FRANK MILHOUS FARM
BIRTHPLACE
HANNAH MILHOUS NIXON

Hannah Milhous was born March 7, 1885 in the home of her parents, Frank and Almira Burdg Milhous, on this farm in Bigger township, Jennings County, in southeastern Indiana. She was the third daughter of the couple.

The white frame house of typical Victorian architecture, was graced by a front porch liberally trimmed with fancy wood work and shaded by pine and maple trees. A neat, white picket fence marked the front yard. A dinner bell hung high on a pole in the back yard, and two attractive small buildings trimmed with "carpenter's lace" stood to the east of the house.

Here, Hannah and her brothers and sisters thrilled to the delicate flowers and soft green of spring. On summer days, they walked barefoot down the dusty lane to the county road, fished with pin hooks in the stream at the foot of the hill, gathered wild berries and listened to ship-poor-wills calling at evening.

Each season brought special joys. October mornings dawned with a soft haze which yielded to golden sunlight and brilliant blue skies. Maples, oaks, beeches, donned their yellow and scarlet hues and rosy sassafrass leaves brightened the roadside. Great orange pumpkins brightened fields of brown cornstalks. The sweet aroma of apple butter bubbling in an iron kettle in the yard were familiar to the children. Corn husking bees were a form of autumn fun.

Life on the farm was busy and always with a spiritual overtone. The Milhous families all were devout Quakers.

When they attended Hopewell Meeting, several two horse rigs were used. One can imagine them gingerly picking their way down the steep hill in front of the house after a winter snow.

Franklin Milhous, the eldest son of Joshua and Elizabeth Milhous, was born in Colerain, Ohio. He was six years of age when the family moved to Indiana.

He helped his father at the Sycamore Valley Tree Nursery, attended Moores Hill College and then taught during the winter months for several years in elementary schools of eastern Jennings County.

On August 14, 1872, he married Sarah Emily Armstrong who bore him three children. She and baby daughter, Emily, are buried in Hopewell cemetery.

April 16, 1879, he married Almira Park Burdg. At this, his tree farm which adjoined his father's nursery, seven children were born.

When Frank Milhous built his house of generous proportions, he was wise, for in 1879, when the family moved to California it numbered: Frank and Almira with children Martha, Edith, Hannah, Griffith William, Mary Alice (these two were children of his first wife Sarah) Rose Olive, Elizabeth, Ezra Charles and Jane Burdg Milhous.

The home burned to the ground December 26, 1968.

Joshua V. Milhous was born in Belmont County, Ohio, December 31, 1820. Elizabeth Price Griffith was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania April 28, 1827. They were married in Washington County, Pa. in 1847.

Franklin, the father of Hannah Milhous Nixon, was born in Ohio. He was the eldest of their eight children.

They moved to Jennings County, Indiana, March 23, 1854. That year, they started working to organize a Quaker Meeting close to their new home. Elizabeth was a Quaker minister.

Joshua built a log cabin on the east bank of Rush Branch in Bigger township.

When he was ready to build a more permanent home, a Len Stanley operated a steam-powered mill at which lumber was prepared for the house one sees today.

Joshua industriously developed the Sycamore Valley Tree Nursery on this farm. Franklin and brother Griffith worked with him.

Spring was an understandably busy time as young trees were dug for delivery to customers and tiny seedlings were carefully nurtured along in delicate growth.

Many customers drove to the farm to select stock while others received theirs at home.

Joshua Milhous built a solid reputation as a superior nurseryman and an honest businessman.

Visitors often pondered, "How can this man make fruit trees grow so well?". The Sycamore stock was guaranteed sure to grow and customers eagerly awaited each season's offering. Many trees were imported and grafts made with them. Apples included Northern Spy, Russets, Ben Davis, Delicious, Rambo, Roman Beauty, Maiden Blush, Transparents and Grimes Golden.

Of course, sweet cider was enjoyed by everyone. One old Jennings countian recalled, however, that "Josh" would refuse hard cider if ever it were offered.

Although time has erased the flourishing orchards of the 133 acres of Milhous farms, a few original trees remain.

Here, at the Joshua house, giant pine trees along the lane leading to the house undoubtedly were planted by him. The one beautiful, enormous cypress in the yard surely was one he had imported and planted, for these are not native to southern Indiana.

The exterior of the house is believed to look as it did when Joshua and Elizabeth Milhous lived there. Any changes inside are said to have been made in keeping with the old style of decor.

Hopewell Cemetery, located southwest of Butlerville, Indiana often was known as the Friends Burying Ground.

During its long history, many Quakers of the Campbell and Bigger township community were laid to rest beneath its stately trees.

Here lies the body of Joshua V. Milhous, grandfather of Hannah Milhous Nixon. Other relatives lie nearby, but Elizabeth Price Griffith Milhous, his beloved wife, died and is buried in California.

It is fitting that the grave of Joshua be in this cemetery. It was across from here that Hopewell Friends Meetinghouse was located. There, Elizabeth Milhous was the minister.

While Grove Monthly Meeting in Northeastern Jennings County had been set off in 1858 from Sand Creek Monthly Meeting in Southeastern Bartholomew County, their meetinghouse had not been built until 1864. It sufficed for awhile, but the Quaker community grew rapidly and, in 1868, the Hopewell Meeting was created under the Grove Monthly Meeting. It was an 'indulged meeting' for worship but not for inter-congregational control.

Mrs. Joshua Milhous was greatly responsible for the success of Hopewell. Although other Meetings adopted a freer worship and were named Gurneyites, Hopewell does not seem to have abandoned silent worship in favor of preaching. It was said the continuity of Elizabeth Milhous' ministry stabilized the congregation. She moved to California with her son Franklin and his family in 1897, but the momentum of Hopewell persisted. In 1903 Grove Meeting was laid down for Hopewell and in 1913, because the Friends migration to California had become so great, Hopewell was discontinued.

The peace and silence of a Hopewell Meeting yet pervade the area and the small Hopewell cemetery. Although Elizabeth Milhous rests in California, her spirit seems to linger here near the grave of her husband.
