

LOCKHART GENEALOGY. *By Frank Robertson (dec.)
Brownstown, Ind.*

Some time before the War of the Revolution, a man by the name of Thomas Lockhart moved from Ireland and settled in Virginia. His sons were called, John, William, Thomas and James. John had sons whom he called William, John, Richard and Thomas. Richard was a soldier of the Revolution with Washington; was with Washington at Yorktown and witnessed the surrender of Lord Cornwallis. Thomas had sons whom he called, John, James, Thomas and William. William married at Stocton, moved to North Carolina. To him were born sons whom he called Thomas, John, Joseph and Stocton. Thomas, when eighteen years of age volunteered in the war of 1812 and marched from North Carolina to Canada. Later William and his sons moved to Indiana. William and his son, John settled in Washington County. Thomas in Hendricks County and Stocton in Owen County. William had daughters whom he called Sallie, who married James Collier; Martha, who married Johanathan Burker; Nancy, who married Henry Slueter; Polly, who married Ambrose Hopper, who was assassinated while plowing in a field in Washington County, Indiana. Thomas Lockhart * was the most renowned of the family. At the age of 40, he joined the Christian Church and on the following Lord's Day preached his first sermon. He labored constantly and faithfully till his death, which occurred in the 91st year of his age. During that period he baptised over 6,000 persons. He was mighty in the Scriptures, knew the Bible especially the new Testament, by heart and was accurate in his quotations and was considered by those who knew him to be one of the ablest preachers in Indiana. He is one of the very few preachers, if not the only one, in the Christian Church, to whom a monument was erected. Such a one is standing at the Plainfield Cemetary dedicated to Thomas Lockhart, erected by the Christian Churches of Hendricks County.

The Lockharts are not politicians in the common acceptance of that term, though they all have pronounced political opinions. The majority of them are Democrats. Many of them have been officers of local congregations of Christian Churches. John Lockhart was an elder, Thomas, an elder. James a deacon, Washington an elder, John W. a deacon, and Arta, a deacon. Those who were not preachers were farmers, save Thomas, son of John, who was a physician. ~~John Lockhart~~, son of John Lockhart, died at an early age. *John Lockhart also had three daughters; Martha A., who married J. W. Kelas; *Elizabeth, who married ^{Dr.}Wilson Stanley; and Nancy J. who married Thomas Adams. The Lockharts, young and old for three generations have been members of the Christian Church, are thoroughly devoted to its doctrine. Not one of them has ever been arrested, charged with any crime, not one has ever been put in jail for any cause. In the Civil War they stood unanimously on the side of the Union.

We trust that a greater advancement will mark their life in the future than in the past, and they will be prepared for the opportunities that shall be presented to them.

* AN INFLUENTIAL PREACHER - THOMAS LOCKHART

May 4, 1972

Elder Thomas Lockhart came to America and lived here for awhile By Helen Burgess

While it is true that some of our early influential preachers did not live in Washington County, it is also true that occasionally a preacher who went on to do great things elsewhere, lived for awhile in Washington County. Such a man was Elder Thomas Lockhart.

Sometime before the Revolutionary War, another man by the name of Thomas Lockhart came from Ireland to America and settled in Virginia. He had several sons including Thomas, John, William and Richard.

Richard was a soldier under Washington, participated in the battle of Yorktown and witnessed the surrender of Cornwallis. William, the youngest, moved with his family to North Carolina. He had seven children among them John, Stockton and Thomas, JOSEPH

Both William Lockhart and his wife died in Washington County, he in 1846 and she in 1838. Their son John came to Washington County, settled and raised a family here.

William's son Thomas, the subject of this sketch, was born in Patrick County Virginia on March 22, 1793 and moved with his parents to North Carolina when he was thirteen years old. In the summer of 1814, while on a visit to Ohio, he volunteered his services in the war of 1812 and during the following winter he was stationed at Detroit. When his services were no longer required by his country he returned to Ohio and subsequently to North Carolina.

Prior to this time he had attended common school about one year, and on his return after the war, he again went to school for three months. In this short period of time he acquired the mental discipline which he was able to turn to such excellent account later. He might have acquired a better education, but at this period of his life he expected to be a tiller of the soil, and it was the common belief in his life that education was not required for that vocation.

In the fall of 1817, he married Polly Jessup, a most zealous member of the Society of Friends, and shortly thereafter moved to Washington County, Indiana.

Here he found himself in the midst of Dependent Baptists, Friends and a few adherents of other sects. Elder Lockhart's father was brought up in the Presbyterian church and his mother was for many years a Baptist. From her, he received his first religious impressions, and as he grew up, her articles of faith were thoroughly indoctrinated of all these different beliefs causing him much anxiety in his efforts to "get religion".

While in Washington County, he attended church faithfully, especially the meetings of the Friends and the Baptists. After a long and unsuccessful conflict, he sank into the conviction that he was a "vassel of wrath fitted to destruction", and relapsed into a period of absolute skepticism.

It was not until he moved from Washington County to Plainfield, Indiana, in 1830 that he came under the influence of a Newlight preacher who influenced him to become a Bible reader. From his studies he learned to his own satisfaction the plan of salvation and he, in 1832, publicly confessed the Savior and was baptized into the Church of Christ by Elder Lewis Comer near Plainfield, and by 1833 he had entered into the work of the ministry.

Elder Lockhart's wife, Polly, a devout Quaker, was in great distress when he joined a faith other than hers, and considered he had made a grave and even fatal error. She and others of her religion made strenuous efforts to convert him even yet to the Quaker faith, but he remained steadfast and unmovable. Finally, she was "made to see the light" and was baptized and continued a faithful member of the Church of Christ until her death. In 1882, a writer said of "Aunt Polly Lockhart, "She was a good manager, and while she kept the household affairs in the best of style, she also kept an eye on the boys' farm, and more and still better, she was a noble worker in the church of God."

Lockhart's preaching field covered the counties of Marion, Hamilton, Hendricks, Clinton, Morgan and Boone Counties. Later he traveled to northern Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Iowa.

The witnessing of his success was his chief reward, for Elder Lockhart did not receive over 50 dollars per year for his services. For one congregation, he preached once a month for three years, receiving no pay except a twenty-five cent Testament. To support his family he carried on a farm and much of the labor he performed by the light of the moon and stars so he could find more leisure to preach the gospel.

There were in this section of Indiana at this time a few disciples and very few churches. Opposition was strong, yet he sowed bountifully the incorruptible seed, some of which fell upon good ground and contributed to the rich harvest that has since been gathered in these counties. A peculiar feature of his ministry was the holding of what were called "investigation meetings" at which inquiries were freely made and religious views discussed. Through these meetings public attention was directed to the word of God and rapid progress was made.

Elder Lockhart was a large, heavy-set man of great physical power and endurance. He had dark hair and a ruddy complexion, and a temperament that was highly excitable. As a public speaker, he had a powerful voice with the words sounding from his great chest like the "hollow utterances that escape from a volcano". He would throw his whole soul into his sermons and electrify his listeners.

He was for 25 years the principal preacher at Bellville, Indiana and during this time had the satisfaction of seeing every one of his nine children join the church. It has been estimated that about four thousand people have been saved by the efforts of his preaching.

Though he, himself, was unschooled, he was always a fast friend to education and provided the best he could for the education of his seven sons. All were qualified for the pursuits of agriculture and commerce; some went into the legal and medical profession, and one graduated from North Western Christian University.

Thomas Lockhart's father, William Lockhart, became a member of the Independent Baptists in his declining years and was baptized in Washington County by Elder Peter Wright about 1843.

After the death of Polly Jessup Lockhart in 1859, Elder Lockhart married Rebecca Eccles Banta of Belleville, Indiana. She died in 1871.

Caldwell

The surname of Mary, the third wife of Thomas Lockhart is not known.

Elder Thomas Lockhart died in 1885 aged 92 years, after a long and very successful career as a preacher for the Church of Christ; a career that was perhaps influenced by his years spent in Washington County.

Thomas Lockhart was BORN
JAN. 14, 1827, died November
5, 1893.

The deceased belonged to one of the oldest families in the country whose ancestors came to America before the Revolutionary War. They first settled in Virginia, thence moved to North Carolina and then to Indiana.

Thomas was the fourth of a family of eight children. His father died when he was but nine years old, and his mother when he was but 15 when he was turned out in the world to battle for himself.

December 21, 1845, he was married to Nancy L. Hostetler from which union seven children were born four of whom had preceded him to that heavenly home. His faithful wife of 48 years still survives him.

In politics he was a Democrat, invariably supporting the nominee of the party, never deviating from the rule but one time in his life. He had been a member of the Masonic order and of the Odd Fellows from which orders he held honorable dimits. In the spring of 1857, he attended medical lectures and came in the practice of medicine, forming a partnership with Dr. Harrison Collier, but his health failing him the partnership was dissolved, and in the autumn of the same year he bought a farm on Twin Creek, in Jefferson township, on which he lived until death. He, however, continued the practice of medicine and in his immediate neighborhood his practice was of no small amount.

He united with the Church of Christ at the age of 16, and it is but meet to say, that for 51 years he was a true and faithful soldier for Jesus. In 1861, he was chosen an elder of the church which responsible position he filled with credit till he died.

The funeral took place at the Walnut Grove Christian church and was conducted by Eld. Samuel H. Mitchell. Interment was at the cemetery at Salem, Indiana.

Thomas Lockhart was an upright man, a good neighbor, a tender companion, a loving father, and above all, a faithful and true Christian. He has been called to his reward above, and a host of relatives and friends mourn his departure.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,

Thomas

Revolutionary War and Lockhart came and settled in Virginia, among them and William, Richard Abington, participated in and witnessed the Swalla, William, the his family to North is sons, Thomas, was a 1812. John and Stock- sons. John moved and ton county, Ind., and to the sons—William, James, Washington—all of whom Thomas, the subject of born Jan. 14, 1827. His father was 10 years old, his mother and he was turned out into attle for himself. He united of Christ at the age of 16, and to say that for 51 years he was a true soldier for Jesus. Thirty- ago he was chosen an elder of the which responsible position he filled till he was called to his reward by ar Savior. In politics he was a life-long erant. He had been a member of both Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Masons, from which orders he held honorable dimits. He had been a great sufferer, not having seen a well day since the spring of 1857. In the spring of 1857 he attended medical lectures, then formed a copartnership Dr. Hanson Collier, but his health became impaired that the partnership was dissolved though he did more or less practice during the remainder of his life. In the fall of 1857 he bought and settled on a farm on Twin Creek, on which he lived until his death. December 21, 1845, he was married to Nancy L. Hostetler, daughter of Elder Joseph Hostetler, from which union seven children were born, four daughters and three sons. four of these children preceded him to that ter land. His faithful wife of 48 years, two daughters, one son and his only remaining sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley and a host of relatives mourn his loss. It may be said that he fell like a ripe sheaf, ready for the harvest. He died as he lived, a faithful Christian, in the hope of immortality. It may further be said that the church of Christ has lost a strong support in the death of brother Lockhart, for he was complete in Christ—always ready to forward the cause of his blessed Savior by his might and means. The county has lost a good and true citizen. The funeral took place at Frowville church November 28, 1893, conducted by S. H. Mitchell, after which his remains were interred in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Essay on Man.

Man who is born of woman is small potato and few in the hill. He riseth up to-day and flourisheth like a rag-weed; to-morrow or the day after the undertaker hath him in the ice box. He goeth out in the morning warbling like a lark and is knocked out in the first round in two seconds. In the midst of life he is in debt, and the tax collector pursueth him wherover he goeth. The banister of his life is full of splinters, and he slideth down it with considerable rapidity. He walketh into the bright sunlight to absorb the ozone, and meeteth the banker with a tight draft for $275. He cometh forth at eventide and meeteth the wheelbarrow on his path, and it smiteth him to

SUICIDE.

Curt Ewing, who has been conducting a hotel in the West End for two or three years, committed suicide in his room Wednesday morning by sending a bullet into his brain. Business depression and consequent despondency was the direct cause of the rash deed. He had been in poor health for some time, and no doubt his weak physical condition caused his mind to give way under the severe strains of business cares and put into his weakened brain the horrible thought of self-destruction.

The deed was committed about 8 o'clock, while the victim was lying in bed. He usually kept a revolver, a Smith & Wesson 38 calibre, under his pillow at night, and with that weapon ended his life.

His little son was in bed with him at the time and was the only witness of the fatal act which robbed a home of a kind husband and father.

The ball entered at the right temple and crashed through the brain, death resulting instantly. The little boy ran to his mother and told her that his "papa was all covered with blood." She hastily entered the room and then learned the horrible truth.

The deceased was about 33 years of age, and leaves a wife and two children.

The coroner was summoned and rendered a verdict in accordance with the above facts.—Brownstown Banner.

ied at Walnut Hill Yesterday.

A startling message from Des Moines, Iowa, received here on Tuesday morning conveyed the intelligence that Geo. W. Lockhart had been accidentally killed near that city. Further details of the tragic event revealed the fact that he had been injured by falling from a load of hay. The accident occurred about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon and death resulted about three hours later.

It seems that Mr. Lockhart since his removal to Des Moines last fall had been running a small dairy, and was engaged in hauling feed for his cows. One wheel of the wagon suddenly dropped into a chuck hole in the road, and Mr. Lockhart was thrown to the ground striking on his head. The blow rendered him unconscious but he regained consciousness for a brief time and recognized his son, Will, and his wife. He soon became unconscious, and was hurried to a hospital where he was operated on, but failed to survive the operation.

The body was prepared for shipment to Kingman, and arrived here Wednesday evening accompanied by Mrs. Lockhart, his son, Rev. Wm. J. Lockhart, and daughter, Olive. The body was taken to the home of his niece, Mrs. N. H. Kilmer.

The funeral was held from the Christian church yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in charge of Rev. R. C. Leonard. Following the address by Rev. Leonard, the son of the deceased, Rev. Wm. J. Lockhart, pronounced a most touching and beautiful eulogy over the remains of his departed father. Interment was in Walnut Hill Cemetery.

The deceased was a typical pioneer and Kansas community builder, having spent the 33 years of his life since coming to this state in this county.

settling his neat Varner and near removing to the farm just north of the city. The splendid character of the man, his long residence here and the tragic circumstances of his death all combine to impress upon the community the great loss it has sustained in the passing of this man. The great audience which gathered to pay their last respects to the departed, the profusion of flowers and the beautiful tributes of those who were close to him in life all attested the place which he held in the community and in the hearts and lives of his fellow men. The following obituary was handed us for publication:

George W. Lockhart was born May 8, 1847, in Washington Co., Ind., and died in Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 28, 1916. He was left an orphan at a very early age and his boyhood days were spent amidst hardships and difficulties that would have turned many a boy the wrong way, but George from childhood had a high sense of honor and early won the esteem of his Indiana neighbors. At the age of sixteen he enlisted in the U. S. army in 1863 and served to the end of the Civil War taking part in many of the great events of the war including the great battle at Nashville. Returning to Campbellsburg, Ind., after the war he started to night school, working by day until he was fitted for a public school teacher.

On April 11, 1872, he married Hannah Caroline Brown. In the early years of their married life they lived in Indiana where Lela, the wife of Rev. G. A. Brown of Caldwell, was born. A short time they spent in Illinois where their only son, Rev. Wm. J. Lockhart, was born. In March, 1878 they emigrated to Kansas settling on a claim in Kingman county near Varner. Born in Kansas to complete the family all of whom were present at the funeral were Ruby, the wife of Lon Garrison, and Olive.

With the exception of three years, "Uncle George," as he had in recent years come to be called by most of his friends, had spent the past thirty eight years in Kingman county. During this time he contributed his best to help transform the bleak unsettled prairie which greeted the early comers to the prosperous well settled community the present generation enjoys.

His was not a showy or spectacular life but like the under current in a great stream his life touched the deep and better things of life, and always moved in the right direction.

His first and constant interest was in the church. He was a charter member of the Kingman Christian Church and served during all he years as an officer and for many years as treasurer of the church. His highest joy was found in the church life and was known more in his relationship to the church than in his business or any other relationship in the community.

He was always greatly concerned in civic affairs and had a constant interest in questions affecting the political life of the country. Only the day before his death, after carefully studying the present foreign situation he remarked earnestly to his son, "Will, in this crisis, I think the President is right, and I am going to stand by the President."

He was a friend of everyone and his geniality and kindly interest in people won him friends wherever he went. He never met anyone, stranger or friend, without a kindly greeting.

He was always interested in education, and desired his children to have the best preparation for life. Only last fall he moved to Des Moines, to spend one year to be near Olive in college, expecting to return to the old home this coming fall. He always had a great interest in his home and family and leaves to them, not a fortune in worldly goods, but the great legacy of an honorable, well lived life, and a splendidly rounded out Christian character. "He is not dead but liveth," and his life and influence goes on.

MOTHER OF MRS. H. R. NOE MARKS ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. Mary Robertson, of Ewing, mother of Mrs. H. R. Noe, of this city, observed her eighty-second birthday anniversary Sunday at her home where a dinner was arranged in her honor at noon.

Mrs. Robertson was born in Wisconsin, March 26, 1857. Her father was a traveling physician and went to Wisconsin to take over a government land grant. Later he removed his family to Somerset, Ohio, and from there to Marietta, O., setting up a practice in each community.

Mrs. Robertson was one of a family of six daughters. Of that group only one sister survives. She is Mrs. Tom Wilkins, of Campbellsburg.

Shortly after her father's death Mrs. Robertson's mother moved her family to Campbellsburg, Ind., where they resided for many years. Following Mrs. Robertson's marriage in 1879 she moved with her husband to Jackson county where she has lived all her married life. Mr. Robertson died in 1919.

Mrs. Robertson is the mother of eight children: F. S. Robertson and Miss Edna Robertson, at home; Mrs. H. R. Cross, of Winchester, Ind.; Roy Robertson, of Muncie; Lynn Robertson, of Brownstown; Dr. Ray B. Robertson, of Indianapolis; Mrs. H. R. Noe, of this city; and Wayne Robertson, of Albuquerque, N. Mex.

She also has thirteen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Robertson was one of the early school teachers in this community, teaching five years in Washington county. She is a member of the Brownstown Christian Church and until recent years was active in that congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. Noe and family and Dr. and Mrs. Ray B. Robertson and family were guests at the anniversary dinner.
