Presenting . . .

A Colorful Year

A Colorful Year

This was a colorful year at Plainfield High School. Every day has proved excitingly fun and different to each student. The many events and activities in which we engage complete and make more interesting our daily lives.

Throughout the year our academic life has been emphasized. Short stubby pencils, worn-out notebooks, half-gone erasers, dog-eared textbooks--all these are proof of the many hours spent toiling over lessons.

Fads and fashions were also part of our colorful year. Pizza was still "the most" for parties, bright red leotards or long socks were "the thing" to be worn with skirts or bermudas, and the latest fashions of greens, browns, and blues in trousers were in the wardrobe of nearly every high school boy.

The traditional senior cords were brighter than ever before. Weiner roasts and dances became memorable highlights in our lives.

All in all, it was a colorful year.

(Left) Chatting with one another as they stroll to school, Karen O'Brien, Diane Crews, Larry Wright, and Ed Wade enjoy the beauty of a colorful fall morning.

A year old,

our school has a colorful personality

While waiting in the lobby for the shuttlebus which will take them to their classes in the junior high school, Tom Lampert and Jim Hardin compare answers while Judy Castleman, Mary Jo Watson, and Linda Walls talk away the time.

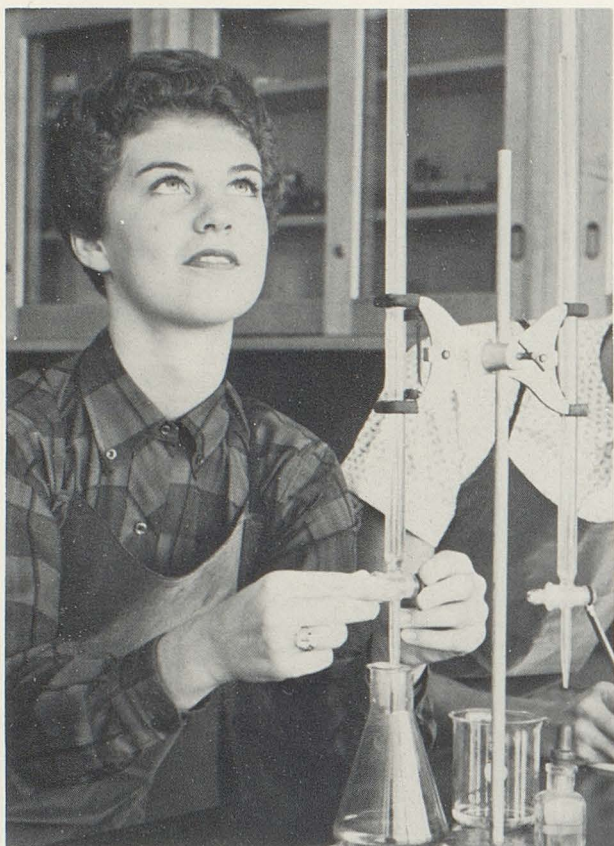

The 1959-60 school year brought a beginning day for all of us--a beginning of high school life for the sophomores, a beginning of being cherished upperclassmen for the juniors, and a beginning of the last year for the seniors. As we entered the doors of the school once again, we realized what a colorful personality our nearly new school had developed.

We were glad to get back to its long, long hallway, its bright, busy classrooms, and its general "this-is-home" atmosphere. We had missed the crowded hallway, the long drinking fountain line, the locker chats, the lunch line, and the laughter of happy people. But now it is ours once again, for the halls are thronged with happy, busy students.

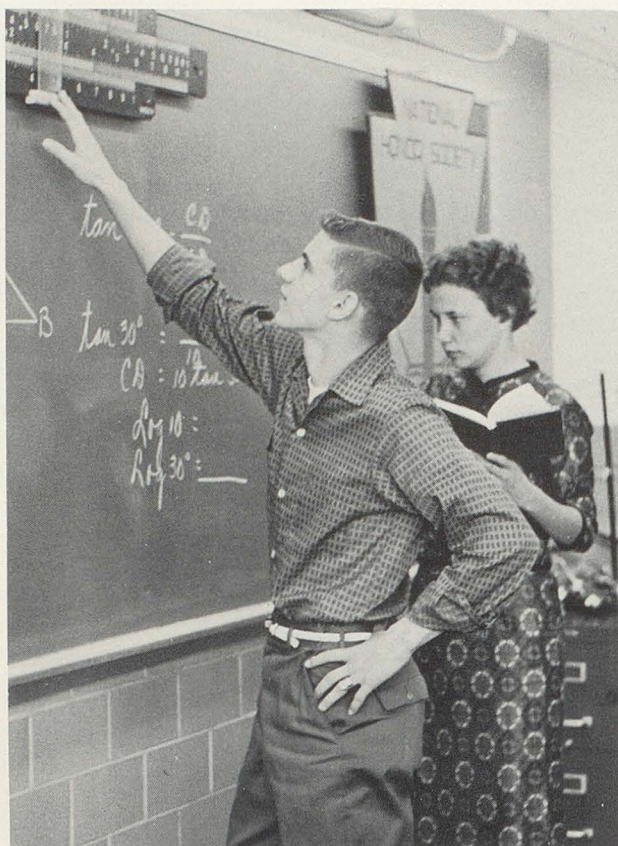

Arriving on the early bus, two of our nearly four hundred students enter the building to wait patiently for the class bell.

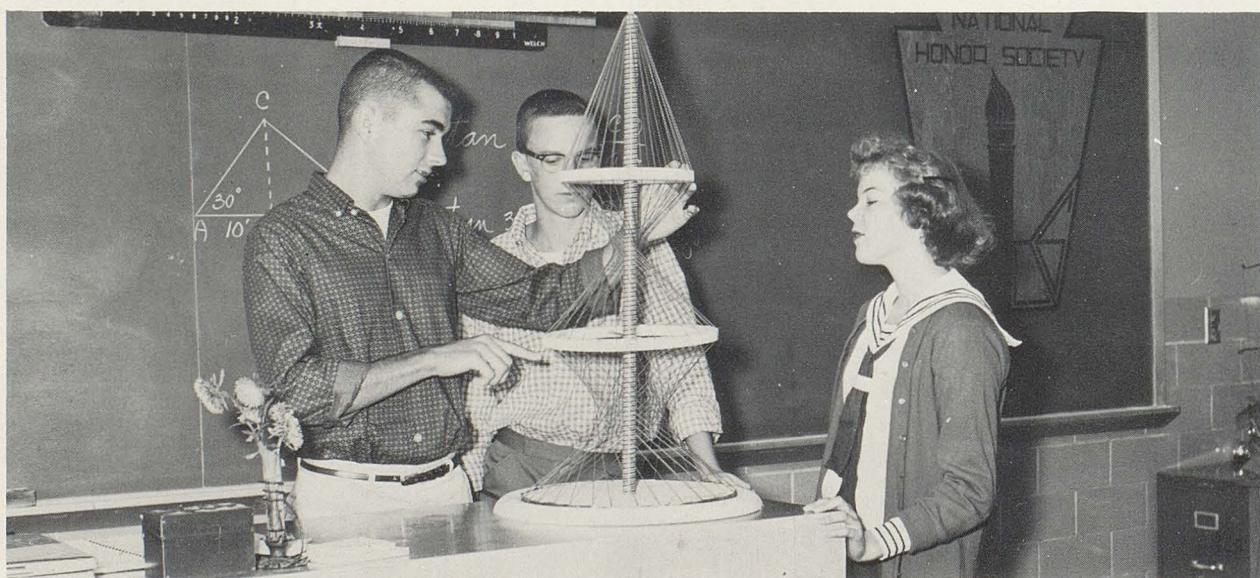

Organized math and science courses prepare

Susie Bolen is performing a chemistry experiment in titration in which the strength of an acid or a base may be determined.

Rosalie Hutchens works a solid geometry problem at the board as Larry Svendsen uses the slide rule to find the answer.

young scientists for the Atomic space age

Our science and math courses provide students with an adequate background for both college and a career after high school. Although interest in these courses has always run high, this year saw more students than ever enrolled in these classes.

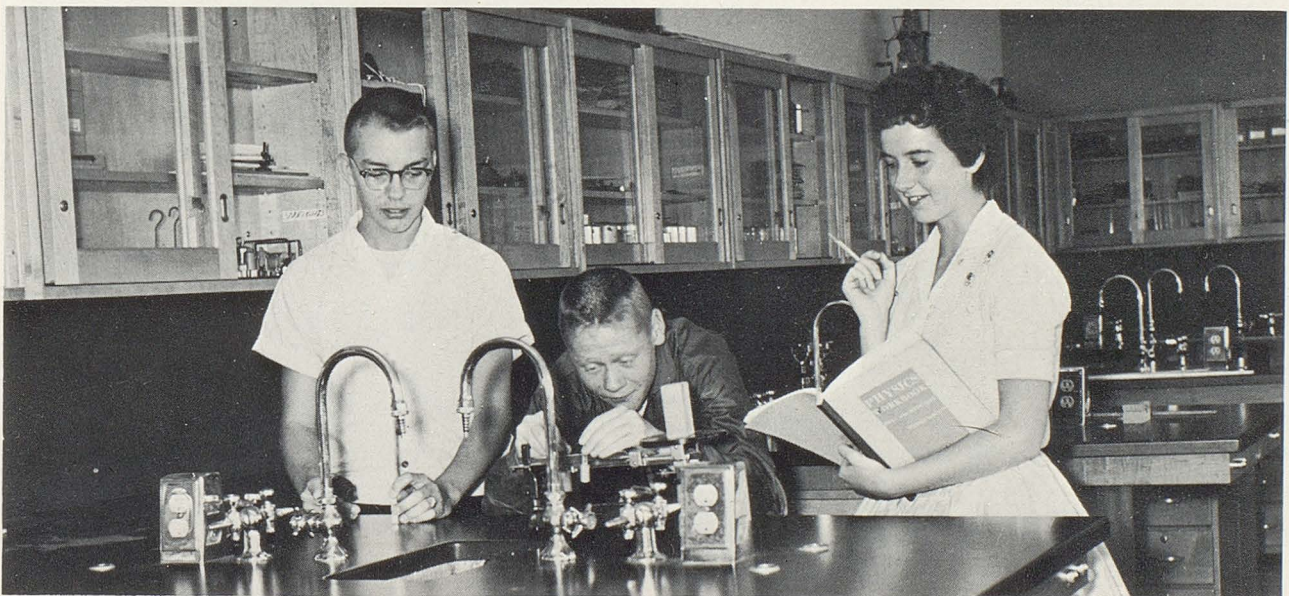

Projects in plane geometry occupied the sophomores throughout the year. Juniors have been busily engaged in solving the problems of Algebra II and in testing the laws of physics. Chemistry, solid geometry, college algebra, and trigonometry presented the seniors with new and puzzling problems.

Many students have found new interests during classes and have carried these interests over into hobbies and projects. Physics and chemistry especially added new fields of investigation. New careers in these fields opened up to some of our students, and many have decided to choose a vocation from these areas.

Pages of calculations, worn-out slide rules, odors drifting out of the chemistry lab, physics experiments in progress—all these are signs of an active, interesting year for our science and math students.

Don Templeton puts the finishing touches on his scale model house, which will be handed in as his fifth six weeks project in his geometry class.

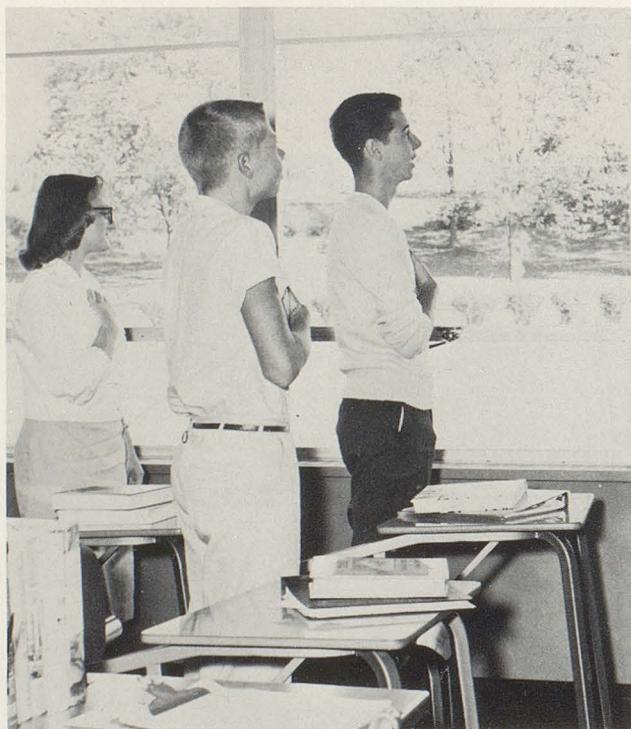

One of the first units studied in physics classes is the metric system of weights. Here, Ronnie Gribble and David Davis weigh geometric blocks of wood while Vicki Johnston records the weights.

Claudia Truax's speech in this Spanish play strikes Alice Newlin, Dennis Abell, and Mike Slaughter, other members of the cast, as being very funny.

Students study languages for world understanding

Latin students, Frances Babb, John Bauer, and Roger Lazier, say the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag in the ancient language they study in their Latin II class.

Because the importance of friendly cultural relations with other countries is increasing every day, it will be of great value for American citizens to understand and be able to speak a foreign language. Through courses in Spanish and Latin, Plainfield students will be able to help better friendships between nations.

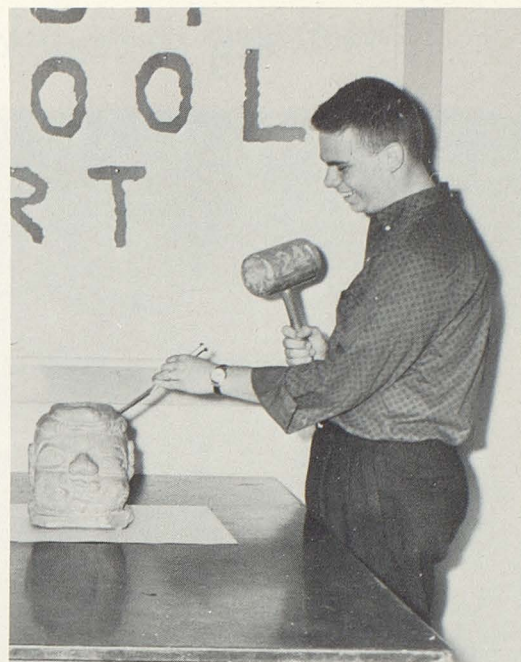

By studying Spanish, students learn about the daily life as well as the language of our Latin American neighbors, creating a new interest in the affairs of Spain, Mexico, and South America.

Those students who take Latin have a better understanding of the modern world through a study of the language, customs, and people of Ancient Rome.

By taking courses in foreign languages, today's students will be able to take their places in the future to help increase friendly international relations.

Sidney and Karen Jenkel practice on their instruments, a baritone saxophone and a clarinet, in preparation for band practice, which is one period each day.

One of the many projects of the art department during the year is shaping a salt block. Here Castyle Fouts works on a clown's head.

Music and art pupils learn to appreciate culture

During a scene in the chorus musical, "The Southern Belle", Joe Baldwin and Mike Slaughter catch Judy Misner as she falls after the "ghost" pulls the age-old joke of pulling a chair out from under her. The musical was written and produced by the students.

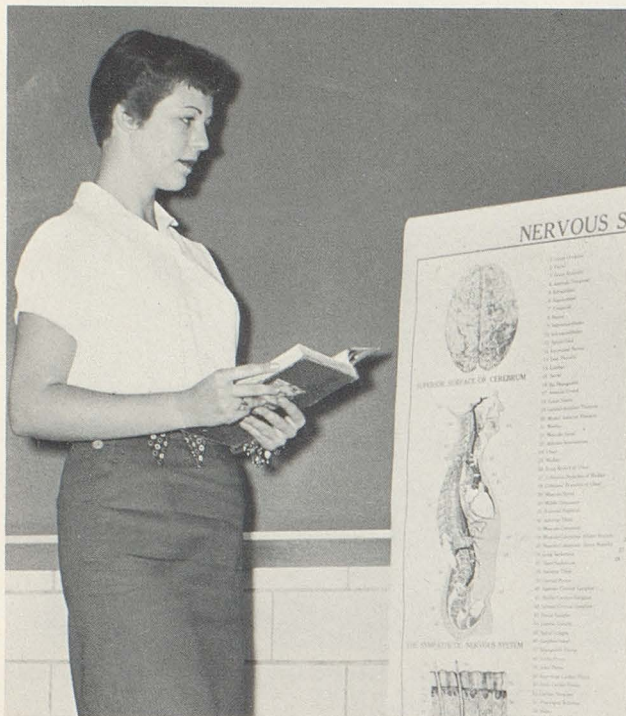

Great symphonies, famous works of art, operas and anthems all form a part of the culture of our world. Pupils become acquainted with these forms of culture through their classes in chorus, band and art.

Chorus students become familiar with many types of vocal music--hymns, anthems, carols, folk songs, spirituals, and musical plays. Ensemble members also learn vocal music although they are not part of the chorus.

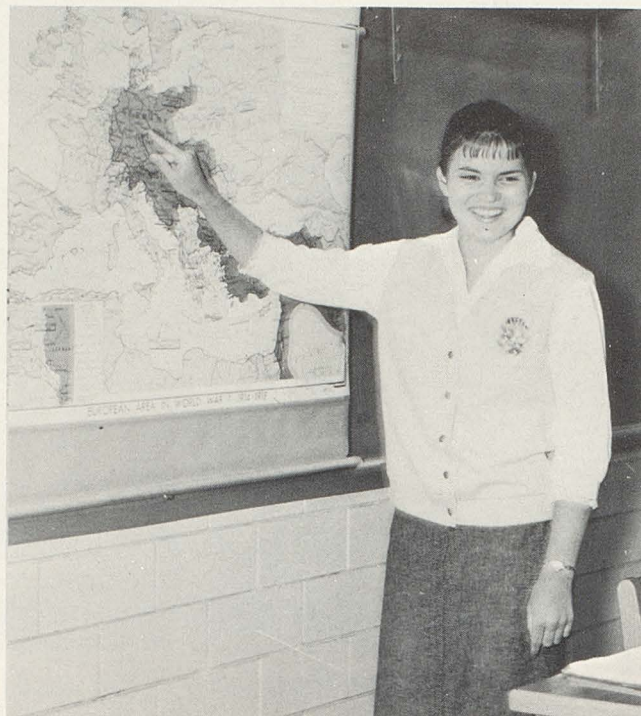

Instrumental music is the interest of pupils in daily band classes. Concert music, marches, popular music, and semi-classical music are several of the forms of music learned in band.

Students of art create many things during the year. Painting, sketching with charcoal, working with clay and shaping salt blocks are just a few of their activities.

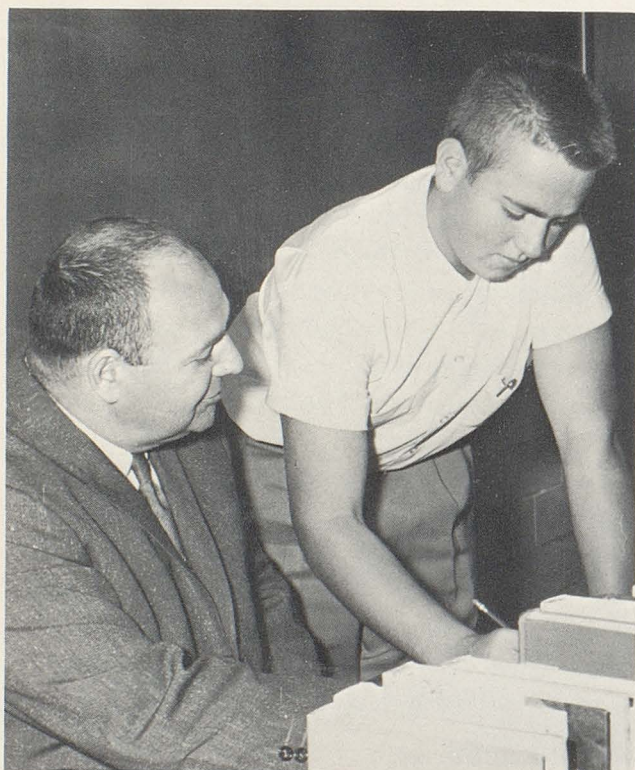

History students apply the past to the present

Sandy Bayliff studies a chart on the nervous system to supplement the information given in her text for a report to give in her psychology class.

Even though history classes are usually serious, Janice Praay, a world history student, proves that studying about the Germans can bring laughs along with the hard work.

Mr. Albright, government and economics teacher, shows Wally Steele how to mark a ballot which was used in the town election in the fall.

Social studies is a major field of interest to many of our students. Each year finds a large number enrolled in all the social studies courses.

The history courses, World History for sophomores and American History for juniors, present a view of past events in relation to current happenings to help students gain a better understanding of the world situation.

Through taking Government and Economics, seniors gain a knowledge of how our nation functions and how it regulates its economy. State, county, and local government is also studied in these classes.

Psychology helps students understand human behaviors, mental health, and problems of adjustment to life. Thus the field of social studies presents a picture from the earliest happenings in history down to events and problems of modern man.

Communication is the task of the English department

Carolyn Jennings fills out envelopes for pages of the yearbook after Sarah Ingram draws each page on its own special form. Both girls are members of the journalism class.

In high school life communication with one another is of great importance. Conversations, letters, oral reports, essay tests, and answering oral questions in class are part of classroom work.

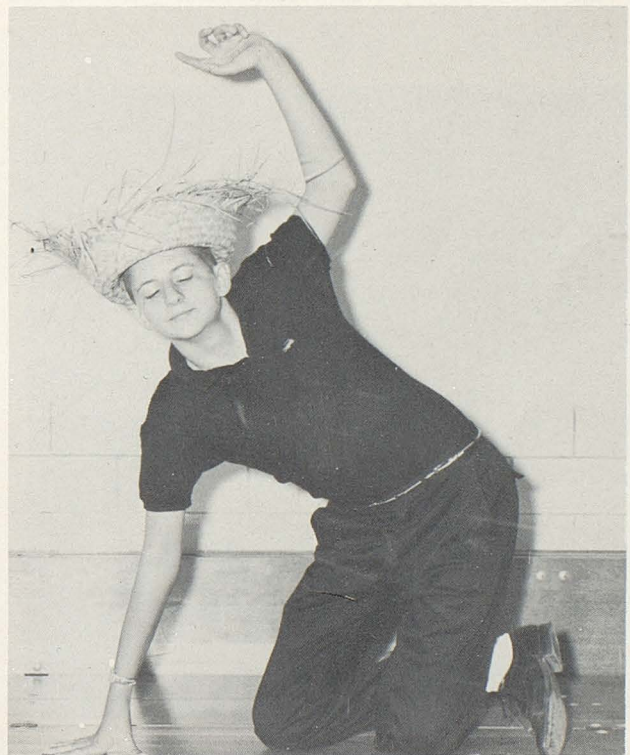

In order for students to speak and write fluently, English classes are conducted for three years of high school. Composition is offered to seniors to help them increase their writing skill.

Courses in literature are also taught to acquaint students with literary works.

In speech classes, students get valuable practice in developing a good speaking voice and in learning the art of conversation.

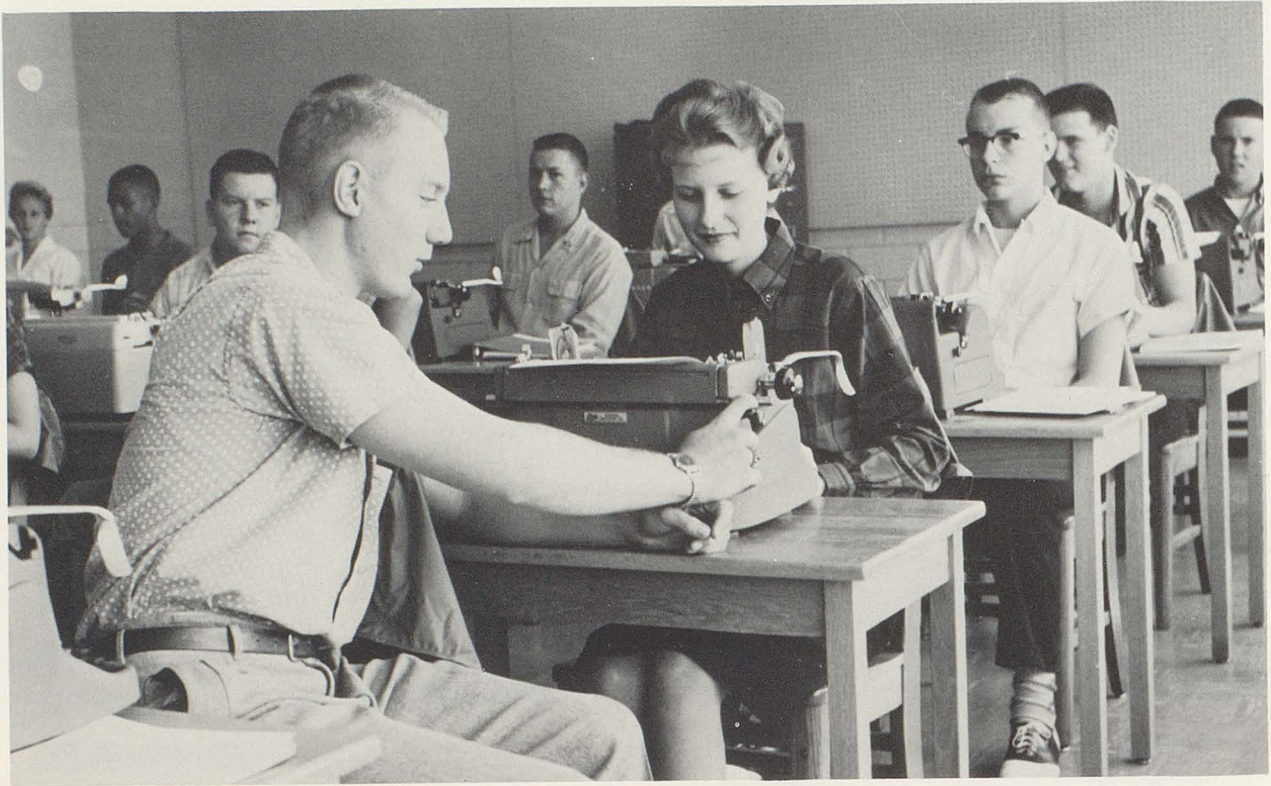

Communication through newspapers is the field of English studied by journalism students, whose major contribution to school life is the Quaker Shaker and Silhouettes.

Thus Plainfield's English department covers every type of communication.

Doing a Mexican dance as part of a pantomime given in a speech class is Terry VanWinkle.

Commercial courses prepare students for jobs

Explaining to Betty Andrews how to change her typewriter ribbon is Bill Wise, a fellow Typing I classmate. The twenty-eight typewriters in this room serve approximately eighty-eight typists.

An adding machine and a Monroe calculator are machines used by Sandy Schlegel and Mary Ann McIndoo in office machines class.

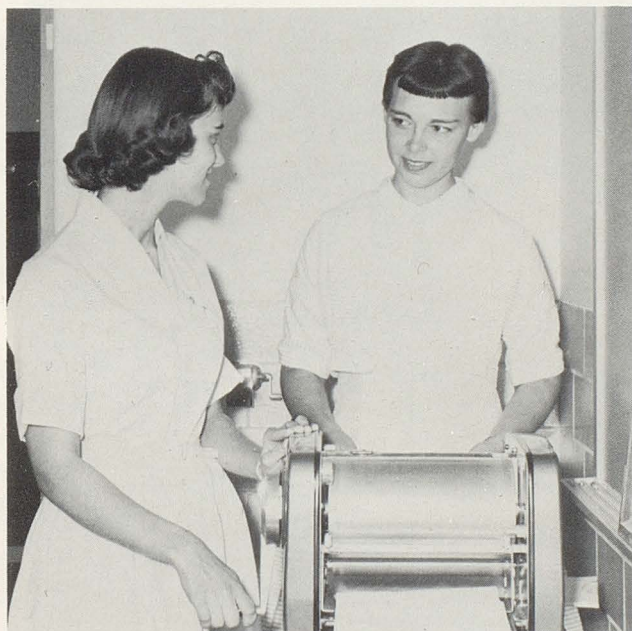

Jane Stamper adds figures on one of the adding machines available for use to any bookkeeping student.

both during high school and after graduation

Susie Baldwin and Carol Young receive help from Miss Durr while using stencil equipment in an office machines class.

Using the ditto machine are advanced typists, Faith Friel and Jo Ann Gosnell. This machine is used by teachers and students to run off tests, programs, and announcements for the school.

The commercial department at P.H.S. is growing rapidly. Perhaps it is because more students are entering the field of business and perhaps it is because our daily lives call for this training more now.

Typing and shorthand are becoming a "must" in our everyday lives. Teaching these courses for personal use, for school, and for future jobs is the objective of these classes.

Office Machines courses are designed to acquaint commercial students with equipment they will probably use "on the job."

Business, bookkeeping and sales classes are planned to be beneficial to any student preparing to enter the field of business. Here, would-be business men and women learn general office practices, techniques, and manners.

Although the commercial department is specialized, each year more students are enrolling in these courses. The future will see great growth in this department.

"U) L Shorthand is fun (that's what it says) and practical, too," says Bonnie Buis, one of sixty-three shorthand students.

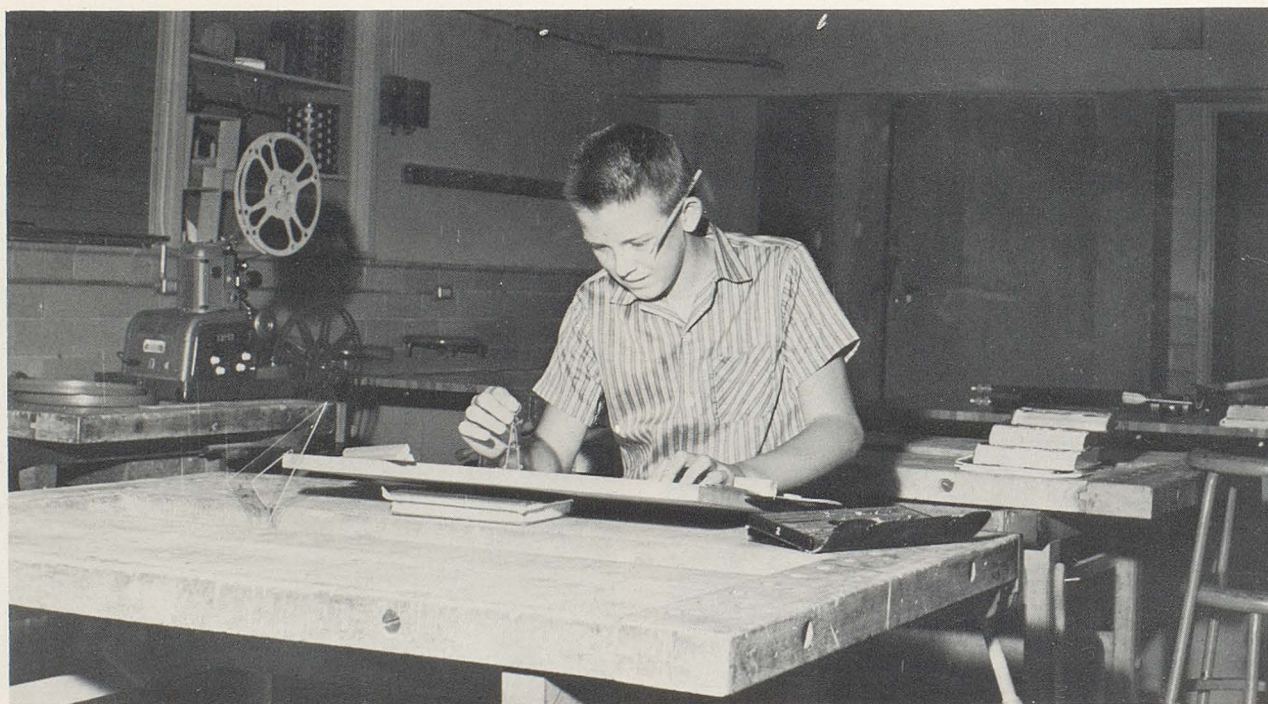

Practical experience is offered by vocational Martha Jones pins on a pattern for a skirt she is making for herself in her Homemaking class.

Stirring the chocolate at a stove in the Home Ec. kitchens is Dorothy Barnaby. Beside her, Carolyn Atkinson heats the milk for the cocoa they are making.

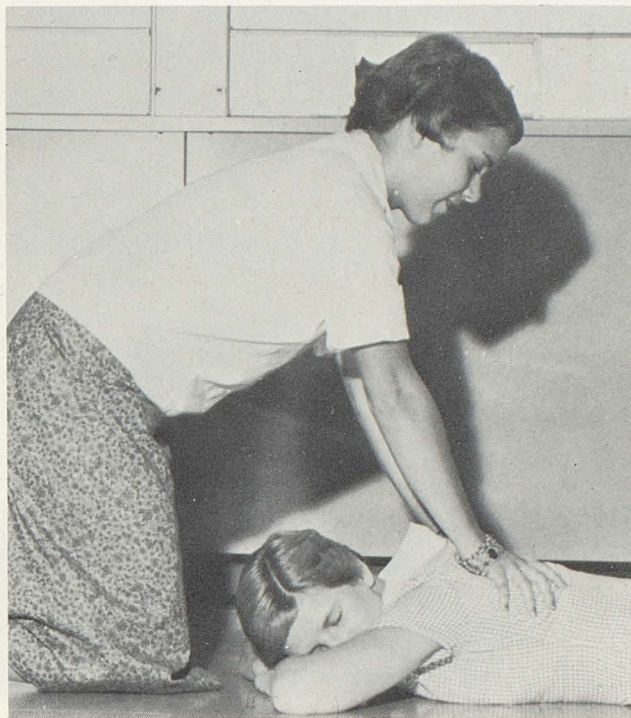

Allan Simmonds, student in a drafting class, draws house plans on his drafting board in a shop class.

subjects, driver's education, and health classes

During one of their classes in driver's education, Todd Raper and Gordon Castetter patiently explain to Judy O'Conner what makes a car go.

Rosemary Wooley acts as Kathy Zeigler's victim in health class as the girls practice the back-pressure-arm-lift method of artificial respiration.

The vocational department has a complete curriculum.

In home economics girls, or boys, too, if they wish, learn to perfect the skills of sewing, cooking, child care, home nursing, and interior decorating. In agriculture classes practical knowledge about farming is learned and is frequently practiced. Shop classes give boys a chance to study about drawing, making, and assembling articles.

Health and safety classes are required, but may be substituted by two years in home economics. They are valuable for giving students knowledge or procedures to follow in treating everything from the common flu to more serious accidents.

Driver's education classes are conducted to help improve the safety conditions on our nation's highways by training alert, watchful, and safe drivers.

All these subjects offer practical experience while learning specific skills.

Miss Snider, driver's education instructor, shows Diana Heald the proper way to shift gears.

Vice-Principal Mr. Shore handles most of the school's guidance programs. He is responsible for keeping individual records and helping with individual problems. Planning each student's course is one of his many duties. Here, Sandy Metzler seeks guidance as to the subjects she should take.

Well planned guidance program aids all students

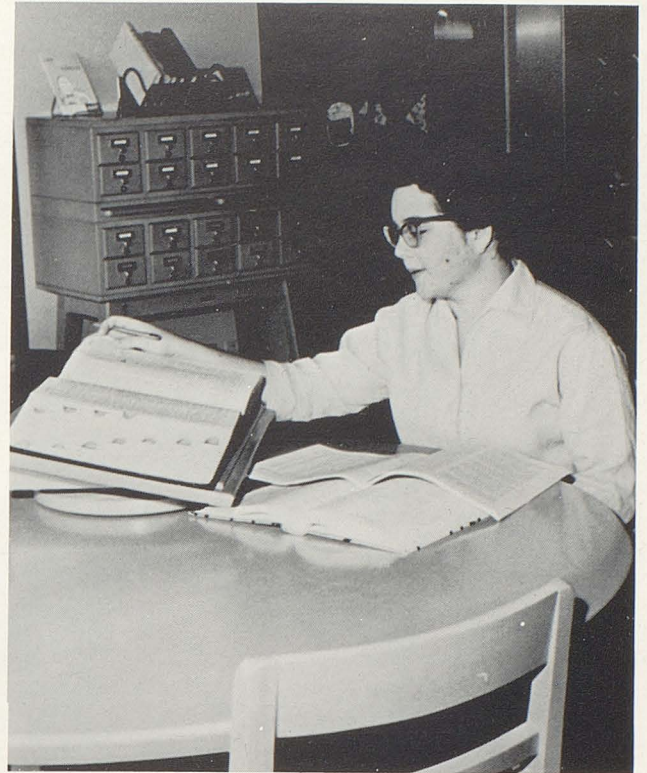

Judy Kirsch listens for the signal which will signify that she should begin work on her National Merit Scholarship Test.

The pamphlet which Martha Jones examines is one of many pertaining to future careers displayed on this bulletin board in the east end of the building.

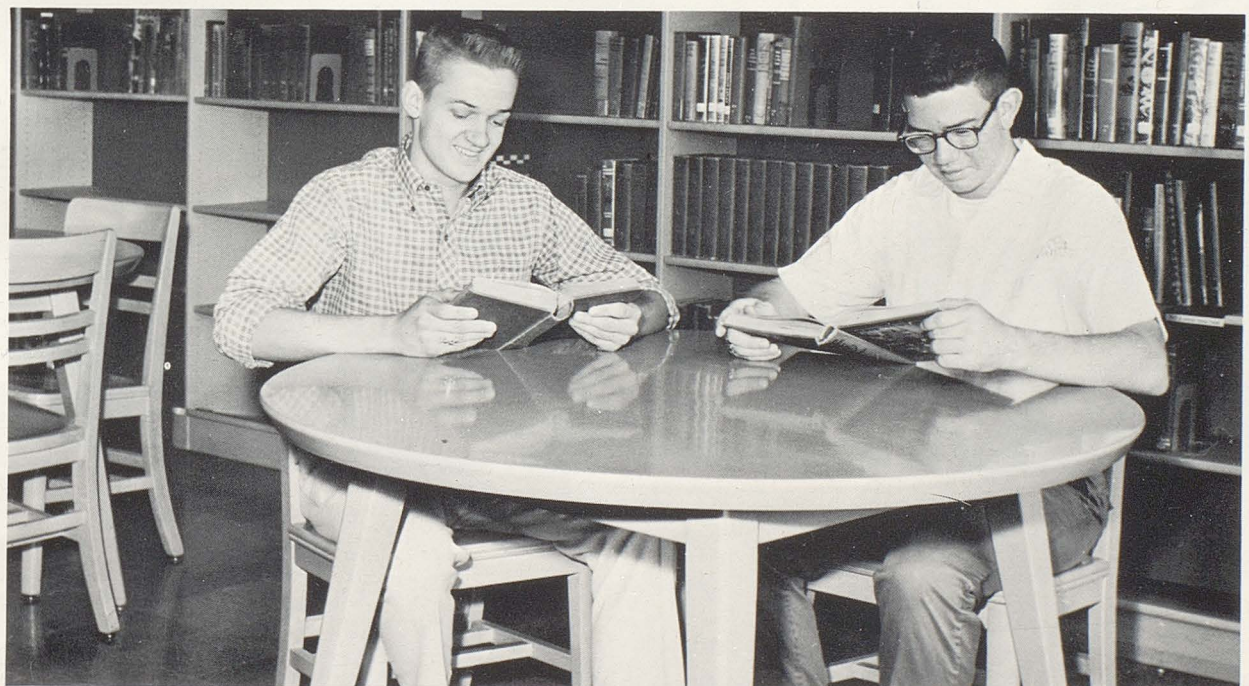

Placing returned books back on their proper shelves is one of the main duties of the student librarians. Beverly Hartgraves replaces one of the books in our library.

Sue Piper finds the unabridged dictionary handy in looking up some terms for one of her classes. Reference work is a necessity for many classes and our library is a good place to find needed materials.

Beautiful Library holds much used information

Paul Wilson and Bruce Bayles seem to find great enjoyment in their reading. Many books for reading pleasure may be found on these shelves along with books on subjects ranging from A to Z. Here, also, in the library is a quiet place to study or browse around.

Student Life

Dates, dances, parties, ball games - all are part of our much loved student life after school hours. But many of the arrangements for our activities are made at noon and between classes, at lockers and while waiting in line at the drinking fountain in the long, long hall.

Pretty queens, colorful floats, and marching

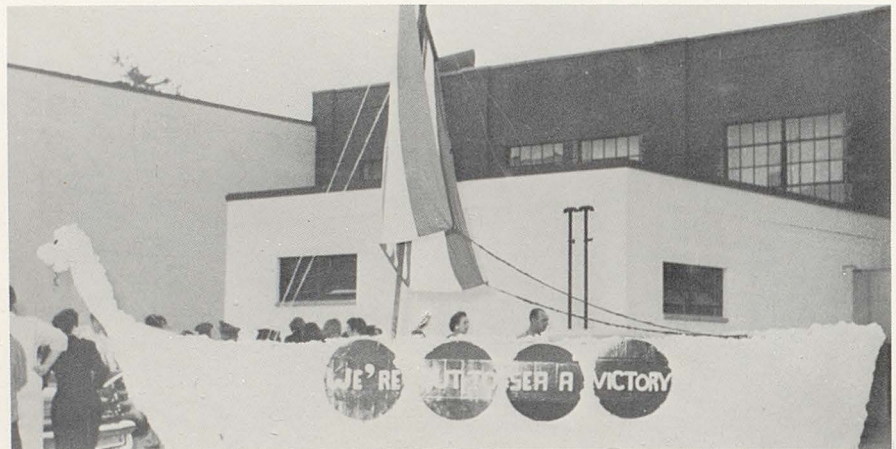

Elected by her class and the Student Council, Beverly Harding was crowned queen of homecoming.

The first float award for the class of 1960 was received when they "wished the Quakers well."

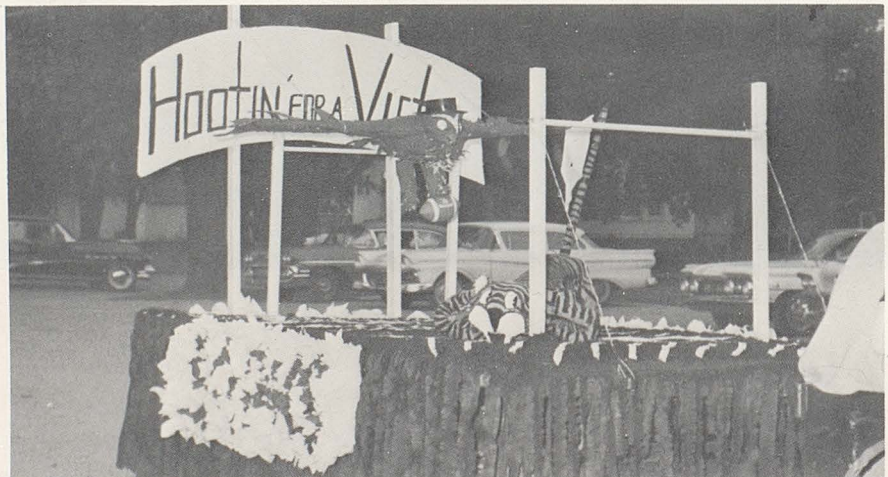

Elected from the junior class as their representative was Sarah Ingram.

Out to "sea a victory," the juniors were happy to see the victory over Greenfield 40-0.

Linda Corrie was chosen by her class as a homecoming queen candidate.

"Hootin' for a victory," the sophomores cheered the team on with their float and their shouts.

Disc jockey Vic Knight supplied the music for the homecoming dance. He is being helped by Bob Karpel, Carolyn Long, and an out-of-town guest.

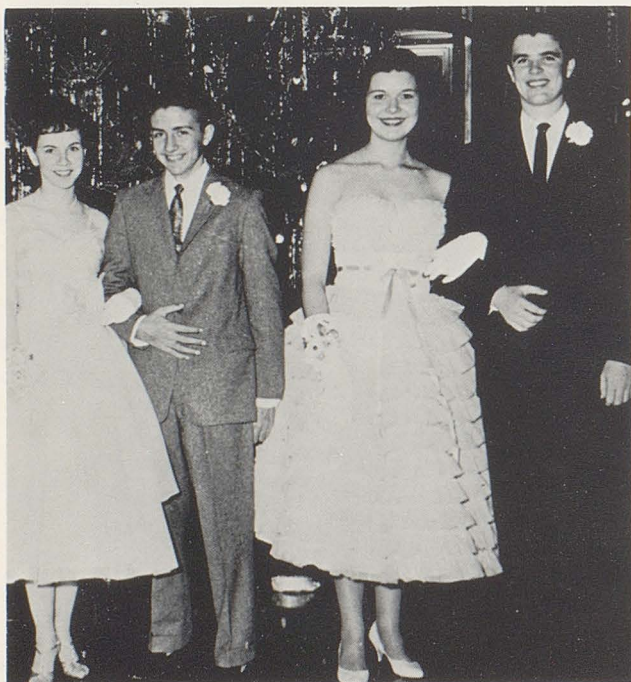

Dances, formal or semi-formal, provide wholesome recreation

King of the W.P.A. Dance on April 25, 1959, Paul Ashworth dances with his escort, Beth Hadley.

King candidates--Dave Alfred, senior; Paul Ashworth, junior; and Mike Earhart, sophomore--enjoyed the F.H.A. -sponsored Women Pay All Dance.

The Public Service Auditorium was the scene of the first Christmas Dance sponsored by the F.H.A. Candidates for queen and their escorts were Marie Beller and Kenny Ward, juniors; and Sharon Cooper and Jim Hobbs, sophomores.

December 12, 1959, was the royal day for Queen Martha Corrie. A bracelet from the F.H.A. was presented to her by her escort, Mason Meeks.

Marsha Castetter and Jack Weddle are typical teen-agers at an aftergame sock hop.

Rooting Quakers back the team through a successful season

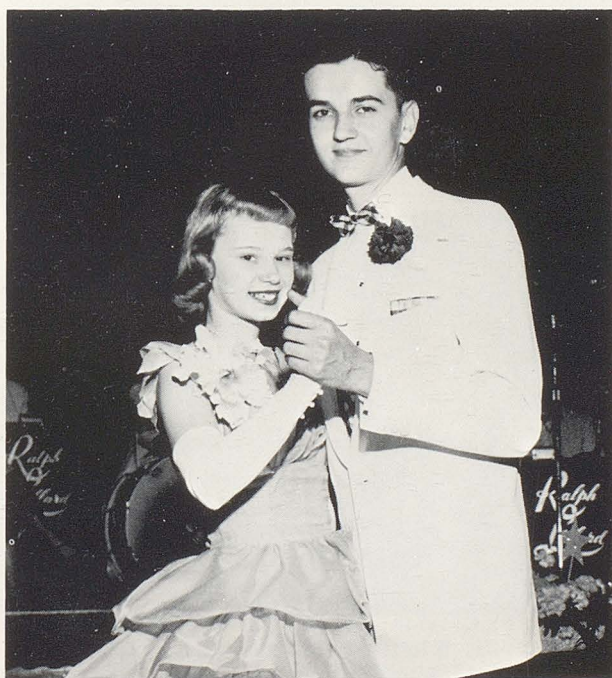

Color cards, mitts, white blouses, and red ties are the trademarks of the pep club members. At all local games the 80 girls, supported by other members of the cheerblock "strut their stuff." At away games the 80 Traveling Quakers cheer the team on.

The Indiana Roof was the scene of the beautiful Junior-Senior Reception on May 9, 1959. Here the guests dance to the dreamy music played by Ralph Leonard's band.

Memory's path includes "Stairway To The Stars."

Judy Wittorff and Dean Cooper seem to be well-pleased with the gala affair which their class gave for the graduating seniors.

Don Olvey is stealing a few moments with his date in the romantic atmosphere of the ballroom balcony.

"My Sister Eileen"

"My Sister Eileen" recounts the twelve months' period encompassed by the signing of a lease on a Greenwich Village apartment, the evacuation thereof, and a few of the amazing adventures that befell Ruth and Eileen Sherwood.

The play was directed by Mrs. Betty Niles.

The wreck (Bill Bally), an upstairs tenant, is having a difficult time explaining to Bill Wise his presence in Ruth Sherwood's apartment. Kirk Holdcroft, a guest of the girls', seems rather stunned at the shenanigans.

Jerry Edmondson and Garford Whicker are caught by Policeman Bill Wise as they attempt to enter Judy Wittorff and Kathy Dunigan's downstairs studio apartment.

Druggist Kirk Holdcroft makes a gracious and unexpected entrance into Ruth and Eileen Sherwood's apartment. (Kathy Dunigan and Judy Wittorff)

very professional plays for community and school

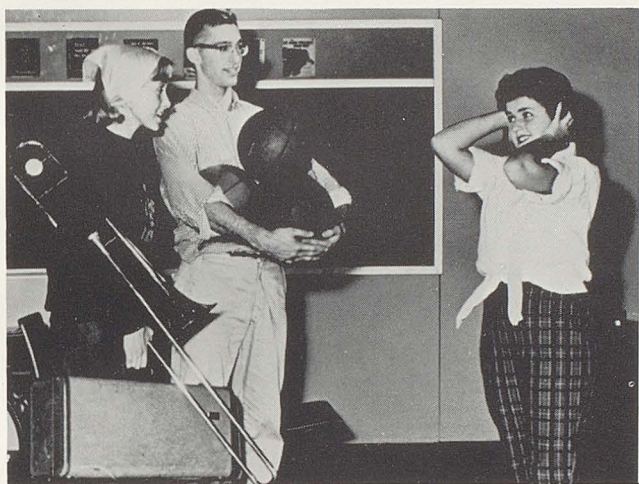

"Our Miss Brooks"

"Our Miss Brooks," the lead played by Kathy Kellum, was the title of the Speech Club's production presented on November 6. Someone like Miss Brooks has a part in everyone's life. With all its fast-paced action, humorous lines, and hilarious situations, this play had an underlying sweetness and a special meaning for all.

The cast included Kathy Kellum, Sandy Bayliff, Dean Cooper, Bob Karpel, Carolyn Leech, Bill Bally, Sarah Ingram, Kathye Ziegler, Pam Johnson, Judy Wittorff, Janice Craige, Linda Walls, Ann Arden, Sally Lynch, Judy Simmons, David Gorman, Garford Whicker, and Bill Wise and was directed by Mrs. Niles, Speech Club sponsor.

What do you do when there are no funds to buy professional play effects? Miss Brooks solves the problem by improvising to make her own snow and thunder.

"Yes, we have to have peace and quiet for rehearsals, but do you think we ought to hide the band instruments and basketballs?" Miss Brooks isn't convinced that Ted and Jane are doing the right thing.

Although Martin thought his pains were a result of something he had eaten, his sudden attack proved more serious. Ted, Hugo, Miss Finch, Jane, and Miss Brooks offer their sympathy.

Elsie, Elaine, Marge, Rhonda, and Sylvia look back and forth as the words fly between Miss Brooks and Mrs. Allen.

"Brooks! A word to the wise should be sufficient. Watch yourself!" Mr. Wadsworth seems unaware of Doris trying to attract his attention. He's too busy reprimanding Miss Brooks.

Organizations

Organizations represent students co-operating to contribute to school and community life. No organization is more symbolic of planning, working together, promoting good public relations, and at the same time having much fun than our 6 member (all seniors) majorette team.

A better girl: the goal of F. H. A.

To promote a greater appreciation of homemaking is the purpose of the Plainfield Chapter of Future Homemakers which was organized fifteen years ago with seventeen members. This year, there are one hundred and fifty members, making it the largest organization in the school.

Although the monthly meetings are devoted to self-improvement, the F.H.A. provides many sources of entertainment for the school student body. Two dances, numerous parties, a mother & daughter banquet and a style show are some of the year's activities.

The community project this year was aiding the New Hope School for the Retarded Children with money, gifts, and services.

The chief money making project was the annual workday.

Throughout the year the F.H.A. strives to take part in various activities not only for the school but also for the community.

To develop competent, aggressive, rural and agricultural leadership and to strengthen the confidence of farm boys and young men in themselves and their work are two of the purposes of the Plainfield Chapter of the Future Farmers of America.

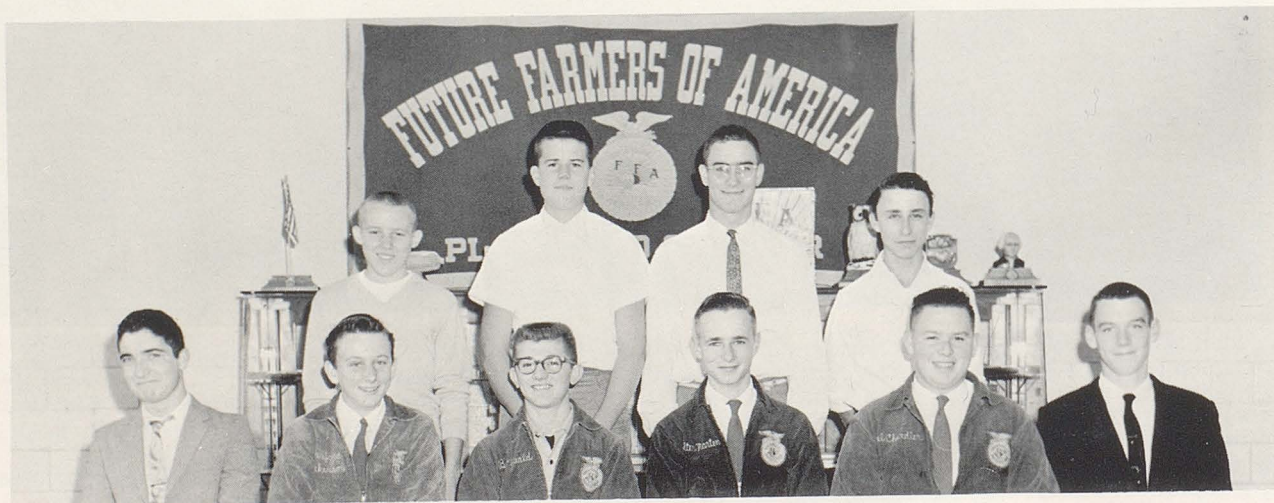

Organized in 1938, Plainfield's F.F.A. has been recognized as an active organization for many years. The organization sponsors and participates in many activities each year. Among them are the local hay and grain show, the parliamentary procedure contest, the Star Chapter Farmer Award, and all District, State, and National meetings. Money making projects are selling popcorn at basketball games and selling garden seeds and certified seed corn.

The local F.F.A. also makes available loans to its members for financing their farming programs. They provide a scholarship for the member having the highest scholastic record while in high school.

Space travel and nuclear fields intrigue Science Club

Discussing a law of physics are officers Bill Wise, secretary; Larry Rush, vice-president; Mr. Henderson, sponsor; Dean Cooper, president; and George Schnakenberg, treasurer.

Since the launching of the United States' first rocket, rockets have been the main field of interest for the Plainfield Science Club. The members have experimented and developed their own rocket fuel and designed and built their own rocket.

Mr. Henderson and Mr. Grosskreutz, the sponsors, have helped the members of the organization achieve their purpose--to further their knowledge of science--by acquiring films and booklets for student use.

Since the organization of the Science Club in 1952, the members and sponsors have sponsored a science fair each year consisting of projects demonstrated by the members.

Because of the efforts of the sponsors and the hard work of the members, Plainfield has been represented in the Westinghouse Science Search in past years.

Keeping in mind its motto, "Others," the Sunshine Society undertook many projects for this 1959-60 school year.

At Christmastime the members took gifts to the Plainfield Nursing Home. Also at the Yuletide Season, the society gave a cash donation to the Clothe-A-Child fund. A donation of five dollars was made to the Riley Cheer Fund in the spring.

A semi-formal dance was given in February at the Public Service auditorium.

Attaining high ideals is the goal of the Sunshine girl. At the beginning of every year, each member selects her "ideal lady." The identity of the girl is unknown until the tea which is given to honor the ideal ladies and the mothers of the girls.

Officers elected to head the Sunshine Society were Marsha Castetter, treasurer; Sharon Covert, recording secretary, Miss Durr, sponsor; Marcia Fields, corresponding secretary; Jill White, president; Patty Claxton, vice-president; and Sandy Bayliff, librarian.

Growing, growing, growing! That's exactly what the Future Teachers' Association of P.H.S. has done this year. The club now boasts a membership of fifty pupils who are interested in exploring the teaching field as a future profession.

A sock hop, a tea for mothers, high school lady teachers, and A.A.U.W. members, a pitch-in dinner for foreign students, and conducting tours through the I. S. T. A. Building were among this year's activities.

To gain first-hand experience, F.T.A. members helped teach classes in the elementary grades. The knowledge gained in this manner will be invaluable to them in their future careers.

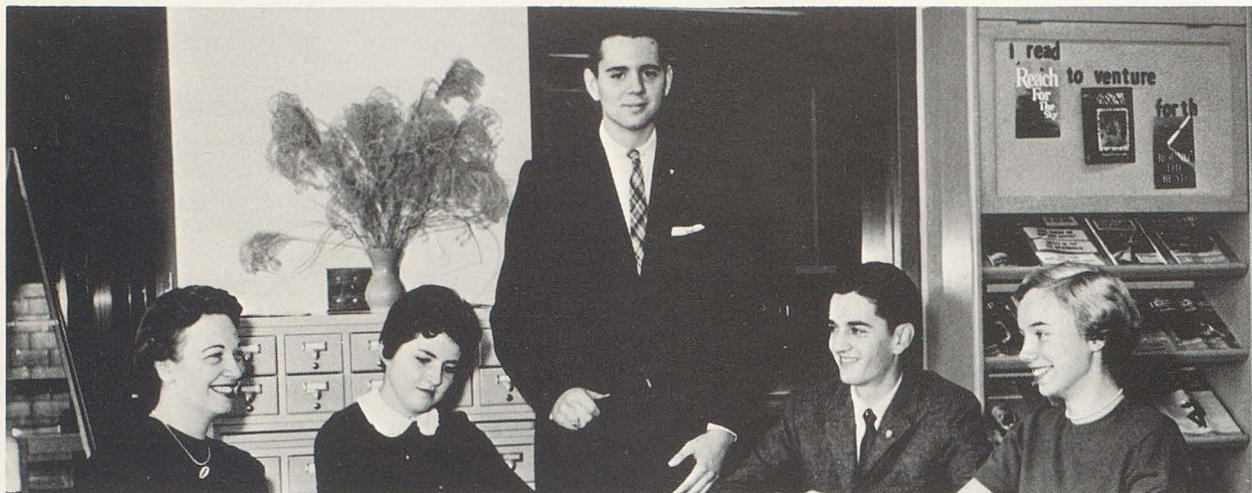

Officers elected were Carolyn Leech, treasurer; Evalyn Kellum, secretary; Mrs. Masten, sponsor; Emma Swarn, president; and Judy Kirsch, vice-president.

To develop attitudes of and practice in good citizenship, to promote harmonious relations through the school, to improve student-teacher relationships, to improve school morale, to assist in the management of the school when so requested by the administration, to provide a forum for student expression and to promote the general welfare of the school are the main objectives of the Student Council of Plainfield High School.

The main projects of the Student Council are planning the Homecoming activities, decorating the school at Christmas, and assisting the administration with the annual Career Day.

Three representatives elected from each of the two upper classes plus their vice-presidents, and the sophomore class officers make up the council's twelve members. Mrs. Melba Haines sponsors the organization.

J. C. L. brings the past to life through activities

Members of J.C.L. (FROM LEFT TO RIGHT, FRONT ROW) are: D. Holmes, B. Hodson, D. Stone, M. Sanders, R. Wooley, K. Johnston, S. Kinnaman, R. Osborn, L. Leach, J. White, J. James, B. Burkhalter, V. Those who think Latin is a dead language should attend the Roman Banquet of the Junior Classical League. Roman food served by bare-footed slaves (the new members), grape juice, Roman dress and tall columns present a gay picture far from dead. At their regular meetings the members see slides and movies of Rome and playlets about mythology. Exchanging gifts at the Saturnalia party in December is one of the highlights of the year. Several members attend the State J.C.L. Convention at Terre Haute.

The J.C.L. was organized in 1956 with sixty charter members. The purpose of this organization is to help hand on the torch of Classical Civilization to the modern world. They believe that an acquaintance with the Civilization of Greece and Rome will help us to understand and appreciate our government, laws, literature, language and arts.

The J.C.L.'s officers are (KNEELING) Mary Arnold and Rob Sharer. (STANDING) Dave Gorman and Janice Lease, and their sponsor, Miss Newlin.

Dave Gorman, drum major, has led the marching band for three years now.

The pep band adds its color and music to all home ballgames.

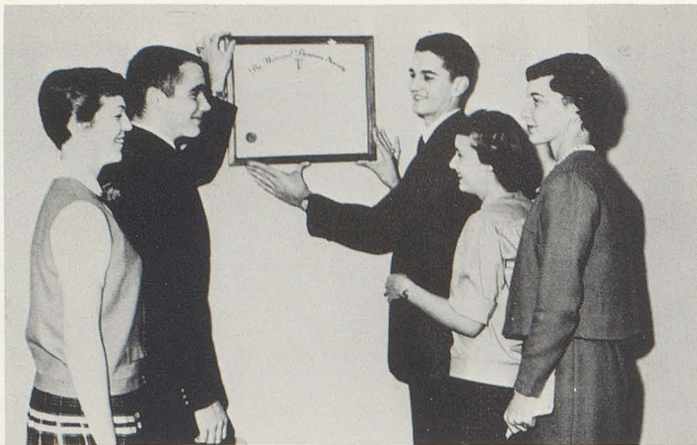

Music fills the air when Mr. Littlejohn and his seventy-eight amateur musicians strike up the P. H. S. Band. The band is an excellent public relation's instrument performing at many private and community affairs.

It has been said that watching the clever stunts of the drum major, majorettes, and Pep Band being performed at half-time at the basketball games is the reason of some people for attending the games.

Leading the parades, giving concerts, performing at football games and commencement, and entering-into music contests are some of the activities the band participated in during this school year.

Would-be professionals display talent in Speech Club

Officers for Speech Club were Sandy Bayliff, secretary; David Gorman, vice-president; Dean Cooper, president; Gloria Brinker, treasurer; and Mrs. Niles, sponsor.

The Speech Club this year has an added feature, the National Thespian Troupe, which gives special recognition to outstanding members of the Speech Club.

The Speech Club was organized in 1956 to encourage good speech habits and participation in the Dramatic Acts. Members are admitted to the organizations after auditioning before the club members.

The main activities of the club are presenting two three-act plays. Other activities include telling Christmas stories to grade school children, giving one act plays at monthly meetings, and providing programs for local service clubs.

"With a Song in Their Hearts . . ." --the Chorus

Accompanists for the musical groups are Mary Margaret Arnold and Terry Bally. Director is Richard Metcalf.

Performance and enjoyment of good music is the purpose of the high school music department composed of approximately 40 members.

Directed by Mr. Richard Metcalf, the music department's projects include the annual spring musical and the Christmas Carol. Organizations within the music department are called upon throughout the year to participate in convocation programs. The music groups also foster good public relations by performing for the various organizations and clubs in Plainfield.

With growing membership comes growing ideas. The members hope that the coat-checking project at the basketball games will provide funds to buy robes.

Quaker Shaker staff strives to publish a top-notch paper

"News is anything that is a publication, and publications are what newspapermen make them." This saying from a noted journalist explains the existence of the Quaker Shaker, school paper, and its staff.

The Quaker Shaker strives to promote high scholarship, good public relations, student-teacher understanding, and outstanding sportsmanship. Recording and giving information and providing enjoyable reading are also purposes of the school paper.

Steps the paper undergoes in publication range from writing the copy, to printing the galley sheet, to pasting the dummy, to reading the proof sheet, and finally, to issuing the finished product.

The editors are appointed by Mrs. Betty Niles, paper advisor, on recommendation of the English department. The staff is composed of the members of the journalism class.

provide records of high school life and fun

Under the competent guidance of Mrs. Niles, advisor; editor, Nancy Arden and assistant editor, Kathy Kellum plan pages, supervise picture taking, write copy, and draw up pages.

Portraying school life through day to day happenings is the purpose of the P.H.S. yearbook, the Silhouettes. The yearbook staff is composed of members of the journalism class and a few others chosen by the editor of the Silhouettes.

The editors for each year are chosen by Mrs. Betty Niles, yearbook advisor, on the basis of performance during the year of journalism. Students are members of the class on recommendation of the English department.

Pictures are taken all year long. The dummy pages and pictures are sent to the yearbook publisher for make-up, sent to the editor for proof, then sent back to the publisher for the final copy to come out in May.

The Silhouettes provides the students with a permanent record of activities, classes, and friendships during their three years at Plainfield High School.

Sports

What can symbolize in a better way our loyalty to our school than a cheer-block? Regardless of our personal differences during the school day, at all athletic events we are "one" cheering our Quakers to victory.

Hours of practice are necessary in developing skill and teamwork. Mike Bogan, Roger Lazier, Frank DeLois, Dick Hardin, and Bob Lacy, members of the "B" team, spend time working on the "weak points" in their playing. Credit for the "B" team's 12-6 record should also go to the other members of the team who are Nick Kellum, Chance Musgrave, Mark Steele, Jim Humphrey, and Danny Mills.

In orbit? No, our normally calm coach just became excited when a fumble was made on the one-yard line.

Reactions on the bench range from mild indifference to wild hysteria as tension mounts in the game.

Receiving pre-game instructions before leaving the gym, the boys listen intently while Coach Albright briefs them on some of the plays.

Honor captain, chosen by the boys, was Scott Shadwick, a senior who played fullback.

Suspense rings high at most games as was the case when this Quaker player was tackled while attempting a long run.

Plainfield was represented on the All-Conference Baseball Team by Don Pope, who won catcher's honors. Joe Baldwin won honors on the second team and Steve Harlan and Mike Musgrave received honorable mention.

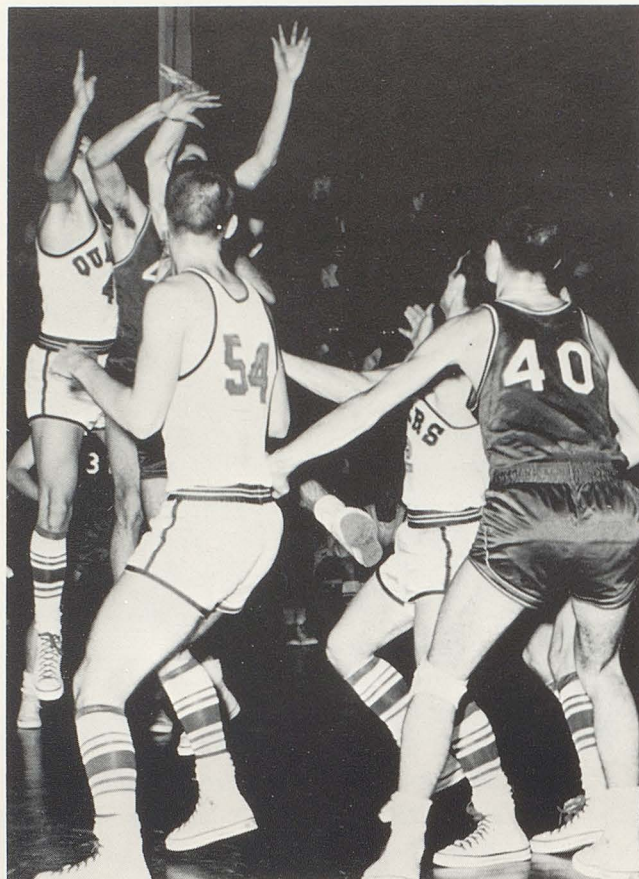

CONFERENCE STANDINGS - ALL SPORTS

Plainfield took third in football, second in basketball, first in track, fourth in baseball, third in the freshman basketball Tourney, and first in the Freshman Track Meet to win their fourth All-Sports trophy in the last six years. The Quakers earned 24 points in football, 28 in basketball, 16 in track, 10 in baseball, 2 in Freshman basketball, and 2 in freshman track for a combined total of 82 points. Closest Quaker competitors were Speedway with 75 1/2 and Brownsburg with 75.

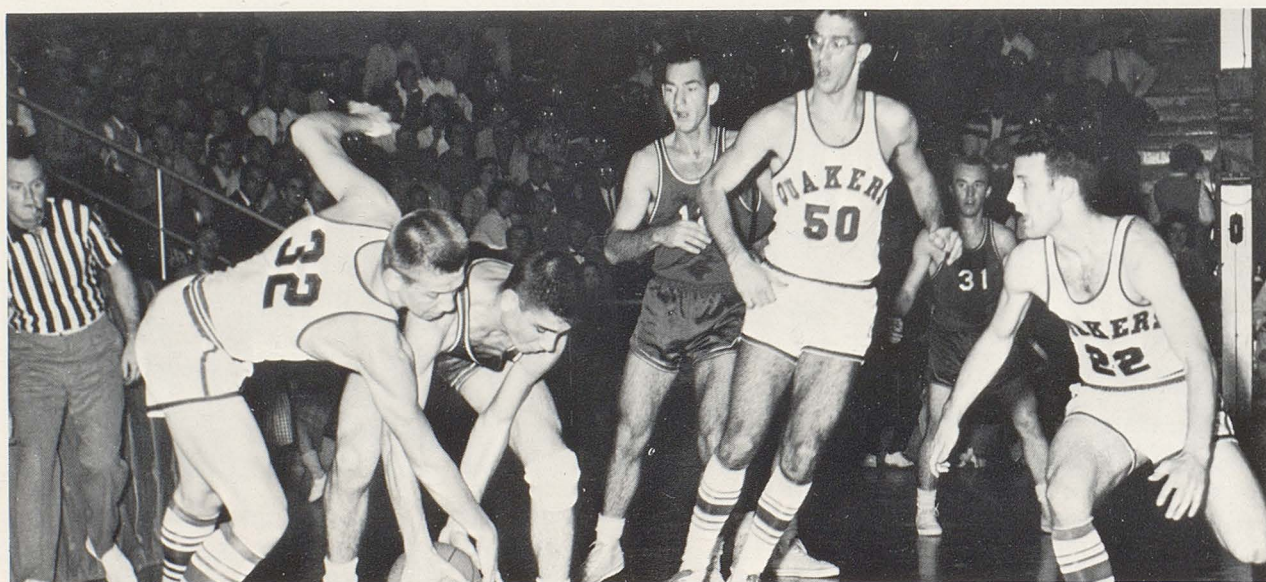

Quakers and Quaker fans have all the symptoms

Basketball or ballet? Notice Jon Pope's graceful leap and perfect form down to the arched little finger of his right hand.

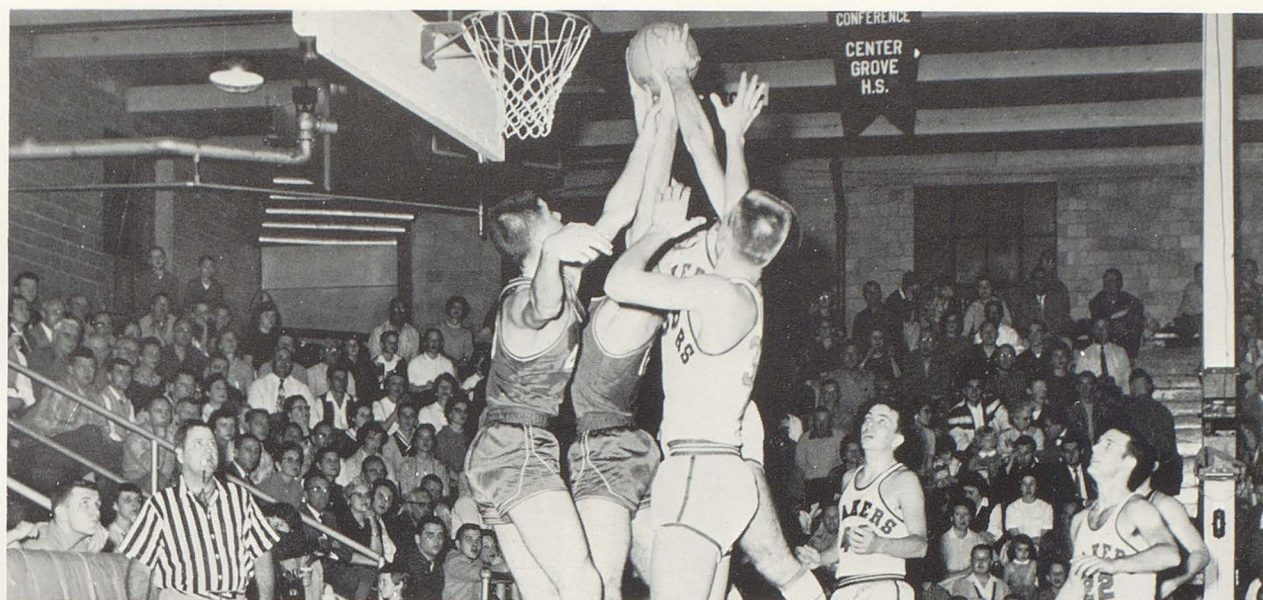

Ball players aren't always graceful as this jumble of arms and legs proves. Actually, they're reaching for the ball which sailed right out of the picture.

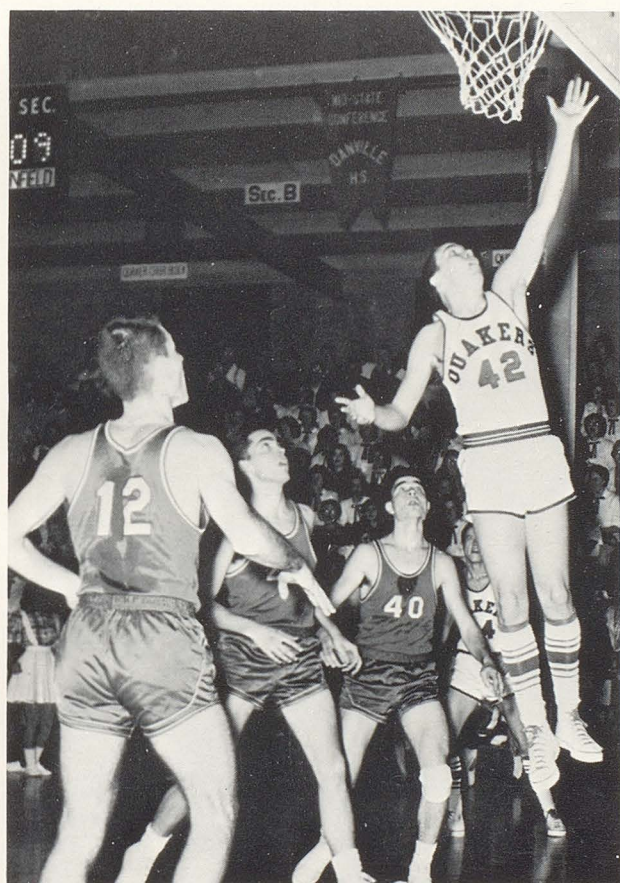

The expressions on their faces show tension and excitement as both teams scramble for the ball. This was one of many thrilling moments during the basketball season this year.

of "Hoosier hysteria" during roundball season

Four players vie for the rebound as their team mates give moral support. The referee, looking on, remains undisturbed.

Bill Decker catches the opponents flat-footed, and sails through the air for an easy lay-up shot.

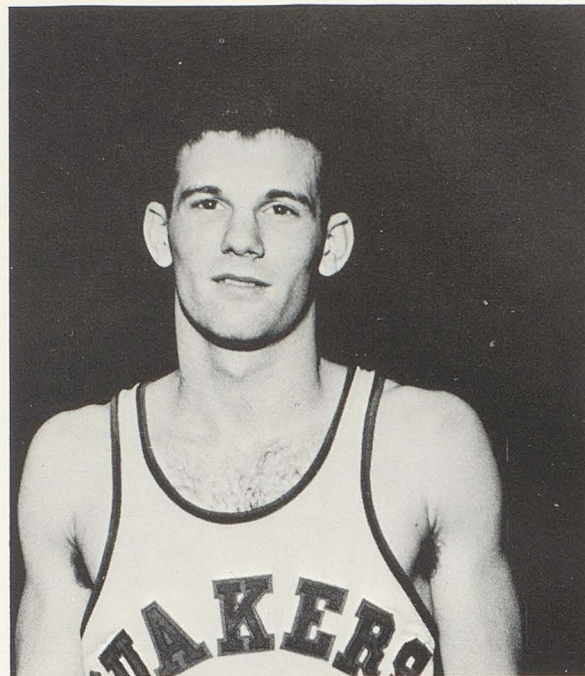

The faces of the crowd portray interest, concern, disgust, anger, and pride according to the action on the floor.

Less publicized sports deserve credit, too

Darryl Miracle runs high hurdles during a daily practice. The boys begin training and limbering up long before the track season begins.

Jon Pope was named this year's outstanding athlete by the Plainfield Optimist Club. During his four years in high school, Jon participated in football, basketball, baseball, and track, earning honors in all these sports.

Up, up, and over goes Mason Meeks to rack up points for the Plainfield thinlies in a meet with Charlton.

Our cheerleaders personify school spirit

Homecoming was an exciting time for the cheerleaders, too. Linda, Pat, Georgianna, and Dorothy wave from the back of the convertible in which they rode for the parade.

Working together, playing together, learning

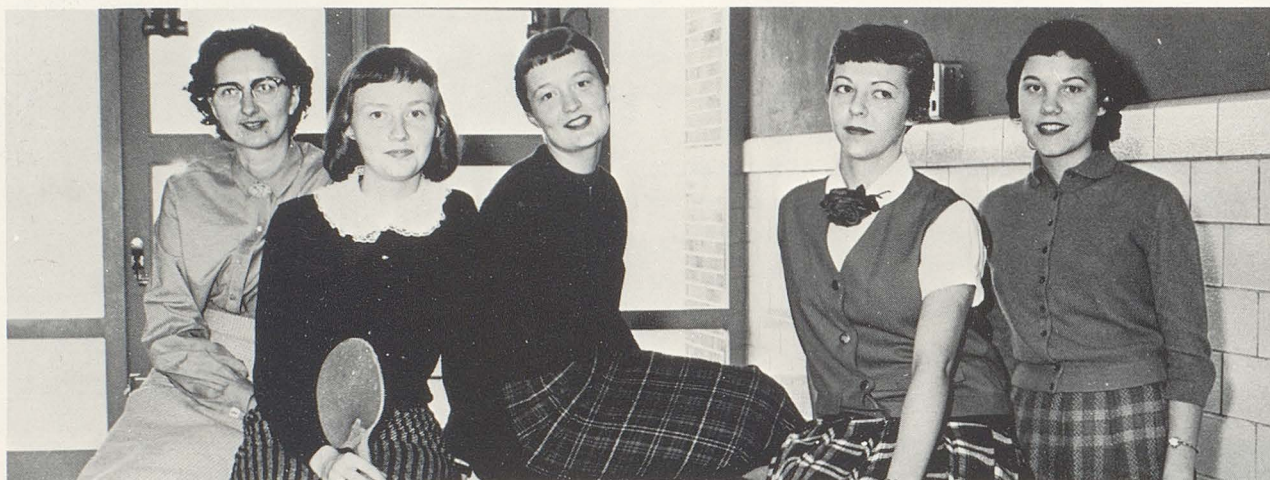

Keeping our girls physically fit in every way while providing a lot of fun, Girls' Athletic Association, organized in 1948, encourages high school girls to participate in many kinds of activities.

Points may be earned from participation in basketball, deck tennis, line soccer, volley ball, tennis, and bowling. A pin is awarded for 50 points, a letter for 250, a state plaque for 350, and a white sweater for 500. These awards are given at the Mother-Daughter Banquet held in the spring.

Besides offering a wide variety of sports to the girls, G.A.A. sponsored a sock hop and an Overseas Clothing Drive.

This organization, composed of 75 girls, encourages friendly relations and good sportsmanship by providing team sports for our high school girls.

Presenting the unsung heroes of PHS . . .

Cleaning up our messes, sweeping floors, washing windows, straightening up rooms -- these are the duties of our custodians, Mr. Winsted and Mr. Estle.

Cafeteria workers, Mrs. Affolter and Mrs. Dellacca, always greet us with a cheerful smile as we rush into the cafeteria each noon.

The school board, the administration,

Principal Billy L. Abel and Vice-Principal Quentin Shore handle matters of school policy, problems, curriculum, and instruction. As the picture indicates, they find their position an enjoyable one.
