NOTE:

This is an index of alumni of Charlton High School for the years 1935 through 1939, as listed in their 1940 yearbook. This may not be a comprehensive listing of all of the graduates of Charlton High School during this time period.

ABOUT THIS INSTITUTION:

The Indiana Boys' School was a state correctional institution established in Plainfield, Indiana in 1867 to reform male juvenile offenders through education and vocational training. Originally known as the "Indiana House of Refuge for Juvenile Offenders," its name was later changed to the Indiana Reform School for Boys and then the Indiana Boys' School. Judges from courts across Indiana could commit boys to the school if they had been charged with a crime or with being delinquent. In more recent times, the institution was called the Plainfield Juvenile Correctional Facility.

The Indiana Boys' School had its own high school, Charlton High School, which followed all the requirements of an Indiana public high school.

The 1940 yearbook for Charlton High School is in the Archives collection of Plainfield-Guilford Township Public Library.

The Indiana State Archives has the records of the Indiana Boys' School; they have an online database of its inmates which covers the years 1867-1937.
