

Rev. Samuel C. Mitchell
^{his} Ancestors And Descendants

"But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Tradition has it that sometime in the eighteenth century the founder of the Mitchell family came to America, from Ireland, finally settling in Tennessee. Robert and Esther his wife, the sons of this which Ancestors were the parents of five daughters and three sons:

Esther Mitchell, who served in the war of 1812 and died in Franklin County, Illinois, in 1859, Rev. Robert F. Mitchell, who died at Lexington, Tennessee, in 1879, Rev. Samuel Calhoun Mitchell, born April 20, 1806 and died August 6, 1862, James Mitchell (postmaster) died in Lexington County Tennessee, in 1869, Elizabeth Mitchell (Stacyfield) died in Franklin County Illinois, Sarah Mitchell (Officer) died in Masonsain, Illinois, Bethany Mitchell died in Lafayette County, Missouri.

Thomas Davis was born in Rowan County North Carolina, September 15, 1766. In 1791, he married Mary Parker, who was the daughter of Dr. Parker who served in the Revolutionary War and died in Surry County, North Carolina. Thomas and Mary Parker Davis were the parents of five sons and three daughters; Evan Davis who settled in Hendricks County Indiana in 1826, William, Thomas, and John David (Davis?), who lived and died in Tennessee, Parker who died in infancy, Nancy, Mary (Polly) who married Rev. Samuel Calhoun Mitchell, and Lily Davis (Gileland). Thomas and Mary Parker Davis moved from Surry County, North Carolina, to Lexington County Tennessee, in 1822.

Mary, or Polly as she was called, was twice married and twice widowed before she married Samuel Calhoun Mitchell. She had two children by three former marriages; Ambrose Gregory, who died in 1838 at the age of 18, and Adeline Booth, daughter of the second marriage, married John Bohannon and lived to a good old age and is buried at Madison, Nebraska.

Samuel C. Mitchell and his wife, Polly, established their first home at Hillham, Tennessee. Here two children were born; William Columbus and Melissa Columbia. In 1833 they moved to Hendicks County, Indiana, to be away from slavery, to which they were much opposed. They cleared land and built a home west of Centre Valley in the southeast part of Liberty Township and at this time (1833) this commodious four room house is still occupied. Here James Livingston, Samuel Thomas, Mary Ann, Evan Howard, and Peter Elving were born.

About 1842, they moved to a home on the National Road south of the present town of Clayton and two miles west of Bellville. This move was made in order to be nearer church and school. Being an ordained minister of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, much of his time was spent away from home and his capable wife, with the help of the sons, tilled the land. Only God can know the work and sacrifice of his ministry in the churches of his day. One who knew him well said, "He was largely self educated but in the space of his preaching he was noted for his fervid, forceful and eloquent discourses, and his unwavering faith in God and his promises." He believed in education and sent his children to the academies and schools of that day. And as his children went to distant committees and founded homes of their homes own, they lived up to the training of their parents and in their turn became strong in their faith in and support of their homes, the church, and the schools.

In September 1855, the death of the wife and mother (aged 51 years, 11 months, and 10 days) took up the home in Hendricks County. Samuel C. Mitchell then moved to Carroll County, Indiana, where he later married Mrs. Robinson. He died at his home near Camden in 1862 and his body was moved to the Claytons cemetery where it rests beside the mother of his children and near his eldest and youngest sons, Mary A. Mitchell Landreem is buried at Camden, Indiana, James L., Samuel J., Evan Howard H., and Melia Mitchell, Harry are buried at Sidney, Iowa.
