NOTE:

This is an index of graduates of Charlton High School for 1925-1927, as listed in its 1925, 1926 and 1927 commencement programs. This is not a comprehensive listing of all of the inmates at the Indiana Boys' School in this time period, only those who graduated from its high school.

ABOUT THIS INSTITUTION:

The Indiana Boys' School was a state correctional institution established in Plainfield, Indiana in 1867 to reform male juvenile offenders through education and vocational training. Originally known as the "Indiana House of Refuge for Juvenile Offenders," its name was later changed to the Indiana Reform School for Boys and then the Indiana Boys' School. Judges from courts across Indiana could commit boys to the school if they had been charged with a crime or with being delinquent. In more recent times, the institution was called the Plainfield Juvenile Correctional Facility.

The Indiana Boys' School had its own high school, Charlton High School, which followed all the requirements of an Indiana public high school.

The 1925, 1926 and 1927 commencement programs for Charlton High School are in the Archives collection of Plainfield-Guilford Township Public Library.

The Indiana State Archives has the records of the Indiana Boys' School; they have an online database of its inmates which covers the years 1867-1937.
