern Oregon, after taking a wife. His was a family of five, three boys and two girls. The boys were lumbermen and the girls were married to ranchers. The youngest, Ore, married a man named Gordon and Lettie, the older girl took the name of Alien. They lived in the vicinity of Crater Lake.

Father and Uncle Newton joined the Confederate army. Father's twentieth birthday was probably his busiest. His birth date, Aug 10, falling on the same day as the battle of Wilson Creek where he had the misfortune to be dodging yankee bullets. He was twenty years old on that day.

Uncle Newton was killed late in the war while home on furlough from the army. It happened in a skirmish with guerrillas with whom that section was infested, and whose part in the war "will live in infamy", as it was primarily a war on the defenseless ones whose husbands and fathers were away serving in the army.

Jack who was too young for the war spent his entire life on the farm to which grandfather had moved to Carroll from Washington Co. in about the year 1858. Our family consisted of seven boys and three girls. J. N. whom you knew, was the older. Thomas J. was next in line, followed by C. O. whose name was that of a famous discoverer, and Frank, who was chosen to perpetuate the illustrious name of Benjamin Franklin, then there was John, who, no doubt, was the one upon whom father decided to bestow that family name to insure its continuity. Denton was next and then to complete the seven, I was brought along; eighty years ago, October 23, 1962.

The girls were Lena, Dean and Pearl in that order. Dean who is Mrs. B. H. Taggart, lives in Rich Hill, Mo. and Pearl with whom you visited lives in Grandview. She is the widow of the late George Bradley. Lena who was widowed years ago, lives in Weiser, Idaho. Her husbands were Weed and Welden and there were an equal no. of children from each wedding.

I am getting ready to close this already too lengthy epistle with the observation that our branch of the family has done yeoman service in keeping the depletion, in the communities where they have lived, of the ranks of Democrats and Baptists to a minimum.

It is a proud name and I feel that I am honored to wear it.

Thanks for your very fine letter and please extend kindest regards to all available kinsman and drop us a line occasionally.

Resp. Yours,

Grover C. Edmundson

Illinois where he had pastorates. He, too, made a visit to Clayton and preached here for a time.

Thomas Edmondson went to Kansas and later died there.

Denton went to St. Louis where he later died.

Albert Jackson Edmondson, a brother of Braxton, lived in Grand View. He had one son, Charles.

VIII

Charles Edmondson still lives near Grand View at the age of 60 with his son, Albert Jackson III on his 170-acre dairy farm. His other children were: Durward Raymond, living in Grand View; James Newton, who in early life went to California; Marlene Wendall, living in Tulsa, Oklahoma; Paul Jerome, also living in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and Spike Edmondson Alvard, living near Grand View.

James Newton Edmondson, son of Thomas, lived at Grand View, but lost his life during the Civil War.

Benjamin Franklin Edmondson migrated to Oregon at an early time; nothing else is known.

John Edmondson made the trip to California during the Gold Rush and was killed there.

This information was obtained by this writer from Charles Edmonson and son, Jackson III in the fall of 1960.

VI

William Edmonson, son of Samuel, was born in Knox County, Tennessee, and died in Clay County, Indiana, in 1867. He married Sarah Holt in Tennessee and settled in Clay County with their small son Samuel Austin, born in 1828. He located in Section 29, Harrison Township, Clay County, Indiana. They raised the following children: Columbus Lafayette, who went to Vigo County, Indiana; John, who lived in Atwood, Illinois; and Samuel Austin, who lived near Clay City, Indiana. Also, Rebecca Jane, who married a Montgomery; and Sarah in Illinois; Joel Holt; Peter Allen, who moved to and lived in Indiana; William Strange, his twin brother; Mary Elizabeth; Melissa Clementine; Nancy Irene; and Zack Thomas Alexander.

Columbus Lafayette, son of William, lived near Riley, Indiana, where he died in 1910. He raised one daughter, Edmene, who married Harry Cotton. They are both dead, but left a son, Dale Cotton, who is a minister and lives south of Terre Haute with his wife, Ruth, and son, David.

VIII

John, son of William, married Rebecca _____ . They were both school teachers and lived at Atwood, Illinois. They were very careful and invested their funds in cheap, wet Illinois farmland, which when later drained proved to be some of the richest farms anywhere. They owned about 1200 acres. They raised one daughter, Nabel, who now lives at Champaign, Illinois. Her husband, Clyde Hobart, and son, Kent, have both passed away.

Mr. B. G. Edmonson

Dear Cousin: I take my pen in hand to write you after long delay. As I have not heard from your folks for so long it seems really strange to me that we would grow so careless as we get old. I often think of you all and of the many pleasant hours we have seen together in years gone by. I would be glad to see you all though perhaps never will see all of your folks again in this life. I have saw a great deal of trouble and affliction in my family ever since you was out here to see us.

My little boy, Samuel, died Dec. 15, 1881, and my wife, Nancy A. died March 19, 1882 and Elzera died Dec. 22, 1882 and left a young baby only four days old. She was married to one Henry Whitted. That was sorry hours for me at that time. Her babe less than two weeks afterwards. So it seemed that I was completely broke up in mind and body so had rented out my farm to Whitted and Columbus. Columbus had got married and his wife and Iander, my youngest, kept house. So in the spring of 83 I went to Ill. my old home and friends there. Then to Indiana to see mother and fully expected to visit you all that summer, though it seemed fate had ordered it different. So I did not remain as long as I expected by two or three months. I was called home to see after affairs here that seemed to need my immediate attention and returned at once. Though while I was out there I got me another companion to journey along in life with me. I had now her for thirty odd years. She was a widow lady and had been for fourteen years. She had six children all grown but one boy. He is eighteen year old soon. He is living with us. My wife was a niece of my first wife and is two years younger than I am. We used to keep company when young. Consequently had but little courting to do when we met and realizing that we was both left alone as it were. She is a splendid woman and so far our union has been pleasant to both and trust it will remain so.

As to William Strange Edmenson, he died in Dec. 1888 and his family of children in all married. The boys is living on the old farm and seemingly doing very well. Health is very good here this winter though it has been very cold here for four weeks, though it is clear and fine here today. Wind from the south and thawing a little. Times is very close here for certain, corn 25¢, wheat at 50¢, hogs at 3.75 cattle 2½ to 5¢ according to quality. We are close run this winter in the way of money matters. I built a barn that cost me some $900.00 and this summer and fall built us a house. It cost $2200.00 and everything being low it makes it hard on us to meet up. I have 600 bushels of wheat on hand at present. Sold one car of hogs at Kansas City for 4½ and am feeding 35 more for spring market. Got thirty head of cattle and five head of horses and some 50 head of stock hogs.

Write soon, I send my best love and respects to all. Tell Beth to write to me and give all the news. Yours, P. A. Edmenson, direct to Draggoon P. O. County of Osage, Kansas

Peter A. Edmenson and William Strange Edmenson were twin (?) brothers and first cousins of Benjamin Graysen Edmenson.

Mr. B. O. Edmonson

Dear Cousin: I will again write you a few lines. After considerable delay on my part, trusting you will excuse me. We are all well at present only myself I have a very bad cough that has troubled me greatly this winter. I have had to stay in doors most of the time since January set in. Health here seems to be generally good. We have had a very cold January and first of February. There are some patches of old ice yet in March it has so far been stormy. Either rain or snow every night so far. It is raining or rather sleetting today. Well Ben, I would be truly glad to see you all again. As I get old it does me good to think of younger days when we were all together.

I hear uncle and aunt is no more. Well, it is a great loss to lose our parents though we can rejoice we had their counsels for so many years and their example to walk in and their blessed hope of meeting again. So let us that is left live faithful. My children is but few that is left. My youngest daughter lives with me, going to school. She is 22 years old. Columbus is living on the farm. They have one girl, call her Lerona. R Rosetta has four children, 2 boys and 2 girls that is not married. He has gone to California, him and one of his step brothers went together and don't know how long they will be gone. If they like that region, perhaps they may make their future home there. Me and my woman get along splendid and her and my children also which is a pleasure to me.

Well, Ben, this country has improved greatly since you was out here. All the wild prairie is fenced and houses and barns and church-houses and school houses has been erected, where there was no settlement at all 8 years ago....Times is very hard here on the farmers and has been for last two years. Produce has been low. Great deal of money lost in cattle and hogs on account of decline of prices. Hogs here now is worth 3 $\frac{1}{2}$, cattle 3 to 4 $\frac{1}{2}$, steckers 2 year olds 24 to 30 dollars. Milk cows 35 to 45 dollars, horse plugs 80 to 100, good 125, to 200. dollars. Horses seem to hold up the best of any stock. Myself and others has shipped a great deal of stock to Kansas City this fall and winter and made some money. We was caught the 12th to 14th in the blizzard in January and lost heavily. Was caught in the market in the big break.

Our county seat remains at Linden, that is 5 miles south of us. They are building a railroad through from Salina to Council Grove, Osage City and Ottawa by the first of September next. If they do that will give us a direct line east by St. Louis. Well, Ben, I have 270 acres of farm here and in a good state of cultivation. Good house and barn and other buildings and orchard. Will sell on terms to suit purchaser as to time. I dont expect to farm or dont want to and if I can sell I will give possession at once if any one in your community wants a good farm in Kansas send them out or write. Title guaranteed, abstract furnished to purchaser.

Write to me, give me all the news about all the folks you can.

Good Bye

P. A. Edmonson

Mr. B. O. Edmonson; Dear Friend and Cousin. I will try and pen you a few lines. I hope you will excuse my long delay in answering yours. My health has been very poor all winter and spring, though I am better since warm weather set in. I have had a very bad cough and this spring I was confined to the house most of the time, though at present I am able to tend garden and hoe some every day more or less. As to our crops, for corn it is very good, growing fine. We have 40 acres going over the third time. Been very dry this spring though had plenty of rain recently. Oats and wheat not very good, chinch bugs bad in wheat. Harvest will come by the 15th at furthest.

Stock of all kinds doing well this summer so far. Cattle is some better price than was earlier from 3 to 4 cents a pound, hogs at present 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ a pound.

My children is all very well. Dora, my youngest girl is with me. Lum is running the farm and makes some money. Rosetta lives 6 miles east of us, her man is managing to make a living. V. S. is in California in Yolo County, P. O. Woodland. The rest is all lying in the silent tomb, six of them and their dear mother all so well. Ben, I can truly sympathize with you for I have been there. None can tell the lonely hours, only those that has the same trial to undergo. As you and I have got another companion though that dont blot out the memory of that other, by no means. I have got a good woman and one that is pleasant to get along with, though she has 6 living children. One lives with me, her youngest boy. He is 18 years old and a good boy for business, though it is a very particular for to get along always present with two families mixed up. Isadore goes to Linden in a few days to attend County institute. She will teach this winter in the county schools.

I suppose I will have enough to live on though I cant work as I used.

I offer to sell this 270 acres. I ask $8000. 00 for it.

Well, you would be very much surprised to be here and see the vast amount of improvements that has been made since you was here. All of that prairie you came over from Carbondale is all in farms. Fine houses and barns built and church and school houses and Linden, our county seat has one railroad and the K. P. is building from Council Grove to Ottawa that runs between here and Linden. Will be some three miles from here. They are locating a road now from Kansas City to Wichita, thence through the Nation into Texas. It will run three mile or about so North of here to Burlingame.

I would be glad to have you come and see us this summer. Cant you come. We will surely make it pleasant for you. Tell Beth to come and see us all and see the country. There are splendid opportunities here at this time for a man for some means to invest it to good advantage. I am thinking some of spending next winter in Indiana and if I ever get back to Terre Haute I will surely go to Clayton and see you all and all that is left, so good buy. Write soon. Tell Beth to write to me. She unto and I would be glad to receive a letter again from her.

Samuel Austin married Elizabeth Friedley. They raised a family of five: William, who married Angelina Hovlin; Henry Richard (Dick) married Elmira Hovlin; Columbus LaFayette married Cinda Day; Muldah, who married Frank Bevard--then she married Germain; and Jacob Ashley, who married Betty Redishon.

The following is a tribute to Samuel Austin Edmondson by Dale Cotton, a grandson:

Numbered among the venerable and respected citizens of Clay County is Samuel A. Edmondson, who has, ~~mayhap~~, resided in Harrison Township, his present home, longer than any other person now residing within its limits. The son is one of the earlier pioneers of this part of the county, he is a typical representative of the brave and daring men who came here when the country roundabout was in its pristine wildness, and assisted in the development of this fertile and productive agricultural region. A son of William Edmondson, he is born, December 20, 1826, in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Samuel Edmondson, the grandfather of Samuel Austin, was born in Delaware in colonial days. After arriving at manhood, he removed to Guilford Court House, N. C., and the day following the Revolutionary battle fought there on March 15, 1781, he assisted in burying the dead soldiers of both armies. Subsequently removing to Tennessee, he located about twelve miles from Knoxville, and there spent the remainder of his long life, passing away at the venerable age of ninety-six years.

Born on the home farm, near Knoxville, Tenn., William Edmondson was reared and married in his native state, living there until 1828. In that year, accompanied by his wife and child, he came to Indiana, walking the entire distance, while his wife, who carried her babe in her arms, rode on horseback. Journeying along the wild and rugged pathway for ten days, he arrived in Harrison township, poor in pocket, but rich in energy and courage, his only assets being a horse, a saddle, and twenty-five cents in money. Entering a Government claim in Harrison township, he cleared a small space, erected a small log cabin, which he and his family occupied a number of years. For sometime thereafter, he was employed in making staves, which he used to take down the Eel, White, Wabash, Ohio, and Mississippi Rivers to New Orleans. Selling out his load, he would make the return journey as far as Louisville by steamer, and from there would walk home. In 1850, he removed to Vigo county, where he resided until his death, in 1885. His wife, whose maiden name was Delilah Holt, was born in Knox county, Tenn., and died, at the age of seventy-three years, in Clay county, Ind. Her father, Joel Holt, was a blacksmith, and followed his trade on the Clinch river, where he also operated a ferry for many years. He died in that county at the remarkable age of one hundred and six years.

The eldest of a family of twelve children, Samuel Austin Edmonson was but an infant when he came with his parents to Harrison township. In the days of his boyhood the wild beasts of the forest had as yet not fled before the advancing steps of civilization, but, with the dusky savage, inhabited the wilderness, deer, wolves, and panthers being plentiful, while an occasional bear was seen. He attended the first school taught in the vicinity of his present home, and often tells of the term being shortened on account of the school-master sleeping with one of his elder girl pupils. After arriving at man's estate, Mr. Edmondson was for five years employed on the canal. During these thirty acres of timber land, he cut down a few of the giants of the forest to make room for a cabin, which he built of poles, and in which he and his bride began housekeeping. Laboring strenuously and persistently, he cleared his land, bought more from time to time, finally becoming possessor of a fine farm of one hundred and twenty acres, nearly all of which he cleared and improved, erecting a comfortable and convenient set of frame buildings. In all his agricultural labors, Mr. Edmondson was successful.

On December 18, 1848, Mr. Edmondson married Elizabeth Friedly, who was born in Harrison Township, Clay County, Indiana, ~~she was~~ ~~born~~ on February 17, 1832, a daughter of Daniel and Rebecca Friedly. She died on March 30, 1897, leaving five children: William Daniel, Harry R., Columbus Lafayette, Hulda, and Jacob Ashley.

William Daniels, son of Austin, married Angelina Heyland. Nothing more is known about them.

Columbus Lafayette ("Zeta"), son of Austin, married Cindy Day and still owns the old home place where he raised two daughters, Phoebe Jane and Margaret. Jane married Lloyd Mitchell, and they have two children, Patricia and ... Margaret married Elwood Pilkett, and they live in Parke County, Indiana.

Susan, daughter of Austin, married Frank Blizard. No child, and she later married a man named Cormane.

XIII

Abel Arthoy, son of Austin, married Betty Roddickan.

XIV

John Edmondson, son of Samuel, was born in Dick County, Tennessee, and died in Clay County, Indiana, in 1867. He married Sally Crittenden on May 7, 1823 before he left Tennessee. He located in Section 22, Todd Township, Clay County, Indiana. He became a Baptist minister and was highly regarded as a citizen and man of God. He died buried near Jasonville, Indiana. One of his descendants was "Uncle Bill" Edmondson of Jasonville.

Dear Friend and Sonations

I truly thank you for the kindness of writing me. I was thrilled to get the Quaker information. I too could trace only as far as Daniel and be sure of Quaker ancestors either, my own Grandfather told me he was descended from Quaker stock. He always clung to their creed but as there were no Quakers in this section at the time, he settled with his father's church and was a charter member of the North Parish Church at Jacksonville. He used to tell us stories of his life in Tennessee when he was a boy. Said his people came over the mts from N.C. but I was too young to inquire further or too disinterested at the time. So I called Henley and we decided to get the information typed out and to all the members of my father's house. They are widely scattered. Henley, the youngest, now 70 still lives where he did when the reunion was held in Father's big woods. He told the old home several years ago and the big white oak trees that we all loved so well were cut and hauled away. That timber was virgin and it made us feel badly to see it cut. The old house is about gone to wreck, but there is many a flower and shrub to remind us of former years. Needles to say they are all neglected and gives us a saddened feeling as we pass by. I still have two sisters living, Edie Stark, 86 yrs old, lives at Porto Wayne with one of her 2 daughters. When she was able she spent part time with Christiana, 82 years old. Perhaps you would remember Hazy Swallow since she and Edie Stark were nearer your age. Edie is dead. So are two other sisters. Hazy lives in Toledo Oregon. Her husband died in 1928. I will send her what you wrote. She has always taken so much interest in such things. My own husband died in 1941. Since then I have lived of various places. Monthly here in a small town or with Joe or Guss, my sons. Joe lives in West Tazewell Ind. Is on the faculty and teaching in the Agricultural department. John lives on the farm and and teaches in the Consolidated School at Dantright. Both boys have been serving in U. S. military. John was out 50 months. He was connected with the army since he was 17. He is now a Lieut.

colonel in the reserves. Each one married to lovely women. Joe has two girls. Ann will graduate from P. U. in June. Dorothy 17 will graduate from West Tazewell H. S. in May. Joe goes to P. U. in 1939 from the university at Norwell Ohio. My father's family of descendents are in 8 states. I am now past 70. & it would love to discuss with you our ancestor problems. I have always understood they came from England and from what you wrote, I still believe it is so.

Yours truly, Cousin Rose Weston

Richard Simondson, born about 1860 was a cousin of Samuel A. Samuel was known as "Hattie" or "Waddle." His family consisted of William ("Black Bill"), Samuel, Polk, John Bullard, and Dallas. John Bullard had "Black Bill" and his wife, Mary, come to him in 1873. No word for help to Nashville, Tennessee, where he obtained $100 and brought them with him to Texas. He made the trip in 36 hours and reported to the two agents in the community. The agents told "Black Bill" he could have $1000 if he would gather 1000 cattle from New Mexico and sell them to the government, 10¢ each. He gathered 1000 cattle and the U.S. Government made him two grants of land, supposedly for this feat.

Some time after Texas gained her independence, he and his family departed from Alabama westward toward Texas. On their way, they stopped in Arkansas and visited his brother Thomas and other kinmen.

Richard Simondson, born about 1860 was a cousin of Samuel A. Samuel was known as "Hattie" or "Waddle." His family consisted of William ("Black Bill"), Samuel, Polk, John Bullard, and Dallas. John Bullard had a son, Glynn, who now lives near Eldorado, Texas, with his wife, Harry.

The writer of this paper saw Glynn's name on a mail box and visited him in 1960. When he was told of the exploit of Samuel A., he exclaimed, "I have heard that story many times from my grandfather whose father was Samuel A." Glynn is now manager of a large cattle ranch near Eldorado.

old Elizur, a Richard Thompson, whose father was a cousin to my grandfather. He (Richard) was born around 1860 and remembered my great-grandfather, Samuel A., however if he knew him to be the same as Samuel Austin, there was no occasion for him to speak of him. He did say that Samuel A. was familiarly known by a nickname--Huckle or Huddie. I'm not sure of the spelling. No doubt the old settler could give us a lot of info- if he were living. He did say once that he was of the same lineage as the Arkansas clan. Said that he came to Texas in the early days, he left a brother in route to Arkansas who raised a family there, left them and came alone to Texas in later years.

I can't give you a lot more information than when I was you, though I talked to my brother who lived a number of years now on old Elizur, a Richard Thompson, whose father was a cousin to my grandfather. He (Richard) was born around 1860 and remembered my great-grandfather, Samuel A., however if he knew him to be the same as Samuel Austin, there was no occasion for him to speak of him. My great-grandfather had several sons born in 1820's-30's. The oldest I believe was William, known in Texas as Black Bill; Samuel; John; John Dillard, my grandfather; and Dallas, the youngest.

This older cousin that I have been quoting (Richard) was also distantly related as his mother was a sister to my grandmother.

It was also indeed to hear from you again. If I should stumble upon other information I will relay it to you. And if the occasion should present, and I am ever up your way, I shall make every effort to see and talk with you again. I enjoyed our former visit and knowing from you so much.

Very truly, your friend and kinsman,

In the fall of 1829, Solomon and Franklin, sons of Samuel, came to Indiana looking for some suitable land available for entry. They located two eighty-acre farms, Sections 27 and 28 about three miles northeast of the village of Mooresville and about one-half a mile apart. They entered this land at Indianapolis Land Office on December 17 and 18, 1829; Sections 28 and 27, Township 14, R. 23, Morgan County, Indiana. Since Solomon is listed as a taxpayer in Morgan County in 1828, he must already have located here sometime before the land entry, and it may be that he had been there when Frank (Franklin) came in 1829.

Frank or "Frank" Ridenour, about whom we are most concerned, was born in Knox County, Tennessee on July 26, 1802. He married Jane Grayson on February 3, 1828. Jane was a sister of Sally who married John Ridenour, Frank's brother. ^{Jane} Sally was born on December 12, 1800, and died near Clayton on July 26, 1862. He died at the same place on November 19, 1885. They both lie buried in the Clayton Cemetery.

The story is told that when Jane and Sally were ready to start to Indiana, their mother called them to her and gave Jane a chest of drawers and Sally a bedstead, so they would have something to remind them of their Tennessee home. This old cherry bureau is now in the home of Helen Indley at Clayton, a great-grand-daughter of Jane and is one of her most beautiful and cherished possessions. A diligent search in Clay and Greene Counties failed to bring to light the bedstead or any knowledge about it. Apparently, it has not survived the years.

Jane Grayson was the daughter of "Big Ben" Grayson" of Knox County, Tennessee, and their only son was named after him—Benjamin Grayson Franklin. It is said that our branch of the family inherited their valiant, sturdy and spunky traits from this ancestor, "Mac Don."

When Frank left Knox County, Tennessee, he came by wagon, probably pulled by oxen, because it took six weeks to drive from Beaver Creek, Tennessee, to his land in Morgan County. His young wife and small daughter, Caroline, came along so the whole family, together with all their possessions, came in that one wagon. Some where, we have been told that Frank rode a horse, and his wife drove the wagon. Their arrival was safely made through the mountains over Cumberland Gap, across Kentucky on the Wilderness Trail, and they probably crossed the Ohio River at Madison. They only road northward was through Vinton, Columbus, and Franklin, where they could intercept the National Road. They probably went westward to the Bluff of White River at Waverly. From there only a few miles northwest was the new farm, we can imagine the last few miles were through a dense forest, and they perhaps had to cut a trail to reach the farm by wagon.

A cabin was built and the next fall, little Benjamin was born in that little cabin. The neighborhood was not to Frank's liking (too much working on Sunday) as a place to raise a family, so he began looking around for a better location and found land on the newly located Penna Route Trail, west of Belleville on Mud Creek, which he entered in the Land Office at Cynthiana. This entry was for eighty acres in Section 40, Township 14 N., Range 1 W. in Liberty Township, Hendricks County, and was dated November 23, 1831.

He had learned that a nearby settler had also picked out this same tract, so he started at the Land Office at Cynthiana on having bank accounts at 32 names, which were opened for business the next morning. (Frankly I could not stop waiting to enter this room.) When the entry was made and he was leaving the office, one place setting was already prepared and I learned he was an old-timer, the companion of his wife, and the history of the neighborhood was changing from story after story told me by my mother, (Julia Robinson, after her 95th birthday.)

On this land, he built a cabin, and here, his second daughter, Elizabeth, was born. This cabin was his home until about 1879, when it was burned to the ground with nearly all its contents. The new home that he built on the old site is still standing and is a monument to Frank's good judgment and ability.

These children attended school at nearby Kinderhook School and later went to Bellville Academy.

The country was new and the life of this pioneer family was difficult. Neighbors were few and far away. The woods were about them on all sides.

Frank Robinson became a man of considerable means and occupied a high place in the community. He was a charter member of the First Methodist Church at Clayton, which he helped organize and to which he is said to have donated the land on which it was built. According to the history of that church, he was often called on to preach.

He was tall in stature and rather austere in his looks, but is said to have had a dry sense of humor. In his later years, he work a farm. He was frugal in his habits, cautious in business, and honest in his commitments. That he was a good farmer is attested by the fact that he left at his death, a farm of 260-acres, which was well improved and in a high state of production. His rule of business was to never let the sun set, owing any man, even his hired help which he paid at the close of each day. He had little confidence in banks, so he kept his money at home where he stored it in a wooden box which was hollowed out and used as a door-stop. During the Civil War, he would accept only gold; but after the war, when paper money was greatly depreciated, he forgot, on early day, when it would be worth face value, so he then bought all he could with his gold.

The story is told that some travelers passing by over the nearby Pierre Haute Trail fed their horses on his farm, and from the hay some seeds were scattered. The next year, when this new grass came up, Frank became alarmed at the way it was spreading, so he attempted to kill it off. He failed, and as a result, we now have Blue Grass throughout this part of Indiana.

The children of Frank and Fannie were: Bellinda Caroline, Benjamin Grayson, and Elizabeth J. Caroline was born in Tennessee in 1828. She married Mr. Buchanan, and they had one daughter, Fannie, who married Thomas Hamrick of Bellerville. Caroline later married David Ader of Fulton County, Indiana. They had two children: Alice who married a David; and Frank, Elizabeth J. was born on the Mud Creek farm in 1834. She married Joseph Little, a brother of Harry Ann Little who married Benjamin Grayson Simondson. Elizabeth and Joseph Little had a son, E. Howard, born in 1860. Elizabeth later married Henry Marley, and they had one son, Alba R. Marley, who married Nellie Hollingsworth.

Howard Little married Minnie Penney, their children were: Edith, Paul, and Alice. They took into their home and raised an orphan infant, daughter of his uncle, Robert Little; her name was Maye. Edith married Arthur Woods and had a son, Howard Nelson Woods, who is married and lives in Bellerville. Paul married Ruth Woods, a sister of Arthur.

Their children are: Howard Gordon, Raymond, and Joann. Howard G., married Mollie Borkin, and they have the following children: Maxey, Sue, Jim, and Bruce. Raymond is married, has five children, and lives in Indianapolis. Joann married George. They are the parents of Sue and Leslie in Aro, Alma, another daughter of Howard and Minnie, married Pfleger of California, and after his death married Leighton. She is now a widow and resides in Plainfield. Faye, the foster-daughter of Howard and Minnie, married Oral Good and to them were born Elizabeth and Donald. Elizabeth is a teacher and has never married. Donald is married, has several children, and lives southwest of Parville.

Benjamin Clayton Monson, son of Francis, was born in Morgan County on September 19, 1831. He married Mary Ann Tittle, a daughter of Samuel Tittle of Plainfield on October 20, 1853. Mary Ann died on February 14, 1886 and is buried in the Glyndon Cemetery. Some two years later, he married Mary Ellen Aden. He died on March 12, 1919 at the age of 88, after he had been struck by a Pennsylvania train. She died at Groveland where she had gone to live with her son by a former marriage. They are buried in Clayton Cemetery near the grave of his parents Franklin College and taught at least one year at the Scott Schoolhouse, "Grandpa Monson," as he was known to all his grand-children, was the grandfather of this writer. Soon after his marriage, he built a log cabin on ~~the~~ eighty acres which his father owned and which he later bought. This cabin was later known as the "weanling pen," for several of his sons started their married life there. He soon moved about one-half mile southwest of the cabin and in this home, most of his family were born. About 1867, he purchased a farm near Clayton and moved his house with his family there. This was where his family was raised and where he spent most of his life. In his Lebanon life, he moved from the farm to a home in Clayton. He was a product of the community where he was born, for he never lived more than two miles from his Father's home.

"Uncle Ben," as he was known throughout the countryside was a man of wide renown. His judgment was of the best and his advice was much sought after; his ability as a farmer and money-maker was unexcelled. His honesty and integrity were unquestioned, and his love for his family, his Church, and his God was shown by his every-day life.

Soon after his marriage, he united with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church at Clayton, where his wife was already a member and where his father-in-law, Samuel Little, was a charter member. He remained an active and steadfast member to the end of his life.

He was a good businessman, and early in life began to show keen business ability. He bought land, for he contended that it was the best investment, for it would always be there and would always be needed. He also, following in the footsteps of his father, helped many deserving young couples with loans that would enable them to get a start in life. Many successful men in this community owe their start in life to the help and faith of Uncle Ben. His list of borrowers is a list of "Who's Who in Liberty Township."

He was a big, robust man who enjoyed life to its fullest. One of his happiest times was when he was driving about over his farms in the old buckboard with "Old Ben," the horse, between the shafts, and looking after and caring his cattle. Many a dime was earned by his grandchildren who went along to open the gates. He instilled in them a love of farm life as he enjoyed it.

His love of family was indicated by the fact that the latchwriting was always out for any of his children or their families. Some of the happiest times in the lives of those grandchildren were when all the family ~~were~~ were assembled, playing in the barn or the old wheat granary, and when called in to eat at Grandma's table, hardly a Sunday ever passed when some of the children did not stop at Grandpop's for dinner on the way home from church. Family gatherings and reunions of the family were regular occurrences at the old homestead. His birth-date anniversary was an annual event which was celebrated as long as he lived.

When Mary Ellen came into the family, she proceeded to mother all her step-children, as well as her step-grand-, and later great grand-children. To her step-children, who were known as Aunt Mary and to the grandchildren, simply, Grandma. The influence of this godly woman on her younger step-children and grand-children can never be reckoned. Never did a hungry lad or lass enter her home without being taken to the kitchen and filled with anything and everything he desired. To Grandma Edmundson, they owed much.

The children of Benjamin Grayson and Mary Ann Little were: Columbus Franklin, Robert Alexander, Sarah Elizabeth, Thomas Benjamin, Joseph Little, Samuel Eugene, and Charles Arthur.

Dear Friends:

Now as I have time at hand, I will try and give you a history of our family as far as I know. I will have to go back to Tennessee to commence. My grandfather came from Maryland to Tennessee and raised his family consisting of seven boys and three girls. Their names were as follows: Samuel, Thomas, Frank, John, Solomon, William, James, Susan, Elizabeth, Rebecca.

Uncle Sam went to Alabama State and died there. I never knew him nor any of his family. Uncle Frank and Aunt Jane and father and mother moved together to Indiana in the fall of '27. Uncle Frank and Aunt Jane and Uncle John married sisters. They were Graysons. Aunts Susan and Elizabeth married Leddingers, John and Phillip. They were brothers. They stayed in Tennessee, Aunt Rebecca married John England and lived here until, then moved to Calif. and died there. They had one child, her name is Mary England, now Bolt. I have her picture. She is a fine looking woman. Of course all the Edmundson women are grand looking.

Grandfather and step grand mother moved to this state long after. Came here and died here at Paterson. That is, grandfather died here. Grandmother died near Parke, Illinois among her children. She was a widow wife and children lived over there. Uncle John came here and died here. He had three sons and four girls. They are all dead, but one girl, she lives in Oregon. There is a large family of Uncle Johns grandchildren here. Uncle Isaac moved to Missouri and his family is still there as far as I know. He is dead, died in the south.

I don't know any thing of Uncle Solomons family. I saw him once. At one time Uncle Frank and family, Uncle John and Aunt Sally all came to fathers to see grandfather. That was the last time they were all together. They had a good time together.

Father and Mother were married in Tennessee. Mother's name was Julia Holt. Father's name was William. Father's family consisted of six boys and three girls. I am the oldest of the family and John, the youngest. My family consists of four boys and one girl; now 17 grand children and great grandchildren, all living within seven miles of me.

My wife has been dead 9 years-I live with one of my sons. There are only three of my father's family living. Myself, Fait and John and Rebecca.

I am 70 yrs. old, the oldest Edmondson. I am living on borrowed time now.

I have given you about all I know of the Edmondson family. It may I have left out something you wanted to know so I have write and I will correct it. You don't spell your name right. Its Edmondson, Dante the way grandfather spelled it. I was much surprised to get your letter. Was glad to hear from you as I love the name of Edmondson and always glad to hear from anyone of that name.

Now, I want you and Kabel Edmondson to pay us a visit in May or June and fish and swim and boat ride and visit all the connection and see how we live. We are not rich nor want to be but have plenty to live on and enjoy life. We are common plain folks and you never will regret you come to see us. This leaves us all well as common, hoping this will find you well. Hoping to hear from you soon.

Send me your pictures.

Goodbye S. A. Edmondson

Note—Rebecca, sister referred to married a Montgomery and lived near Tennessee City, with none of her family—where I visited her there.

Mr. G. V. Hammond,

Clayton, Indiana

Dear Melvyn,

I received your very interesting letter, and excuse me for not answering sooner, as I have been searching for our family record, and my good wife found it about two weeks ago. William H. was my great grandfather, and Delilah Holt Hammond was his wife. The father of Delilah Holt was a blacksmith. Your great grandfather Francis and William H. were brothers as we know. Evidently Francis B. whom you mentioned in your letter had five boys, and Samuel one of them besides being in the revolutionary war, help bury the dead soldiers on both sides the day after a battle fought on March 15, 1781. From Guilford Co North Carolina he went to Tennessee and located about 12 miles from Knoxville, Cumberland Co. on the Clinch river. I have been near this location, but did not know where their home was located. Samuel had seven sons; William H. was born on May 3, 1808, and his wife Delilah Holt was born on August 4th, 1810. They had 12 children, and in 1828 they began their journey to Indiana. Your great grandfather Francis Francis and his family came with them in a covered wagon, and 10 days later they arrived in Harrison Twp, Cley Co. Indiana. William walked ahead of the wagon carrying a shotgun on his shoulder, and his wife rode horseback carrying their small son Austin on her lap. They only had $50 in money when they began the trip. They saw Indians, deer, marmots, panthers and bear along the way. Later William and Delilah purchased a farm 1 mile east of Blackhawk. He died in 1865, at the age of 57 years. She in the same farm where my mother Anna was born and died later in 1944. At the present time my father Riley is living there, and I spent some 17 years of my life there.

P. A. Edmondson is listed in our record as Peter Allen Edmondson the son of William Jr. and Bellina. He was born on September 14, 1831. William G. Johnson (Some spell their names without the Sud P, and some still use it) was evidently his brother and he was born on December 12, 1833. My grandfather's name was Columbus Lafayette Edmonson and his birth is listed on Nov. 1835.

My Mother Edmond who was called Nona, is the author of the information which I am very glad to pass on to you. If you find some more family history, let me know.

Sincerely yours,

C. Dale Cotton

Robert Alexander Thompson, son of Benjamin Grayson, was born near Clayton on December 18, 1860, and married Anna Adella Appleby (Della) on April 22, 1883. She was born on December 1, 1864 near ^{near} Buffalo School in the Ruxton neighborhood, between Clayton and Danville. He died on February 4, 1918. She passed away May 2, 1960, at the age of ninety-five.

They had five sons, Clarence Virgil, John Benjamin, Ralph Wallace, Charles Samuel, and Clarence LeRoy, all born at Chiseltown. Robert Alexander was born on the Mud Creek farm, the second son of the family and the father of this writer. He was named for his great-grandfather, Alexander Little, an early settler of Hendricks County. "Bob," as he was generally known, early displayed a desire for learning, so after his graduation from Clayton School, he entered Central Normal College at Danville. Following in the footsteps of his father, he obtained a teacher's license and taught two years at the Buffalo School in the Ruxton neighborhood, four miles northeast of Clayton. One of his older pupils was a Miss Della Appleby, in whose home he boarded, and whom he later married. They started housekeeping in the old log cabin, known as the "weaving den," on his father's farm. They later moved to Chiseltown Farm, southwest of Hazelined, where his father owned a hundred acre farm. Here he lived for the next twelve years, and here his five sons were born. He early made a place in the community for himself and before long, organized a Notarial Commission and did all the legal work in the and conducted. Every fifteen months, all the pensioners of the Civil War had an hour to have their pension papers notarized before they were paid. On "Removal Day," the house would be filled with old soldiers and their widows to get their papers notarized.

When he was able to attend church, he went to his own church at Clayton, where he always took an active part. At other times, he attended the new Friends' Meeting at Hazelwood, teaching a class in Sunday School, and led in the music.

In 1896, he built a new home one mile south of Clayton and moved there in the late fall. Here his family grew to manhood. Here, he also became an important leader in the community. In 1899, he was elected Trustee of Liberty Township, the first Democrat ever to hold that position. There are those yet living in the township who contend that after sixty years, he was the best trustee the township ever had.

In an early age, he joined the church of his father, the First Presbyterian Church at Clayton. A few years later, his wife also joined the same church and so the years rolled along, until his sons and wives joined this same church. He taught a Sunday School class most of his adult life and was always active in the music department, especially vocal music.

In 1917, when bad health began to bother him, he built a new home in the south edge of Clayton, where he and his wife moved. His health was failing and in a short time, he was stricken with an illness from which he did not recover. He passed away at the age of 57 and was laid to rest in the nearby cemetery, which had been a part of his father's farm.
