Dan Kelleher seems to have been cut out by fate to be constantly playing some part with automobiles or machinery of like nature. Born in Danville, Ind., in 1891, he went at an early age to Indianapolis where he entered the public schools. He soon became interested in the speedway and hung around it until he became a race driver's mechanic and drove with Frank T. Fox, the one-legged veteran of the dirt track, before the speedway was paved. Later he was a partner in the St. Clair street garage with his brother.

Came the war and he found himself in the 327th battalion, company C, United States tank corps, and after two months in this country in training, went overseas to spend 10 months in service. While his battalion was being shuffled back and forth from place to place, he was used as a dispatch rider, piloting a motorcycle through the muck and mud of battlefields. Then orders came for them to go into action on the front, but before they could reach the scene of the offensive the armistice was signed and the war ended.

Back in the United States again he determined to get away from machinery for awhile and studied to become a mortician. When he took a position with the Endicott Funeral company, he again found himself mixed up with an automobile for he was given the job of driving the big Cadillac ambulance. Those who have seen the ambulance go to the scene of an accident will testify that he really drives.

He first came to St. Petersburg in 1917 to drive his step-father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Notago, up North and back, and upon his return decided to make this city his permanent home. His first position here was with the St. Petersburg garage. In 1921 he married Miss Mattie Leo Nicks in this city. They reside at 649 Second avenue north.

A short time ago he became senior partner in the K. and N. transfer company, a business that has grown steadily since its inception. He continues his work with the Endicott Funeral company as a mortician and funeral director, however, conducting his trucking business at the same location.

Mr. Kelleher is a member of St. Petersburg lodge No. 139, F. and A. M., and of the Civitan club, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the American Legion. He has been a member of the First Methodist church, south, for one year. He is very fond of cherry pie and coffee, and delights in reading the works of Booth Tarkington, for whom he was once chauffeur.

He believes this city would be a more agreeable one for the motorists if it had better and more rigid traffic regulations and ascribes his success to a circle of true friends the possession of which he counts as more valuable than much money.

All events pre-1874 are written in the same hand and seemed to have been entered at one time. The Bible was found in an Indianapolis alley. The finder contacted the submitter, Mary Ann Cole, after seeing a query concerning this family in The Indianapolis Star. Mary Ann Cole is the granddaughter of Carmine E. Shinn.
