In '79 Plainfield Quakers Come Alive Alive Alive Alive Alive Alive

Nineteen seventy-nine marked not only the end of yet another decade but the beginning of a new style of spirit at Plainfield High School, spirit which brought back the involvement of students in school activities.

As Homecoming approached, all four classes spent every free evening preparing for an exciting night. The Powder Puff game was enhanced by a show akin to that of Homecoming, only vice versa. Later, a Brn Dance kept Quakers hoppin' and knee slap-pin'. For the first time, a major motion picture was shown to a surprising turnout. By Spring, a physically oriented Field Day had each class team striving to achieve the top honor in the first annual Clash of the Classes. What appeared to be the backbone was the Student Council, which gave students a more respected voice in the school system. Unusual turnouts at rehearsals resulted in every position being successfully filled with enough students left to guarantee an equally sized stage crew for both the play and the musical.

What had triggered such a response after many slow years is beyond our understanding. It may be the public, the faculty, or the students. After all, we are a new generation with new ideas, leading the way to another decade: The Eighties!

Alive Alive Alive Alive Alive ...

'The Goldiggers of 1979,' a remark which holds true to the Plainfield High School Majorettes as they entertain an array of football fans during the half time show with the Marching Band.

"Swing your partner round and round," echoes through the cafeteria where the Junior/Senior sponsored Barn Dance is taking place and Kyle Davis and Kathy Swaim obey its instructions.

"Many a new day," sing the young, unwed girls of Rogers and Hemmerstein's Pulitzer Prize winning musical Oklahoma during an evening practice.

"Looks like we got it made," the Sophomore Field Day team murmurs as they gain the lead in the stretcher race during the Student Council sponsored event.

It's evident what Mr. Effinger's Chemistry class will do to some; Powder Puff Cheerleader Alan Isenogle blushes in sight of Mary Hays' smile.

Cross Countryman Brian Catt jogs the miles away at an afternoon practice.

... in fall

Displaying Red Pride, the Marching Band and Auxiliary Corps perform in the Homecoming Parade.

Excitedly looking on from the sidelines, members of the freshman football team anticipate their next points.

Fluffing float flowers, Mr. Hankins, Dr. Saxman, and Mr. Jackson get involved in Homecoming activities.

Marching in the Flag Corps, Vicki Puett concentrates on a maneuver.

Waving a summons, Tom Hawk portrays his role in The Crucible while townspeople Jeff Owens looks on.

Experiencing all sides of life in America, foreign exchange student Louise Hultman helps out at senior floatbuilding. Lin Creech assists her on the other side of the wire.

... in winter

Towering over fellow team members, Brad Rogers shoots for another two for the reserve team.

Making a simultaneous leap for the ball are Barb May and opponent while team member Kim Galyan looks on hopefully.

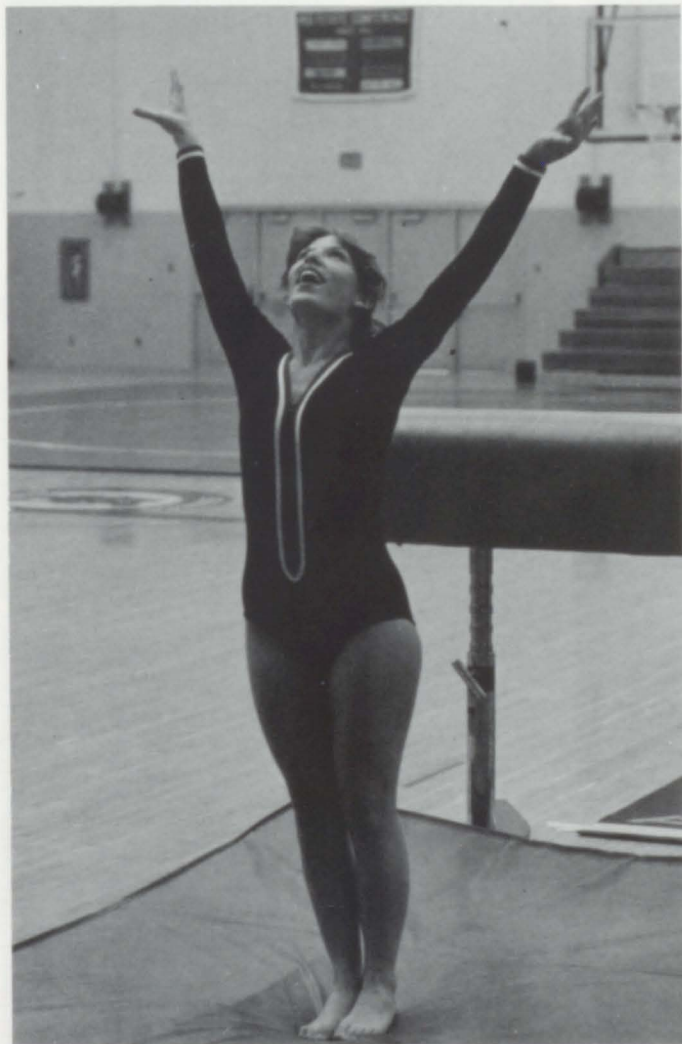

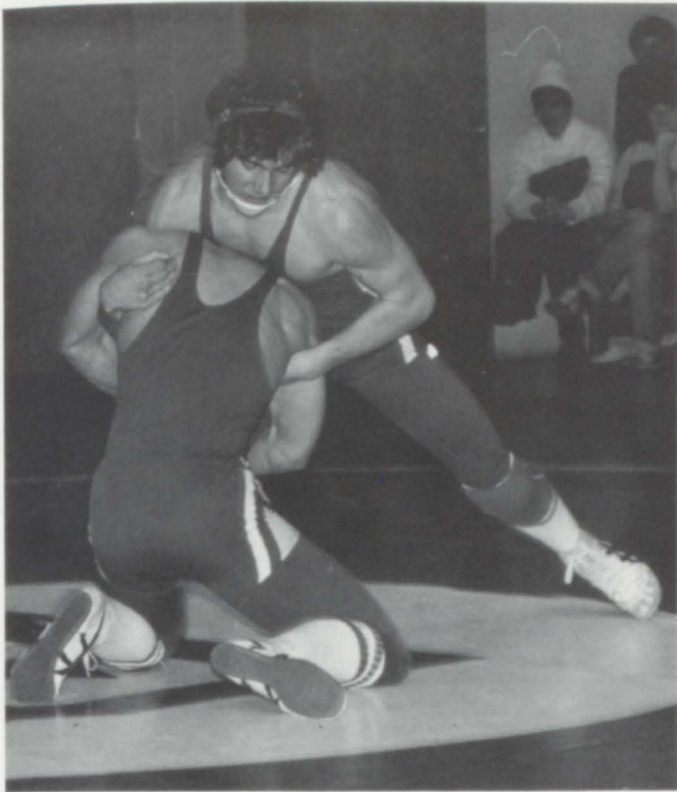

Conversing and studying in the lounge, students pass the long winter school days.

Attempting a take-down, Jeff Wilson wrestles for a Plainfield victory.

A lonely outdoor lounge awaits the first signs of spring and students.

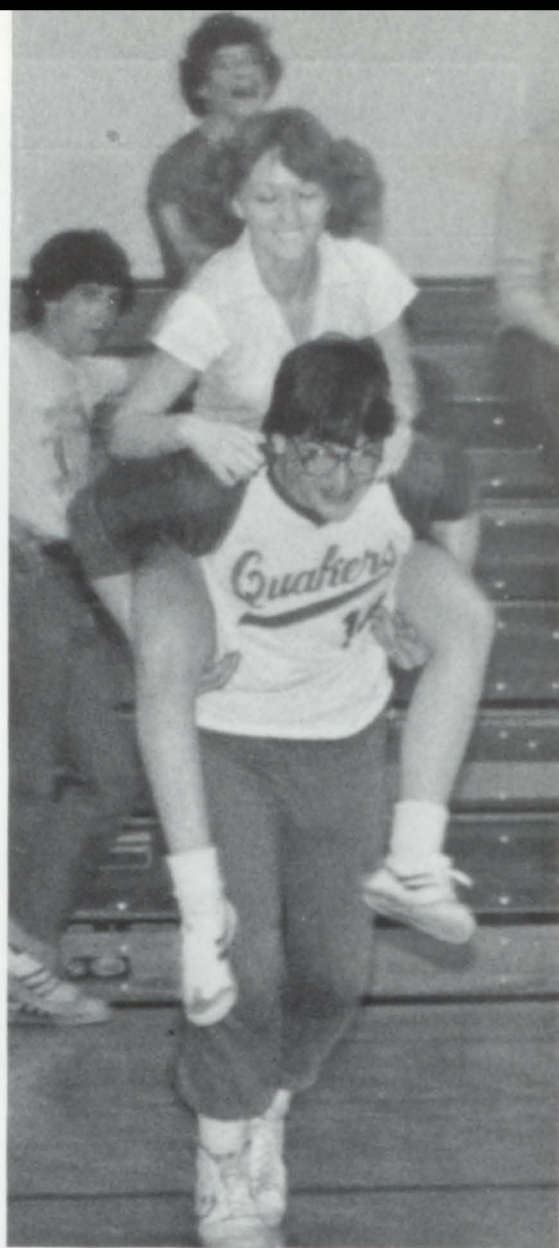

Finishing a difficult exercise on the horse, Shelley Campfield lands with a smile.

The first snow of the season has fallen, covering the campus in a thick blanket of white. The students are excited, and the air is crisp. The snow is still fresh, and the sun is shining brightly, creating a beautiful scene. The students are playing in the snow, and the air is filled with laughter and joy. The snow is still fresh, and the sun is shining brightly, creating a beautiful scene. The students are playing in the snow, and the air is filled with laughter and joy.

... in spring

Spring Vacation lures students away from the wintry north to sunny beaches of Florida.

Almost anything goes in spring at PHS; during annual event sophomore Jon Cox carries partner to inish line.

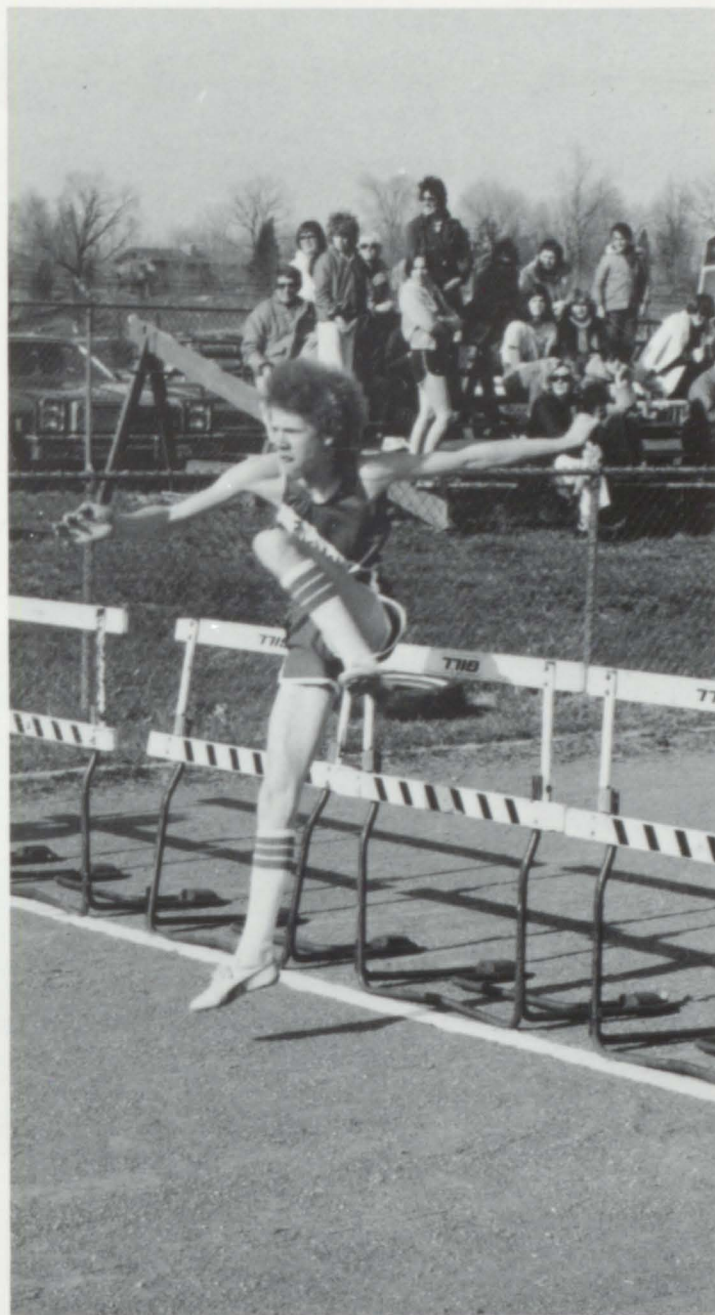

Sunning away the hours while, of course, pondering the homework to do when they return, PHS seniors escape for a week to Daytona.

Even though Prom weather is cold outside, dancers enjoy the coziness of a crowded dance floor.

Springtime brings the school musical; Dave Lemonds participates in this year's production of Oklahoma.

Another sure sign of warming weather is track season when Rick Parker leaps the high hurdles.

... in summer

Practice makes perfect is true as the major-ettes and marching band repeat the same number over and over.

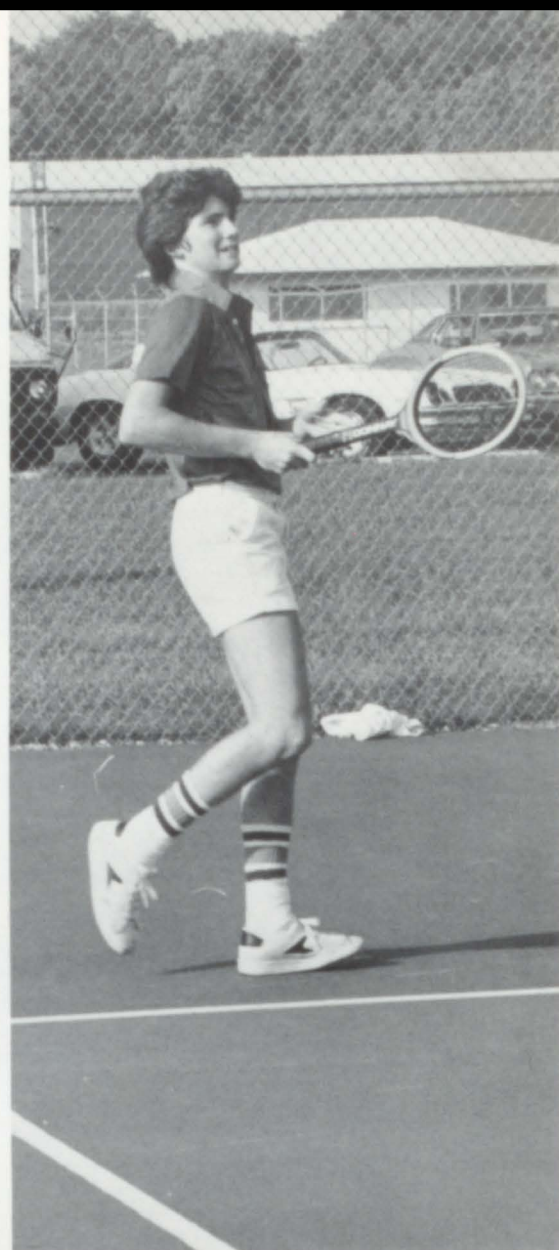

Concentrating on the ball, Greg Ryan raises a racket ready to volley to his opponent.

To some students an empty school is the best school.

Closer and closer, Monique Hamby uses all her strength as she attempts to reach the other side.

Proving she's a woman of many talents, Susan Hart entertains the Junior Miss audience and judges.

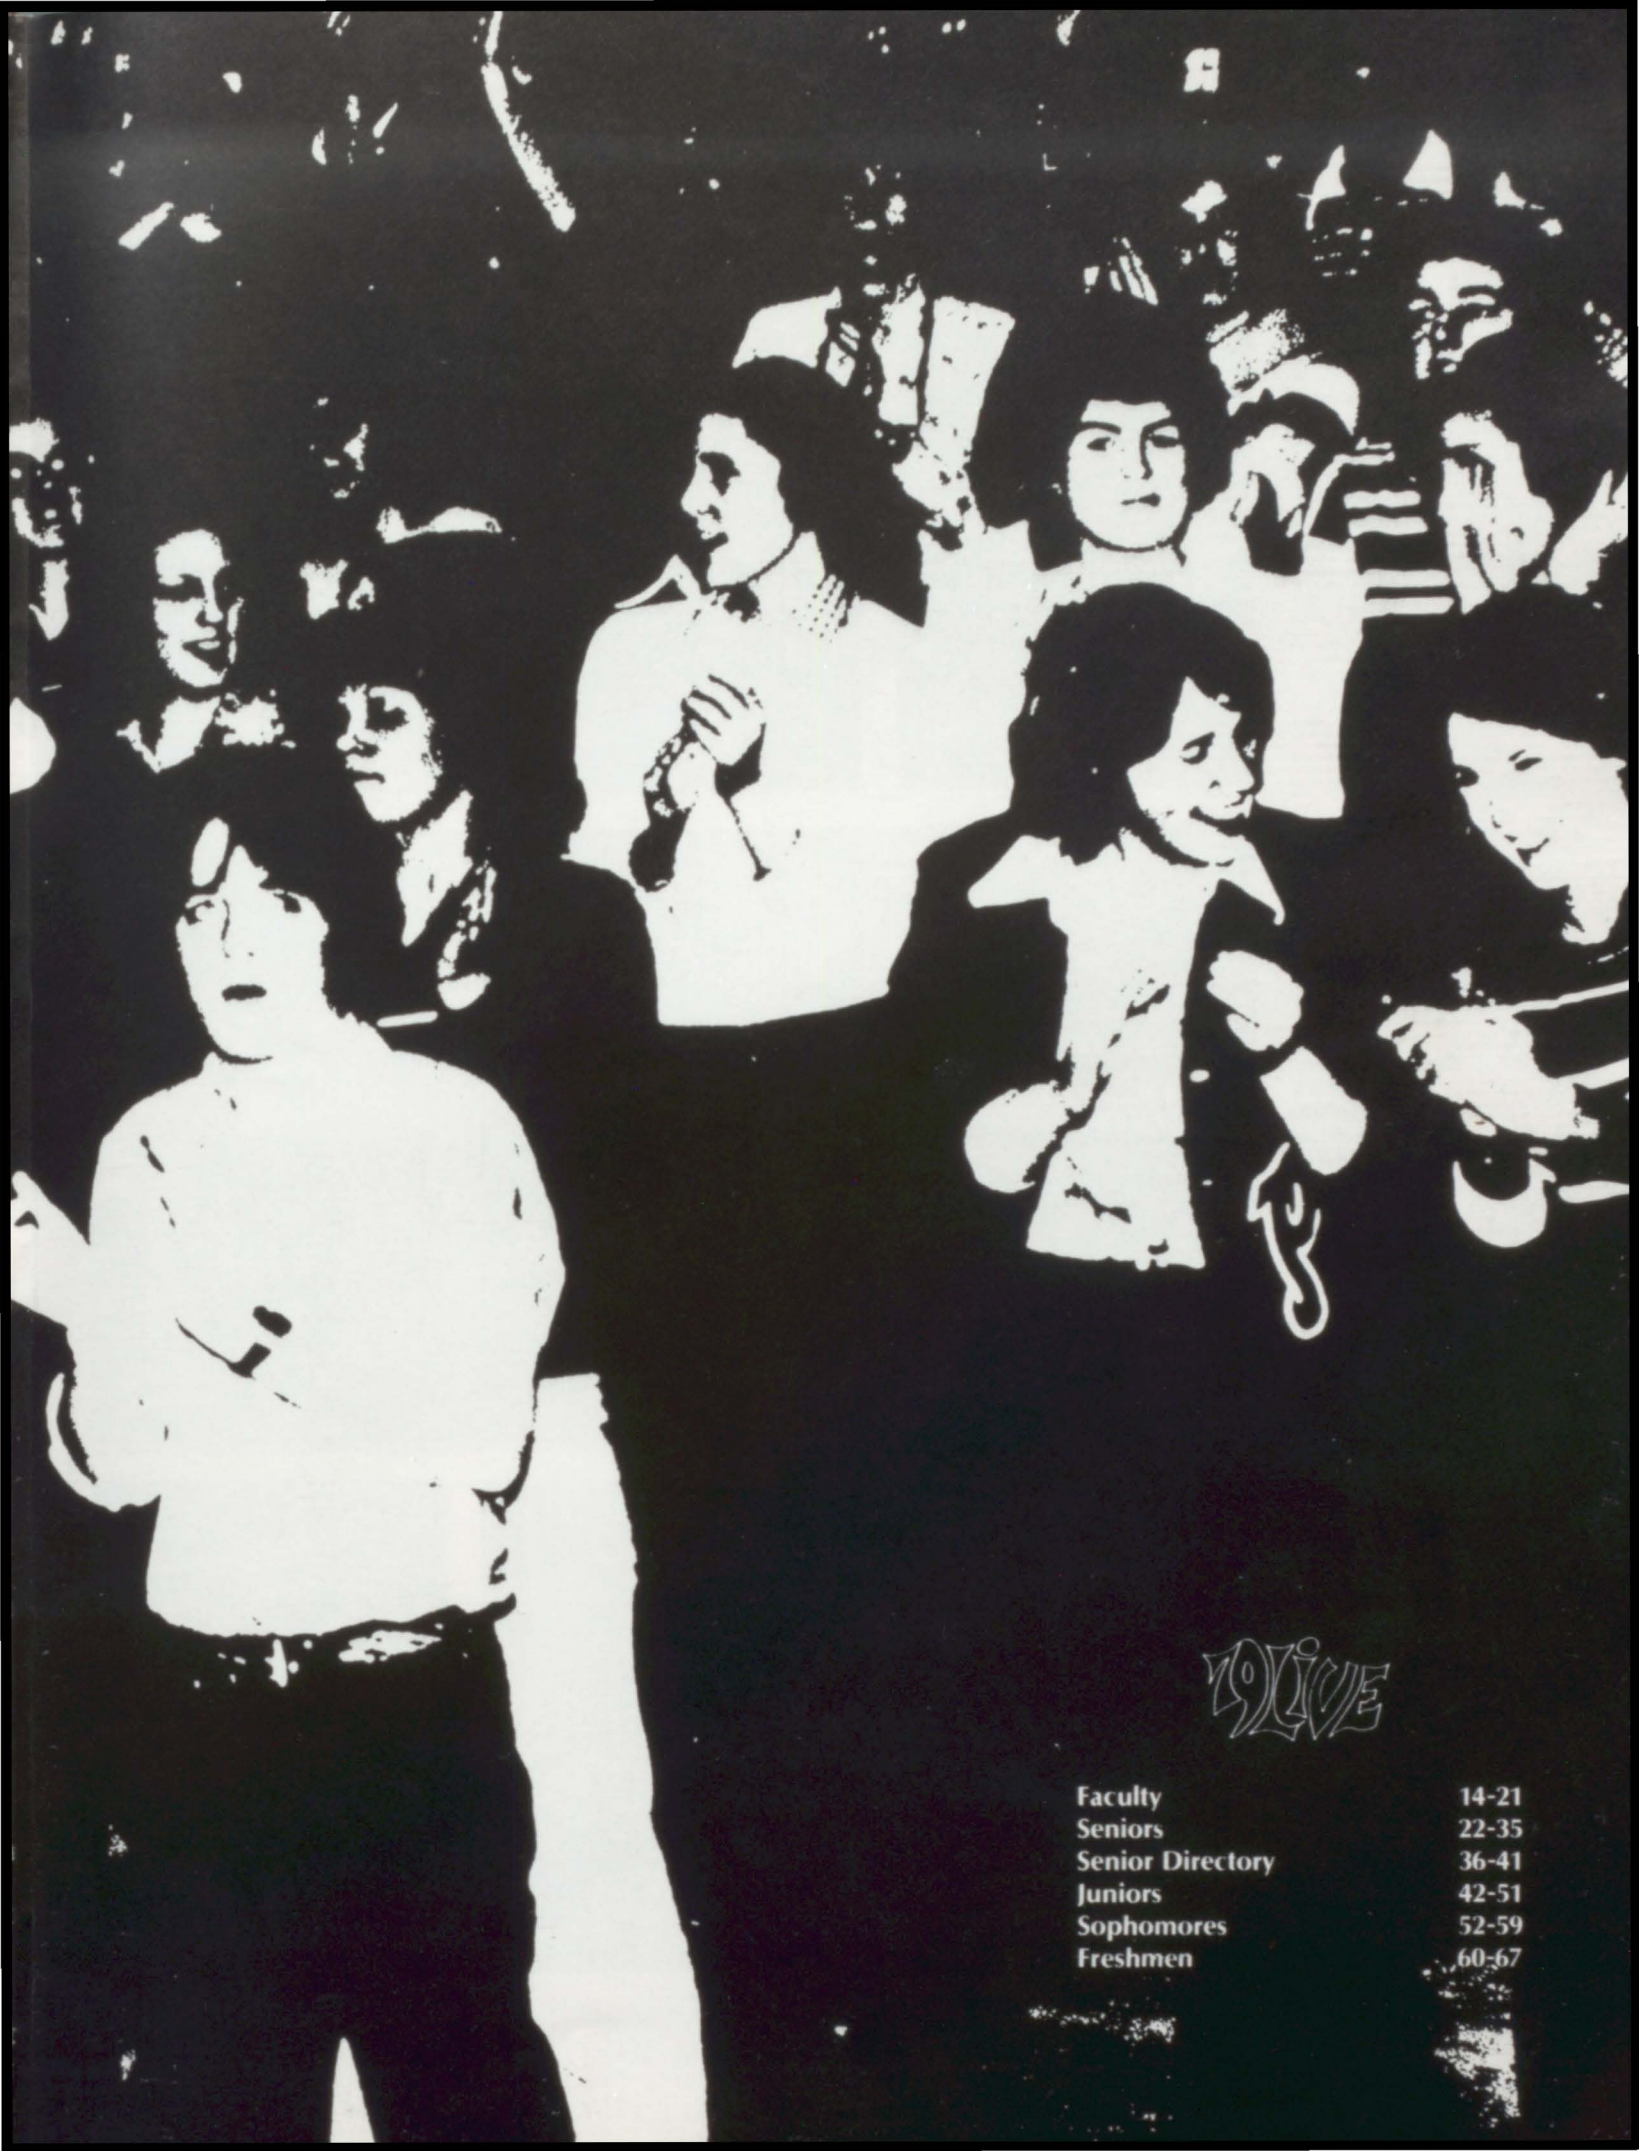

The play under control, Tim Schrier runs to retrieve a ground ball.

The 1978-79 school year brought to a close the high school career of 263 seniors. The past year will be one to remember for many reasons. Besides the regular senior activities such as ordering caps and gowns, ordering and sending announcements, studying government and economics, and practicing for graduation, seniors were very active in all aspects of school life.

The class of 1979 will be well remembered for their contributions to drama, music, scholarship, and sports at PHS. But every senior will also carry his own special memories of best friends, fun times, and greatest personal achievements. The class of '79 have said their goodbyes but they leave their memories behind them.

Working the first senior fund raising event, Patsy Keeton patiently awaits business.

Providing the entertainment at a pep session, senior class sponsor Cindi Bowie helps raise homecoming spirit.

Lending a hand to the homecoming cause, senior class sponsor Jackie Carrigan intently fluffs flowers.

Soon-to-be-announced Homecoming Queen, Susan Hart smiles winningly.

Representing the class of '79 in the homecoming parade, Mitzi Buis smiles on her ride to the field. Also representing the senior class is Sara Hilligoss, waiting for that exciting moment.

With lots of down home charm, the senior's homecoming float takes top honors and catches a few second looks.

Seniors make dramatic exit

Portraying man and wife, Mary Wertz and Kyle Davis have a heated discussion in The Crucible.

Displaying senior talent, Amy Boyer and Robbie Roberts are shown in a scene from The Crucible.

Working behind the scenes, Tim Taylor operates the lighting system for a drama production.

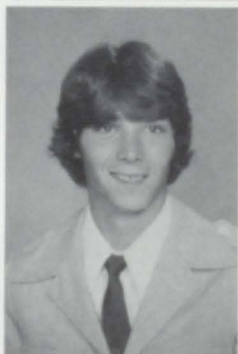

'79 draws to a close . . .

With graduation drawing near, seniors order their announcements and memory books. Sticking with the class of '79 from class rings to graduation robes, Herff Jones representative Ken Keltner guides them through the ritual of ordering announcements.

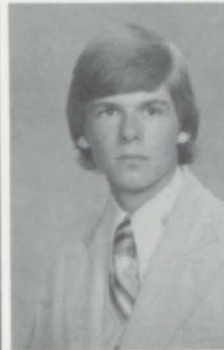

Working diligently, class officers Pam Moss and Theresa Staab help seniors place their orders for caps and gowns.

Aiming for May 18, Mary Maxwell is measured for her cap and gown.

The Junior Class was in the awkward position of an "inbetween" year. Yet, it was a time of growing and reaching for new goals.

The juniors faced the preliminary decisions about their future education and vocations. They met the challenge by trying their abilities on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude and Scholastic Aptitude Tests. Other than these, juniors undertook new and more difficult subjects, such as chemistry, trigonometry, and languages with seemingly hundreds of conjugations of verbs.

Tacking wire to the frame, Shawn Rhoderick spends precious hours at float building.

Silently fluffing flowers, Riki Jensen and Leslie Barrett help make last minute float fillers.

Because of a tie vote, four junior girls ride in Homecoming Parade as candidates: Diane Mosser, Sharon Blair, Lisa Groninger, and Lisa Amich.

With real smoke to choke the Warriors, the junior class float rolls onto the Homecoming field.

Class officers: Diane Mosser, Treasurer; Janet Boesch, President; and Cindy Smith, Vice-president.

Constructing the float's frame, Doug Daum and Robert DePree prepare a sturdy base for decorating.

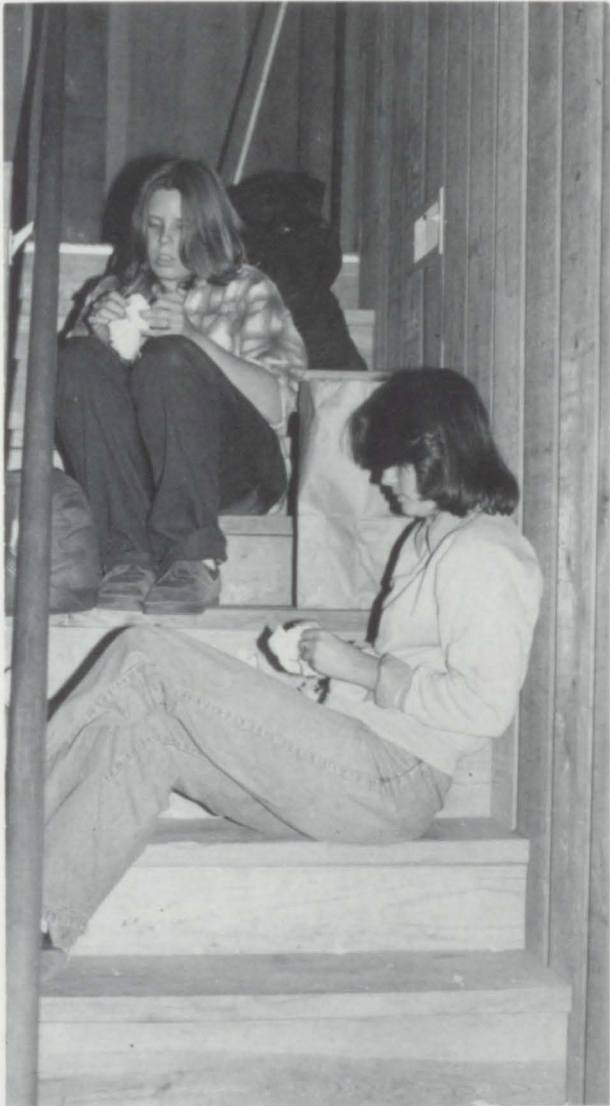

In an uncluttered corner, Melissa Boles and Lisa Albertson fill another sack of fluffed flowers.

Goal posts take on color through effort of Brad Saxman, Karen Allen, Cynthia Roath, and Lee Ann Nay.

Juniors show skills in class

Anxious to taste what he's created in Bachelor Living, Eddie Bradley carefully places his creation into the oven as Riki Jensen watches on.

Testing for the expansion of metal, Jeff Majors and Leo Sackett wait for the outcome of their lab in physics class.

Concentrating on her material, Jill Gee takes a timed writing 3rd hour typing.

With mixed emotions, the Juniors on the sideline nervously watch the Powder Puff football game.

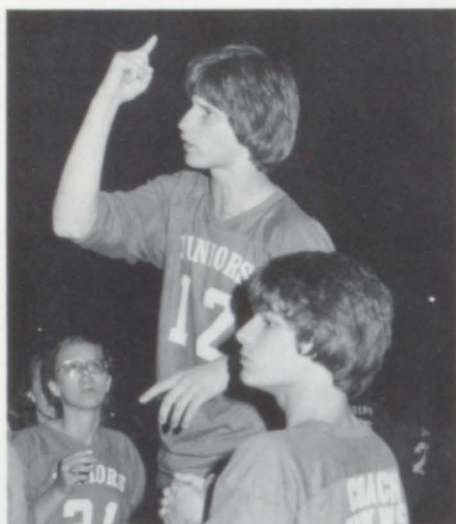

Giving some last advice, Coach Brad Saxman plans his strategy with the Junior Powder Puff team.

Warming up before the game, Cindy Snodgrass shouts out instructions to the rest of the team.

Smiling from the midst of flying debris, Larry Wilson is crowned Powder Puff Prince of 1978.

The Class of 1981 returned in August to a busy schedule of classes, sports, drama, and Homecoming. Powder Puff was a highlight for the sophomores whose girls won the first ever quarter-length clash with the freshmen. Poorer but happier, sophs received their class rings which many immediately wore proudly, traded with someone special, or lost. In addition to the required health class, tenth-graders explored the phase elective program. Many leaped at the chance to take CHAP, which was offered to them for the first time. Others took advanced math and science classes.

After an intensive week's work on the Homecoming float, Mark Stanley waits for the judging to begin.

Ready to pull into place for the Homecoming parade, Miss Lewis escorts princess candidates Jenny Cokain, Kay Newkirk, and Angie Stephens.

Sophs win first Powder Puff

The unknown sophomore pushes The Unknown Float during Powder Puff halftime activities; sophomores did, in fact, "crash the freshmen."

Posed in a carefully practiced formation, Powder Puff cheerleaders Todd Rogers, Tim Dunn, Rex LeMasters, Tom Jent, Kirk Daugherty, and Marty Miller add spirit to their team's victory. Honored by sophomores, Steve Blevins accepts the winner's bouquet.

During last minute preparations, Carl Bennett, Bill Brocius, John Wilson, and Greg Nay, hastily fluff flowers for the freshmen float.

With utmost skill, Nancy Barnett and Darla Phelps create an airplane wing out of hundreds of fluffed flowers.

Class Officers: Vice President John Staab, Secretary-Treasurer Michele Dakin, and President Gene Margiotti.

Waiting for the Homecoming Parade to begin, freshmen princess candidates Kellie Collier, Joni Pappas, and Nancy Ruddick anticipate a momentous evening.

Freshmen soar into Homecoming with a tremendous first effort float.

The freshmen class arrived in August ready to tackle the excitement and responsibility of high school life. The first challenge was building our float. Although we didn't emerge victorious, we were only narrowly beaten by the Seniors. But how could we lose with Gene Margiotti, John Staab, and Michele Dakin? We freshmen were represented in sports and clubs such as varsity and reserve basketball. We participated in band, yearbook, language clubs and varsity swimming. We became active members in Sunshine Society, Camera Club, Drama Club, and Choir. As our first year of participating as high school students unfolded, our school spirit climbed to new heights. We began supporting our own football and basketball teams along with cheering the varsity teams on. All in all, our first year in high school was very successful and promised better years ahead as we work toward '82.

Plainfield cheerleading is a year-round job. Along with their participation at football and basketball games, cheerleaders build school and team spirit with hall decorations, provide clinics for preteen girls, and attend special camps and competitions.

Last summer the girls traveled to Ball State where they received the grand champion trophy out of 28 varsity squads. In addition, at camp they received two best stunt ribbons and two firsts for daily routines. Morgan County competition brought them a third, and later at the State Fair the squad placed 13th out of 62 groups.

Precision movements

The 1978 marching season saw the first appearance of a Rifle and Flag unit here at Plainfield. These two units were joined with a 9-member dance squad to form a 32-member Girls Corps.

In August these girls accompanied the band to Manchester College for a week of band camp. During this week they put in several hours of hard work on their contest routines.

On a rainy September 30 their hard hours of work were fully rewarded. Stepping off the starting line at the Lebanon Band Contest, the Girls Corps led the band to a first division rating. Individual awards were given to each unit: receiving a first were the Rifles and Dancers; finishing second were the Flags.

October came and went, along with the Isma Elf (Captain Betsy Ward). All too soon the girls found themselves preparing for the last basketball game and Senior Night. On this night six Dancers and three Flags performed for their last game at PHS.

Led by Captains Jeff Aldridge, Doug Bennett, Mark Batton, and Dan Amich, the Red Pride football squad pushed through their season with everlasting spirit. Week after week, whether on a sizzling Saturday morning or a rainy Tuesday afternoon, the team prepared for each new contest. The highlight of the season was Homecoming, when the Quaker gridmen treated returning Plainfield graduates to a resounding victory over Whiteland. Three team members received all-conference titles: Brent Eccles, Jack McCarty, and Keith Ward. The most valuable offensive player was Joe Oliphant, while the defense's most valuable player was Kyle Davis.

Finishing the season with a record of 7-2, the Junior Varsity had an impressive year. Tim Reynolds was the leading rusher and scorer, pass receiving was dominated by David Homeier, and Steve Livingston helped produce a winning season with his defensive tackles.

Freshmen gridmen closed the books on the season with a 3-4-1 record. Overcoming a loss to Lebanon, the Quakers tied with Fulton in an exciting game led by captains John Cadwell, Dead Eggers, and Brian Holsclaw. The freshmen also overwhelmed Speedway 18-6 and held

Girls volley into 12 overtimes

Winning two straight sets over Lebanon and Eminence, the Varsity Volleyball team went on to topple Danville and Tri-West. With a schedule of 16 very formidable opponents, the girls, led by captain Barb May, forced the opposition into extra games four times.

With decisive victories over nearby western Boone, Cascade, and Eminence, the Reserve Volleyball team forced eight of their contests into extra games and broke a tied game in our favor. Gaining experience for next season, the girls kept morale and spirit up throughout the grueling schedule.

With practiced skill, Plainfield returns another decisive play.

Bumping the ball, Trish May sets up a spike for the front line.

Tennis players love to win games

With determination Captain Terry Barker shows the style which makes him a good competitor.

Keeping his eye on the ball, senior David Carlin concentrates on a good return.

Most Valuable Player Brad Saxman casually and effortlessly returns the ball.

Racket outstretched, John Kirtley prepares for a slam.

Using quick reflexes, David Groover gets in some practice time before a match.

The 1978 season proved to be another great one for the Quaker tennis team. After losing a good share of seniors the previous spring, the team still maintained a record of twelve victories and six losses. Terry Barker led the team as number one player and team captain. In mid-state competition Brad Saxman placed second, and the doubles team of Carlin and McCoy finished fourth.

With only two players graduating this year, the PHS squad, led by MVP Saxman, anticipates an even better season in the 1979-80 school year.

Girls, boys swim, even with no pool

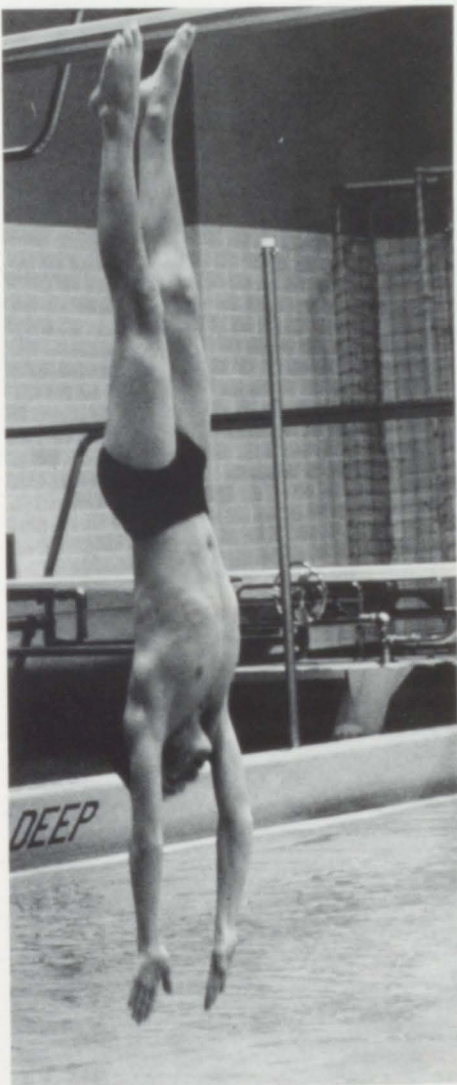

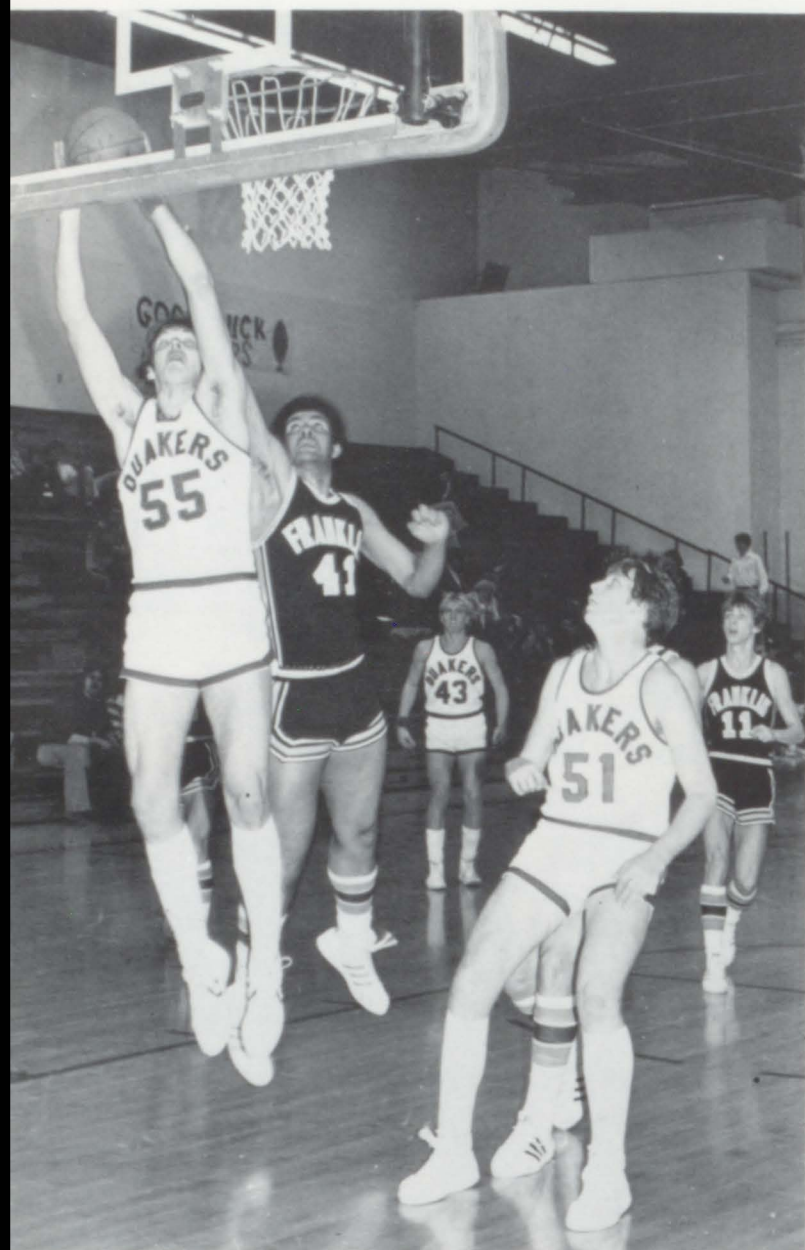

Girls made good use of the pool to rack up new records; the 400 Freestyle Relay Team of Shelly Brown, Cindy Smith, Janet Boesch and Beckie Bennett went to the State Meet. MVS was Janet Boesch; Cindy Smith was lauded for mental attitude. Boys had a rough time, though, for the PHS pool was down all winter. Practices at the Boys School and Youth Center put a strain on the team. But they kept on winning points.

Coach Jack Nay's varsity boys had little trouble handing defeats to Hoosier schools of comparable size this year. Opening the season with wins over Cascade and Avon set the trend. The Quakers pushed the Greenwood game into overtime twice. It was the overload of a tough Indianapolis schedule that set the 1979 season at odds. But the team went out in style against Franklin, their last home game which honored all senior athletes.

Reserve basketball, as usual, served as the curtain-raiser for varsity games, but they didn't offer a relaxing preview of PHS talent. They were cliff hangers all their own. A win-loss record of 9-11 didn't reflect the closeness of the contests. Two of the wins were by only two points, while four of the losses came by two points or less.

Freshmen teams, too, pushed their opponents to several close finishes, although they did breeze by some unsuspecting teams. They offer strong potential for Quaker strength in the 1980's.

Girls team up for tough games

From 98 pounds to heavyweight, wrestlers counted calories, worked out, and entered eighteen meets. Co-captains Greg Scharlau and Jeff Mongen led the squad to a second place county ranking. With only 4 seniors graduating, wrestlers expect a good season next year, especially since county and sectional honors were captured by underclassmen. Both Dan Kinzel, who showed most improvement over the year and was selected MVP, and Dave Bohenkamp, who made 9 pins, won county champ titles. Jeff Wilson earned the Mental Attitude Award. At the close of the season Mr. Freije turned his attention to a summer wrestling clinic.

Quakers bring home victories

Anyone who lived through Coaches Freije and Wood's early morning practices was ready for baseball. And the results were good, for the teams won 18 of their 33 outings. To end the season, a sectional victory was almost in hand, but an extra inning pushed the Martinsville team to a one-point advantage. Brent Eccles was the team's most valuable player. Outstanding on the pitcher's mound was Steve Livingston, who had a win-loss record of 4-1. Greg Everling was honored for his desirable mental attitude.

Girls track team gallops through spring

In a rare appearance as relay runner, Diane Mosser carries baton across line.

Consistently placing well in meets, Libby Givan crosses finish line with breath to spare.

Girls Track Team, Front: Corina Vysma, Teresa Roe, Lori Means, Annette West, Libby Givan, Beth Gee; 2nd Row: Sharon Winters, Melissa Edwards, Lisa Groninger, Kathy Lewis, Alison Clanton, Angie Allen, Kim Patton, Tammy Rawley; Back: Coach Pitcher, Shelley Brown, Crystal Jones, Trish May, Kim Galyan, Diane Mosser, Glynnis Thompson, Coach Greene.

Baton moves from Trish May to Annette West in winning relay.

Easing over the bar, Suzanne Hand moves carefully and strategically.

With her arm bandaged to give it strength, Kim Galyan hurls the softball with enough power to lift her off her feet.

It was a stunning year for girls track as the team won eight of nine meets. The girls took first place at the Hendricks County Track Meet and went on to place third in the Mid-state. Beth Gee and Annette West won their events at the sectionals and Annette took fifth place in the 880 at the regionals. Beth Gee set a school record of 11.0 in the low hurdles. Annette West bettered the old PHS record in the 880 with a time of 2:26.4

Mid-State—23 points, 3rd place

The 1979 girls tennis team was led by the number one singles player, senior Laurie Holbrook. In addition to winning eleven of twelve matches, Holbrook also captured her second Mid-State title. The team took third place out of ten in the Mid-State matches.

Preparing to hit a short return, Karen Allen concentrates on her forehand.

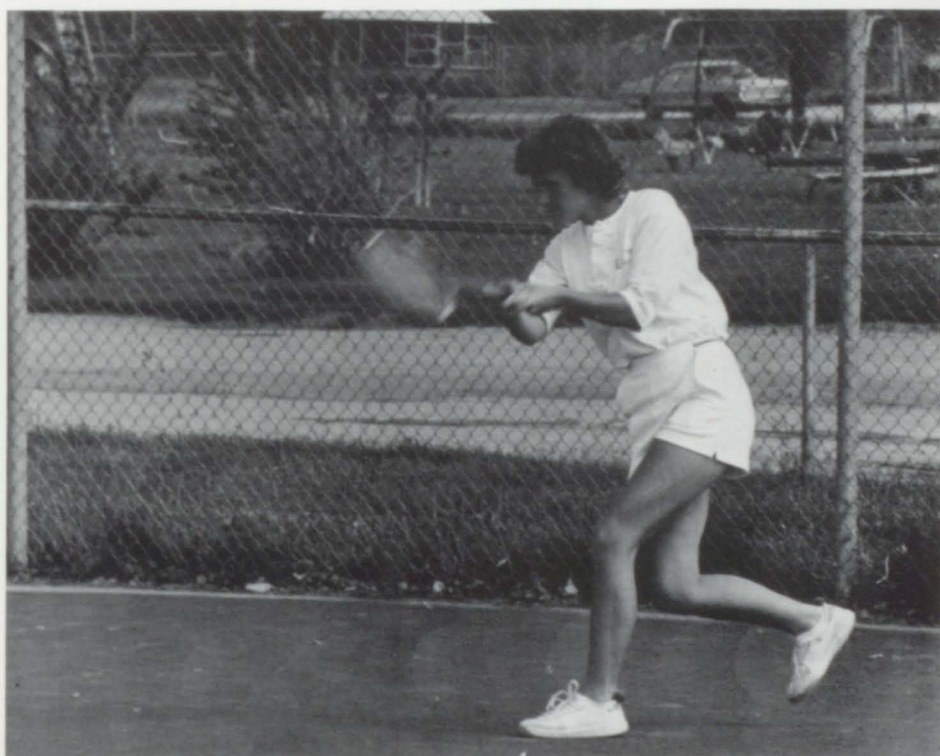

Before a match, number two singles player Lisa Sauer practices her serve.

Fair weather teams win seasons

Cross Country Team, Front: Brian Catt, Jeff Scharlau, Chuck Williams, Greg Burdsall; Back: Jeff Gossman, Jim Ragsdale, Chuck Kelly, Greg Scharlau, Coach Lynn.

Pacing himself along Swinford Park boundary, Chuck Williams proves to be a valuable runner for Quakers.

With wood in hand, Buzz Keltner tees up to drive down the fairway.

Calculating his next putt, Dave Carlin squats to line up ball on green.

Most Valuable Runner and Captain of the Cross Country Team is sophomore Jeff Gossman.

It's time for a break under the shade of a nearby evergreen for runner Greg Burdsall.

Golf Team: Alan Pearman, Jeff Yochum, Mark Daum, Buzz Keltner, David Carlin, Jeff Miracle, Brad Rogers

Cross Country season moved through late summer into early fall, and the team had to run regardless of the heat. If they ever felt it, they never showed it, but they applied plenty to their opponents as they won every meet.

In spring, golfers turned toward the greens. Playing a very full schedule, the team won 15 of their meets. They went on to place well in the county, mid-state, and sectional tourneys. Freshman Jeff Miracle was a third medalist at the state level.

Sports continued to be a major activity at PHS this year. Girls and boys leaped into the fall season and continued through a fast-paced year of team and individual sports. Within each activity athletes were honored; practically every sport had a most valuable player award and many gave recognition to the person who displayed the best mental attitude throughout the season. Awards nights after fall, winter, and spring sports publicly acknowledged the achievements of PHS students by handing out awards, letters, and sweaters to deserving athletes. Five major athletic awards were presented on Awards Night, May 15, in Aiken Auditorium. Athletic Direc-

On behalf of Nancy Cokain, Girls Athletic Director, Mr. Muston also handed Laurie Holbrook the award for an excellent senior athlete.

Cheerleaders, Pep Club and Pep Band work together to raise spirit for Quakers.

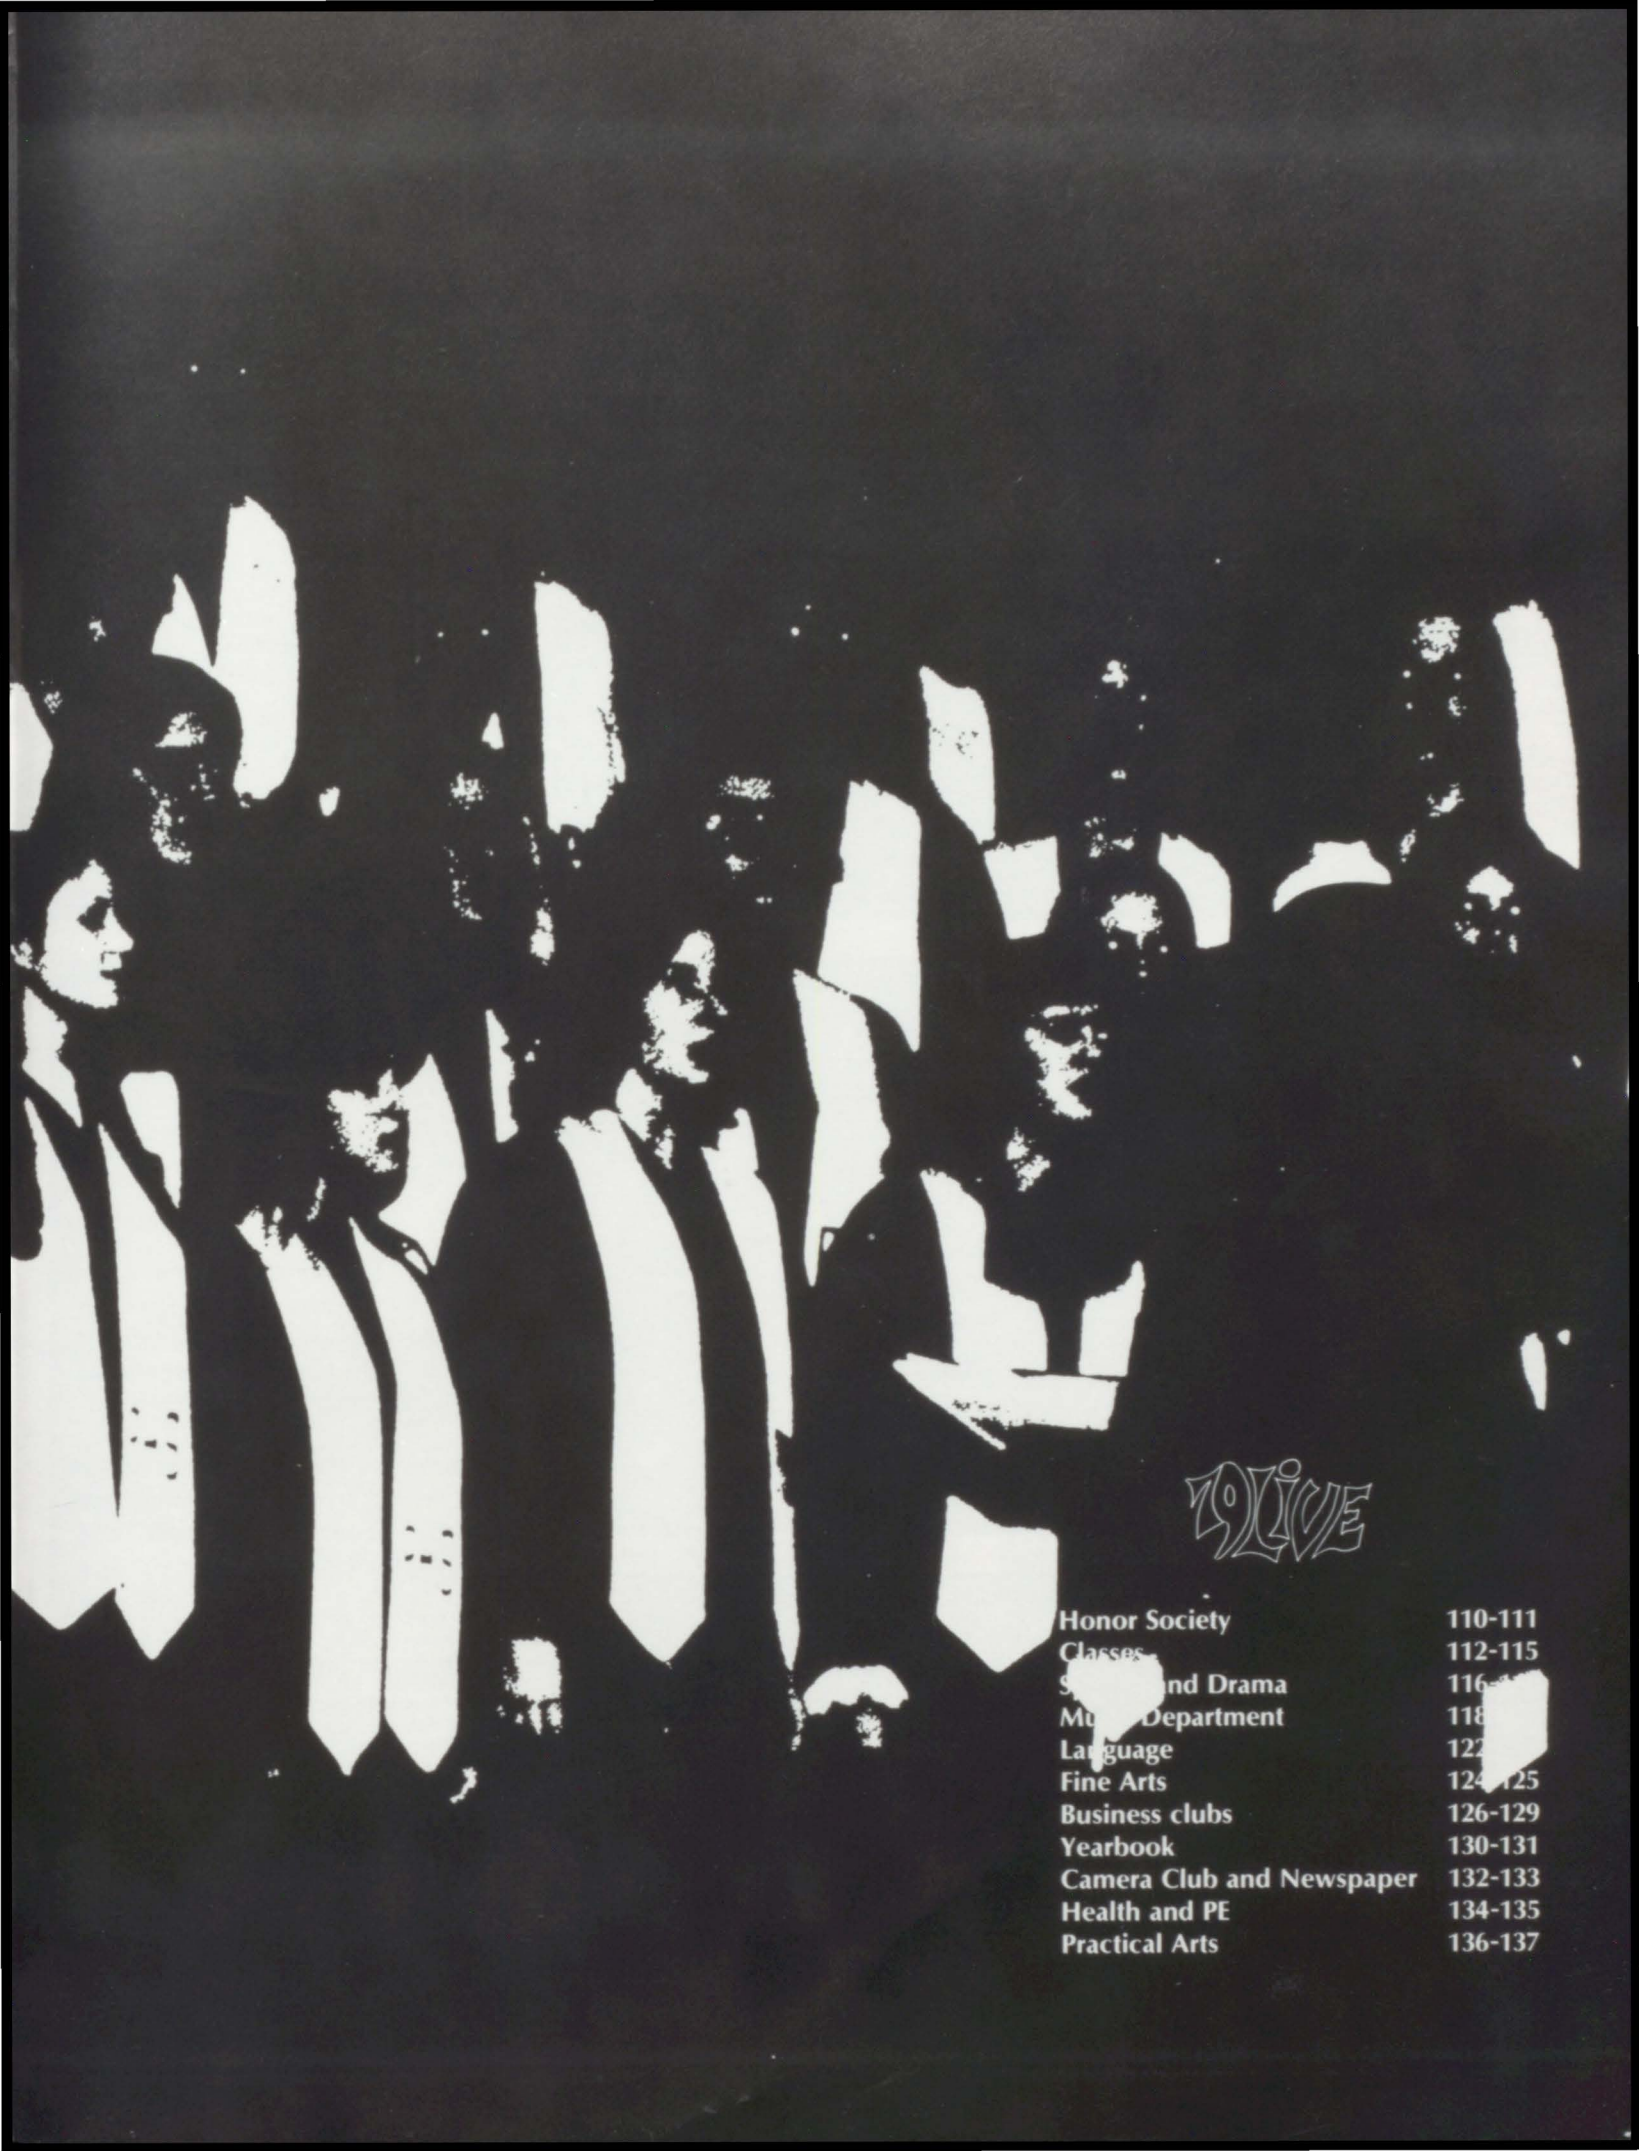

Red Pride and Quaker spirit filled the gym when the Pep Band and Pep Club walked in. Clothed in red and blue, they cheered, chanted and played music. Night games were brief for the Club and Band, though, compared to the hours they put in behind the scenes. Pep Band members practiced their routines and added to school pep sessions. Pep Club girls painted signs lining the PHS halls before each home game, decorated the homes of basketball players before sectionals, sold candy sticks to finance their projects, and supported the cheerleaders in an effort to fire up the school.

Whether titrating for an acid or exploring a pig's "innards", the science department offers a wide variety of courses to interest everyone. Labs explore Newton's laws of motion, chemical interaction and the interior of a woody stem.

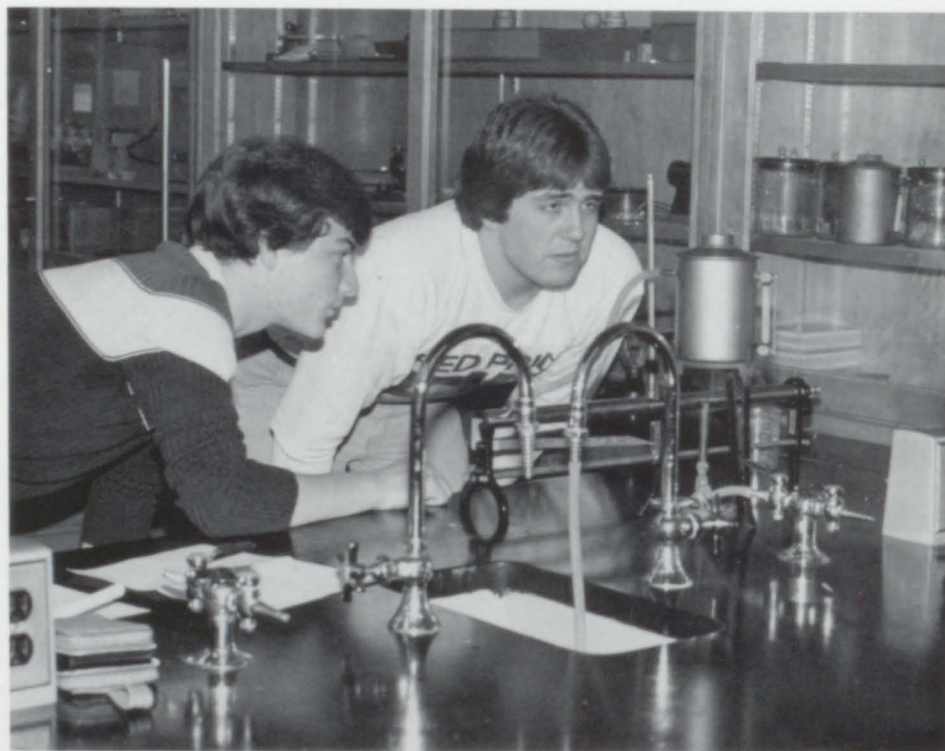

Mathematics span many degrees of difficulty for both illogical and analytical minds. Modern day technology has influenced math classes with the inclusion of calculators throughout the curriculum.

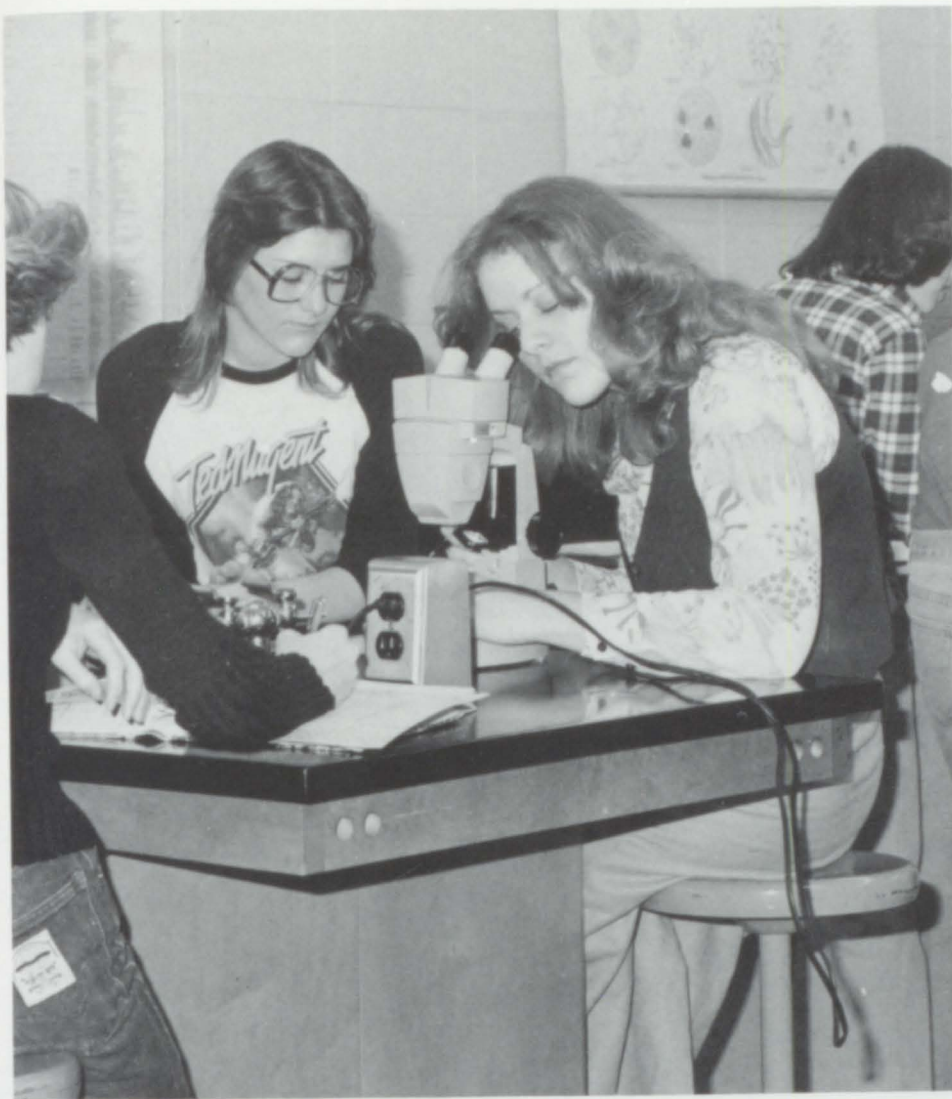

Participants in the math contest held at Rose Hulman are Rick Masselink, Tom Jent, Linda LaRoche, Lynaire Smith, Janell Duncan, Mary Ann Meyers, Stacey Peters, Dan Wisehart, Tom Hawk, Chuck Rogers, Alan Wilson and Gerry Wright.

Math, Science explore theories and theorems

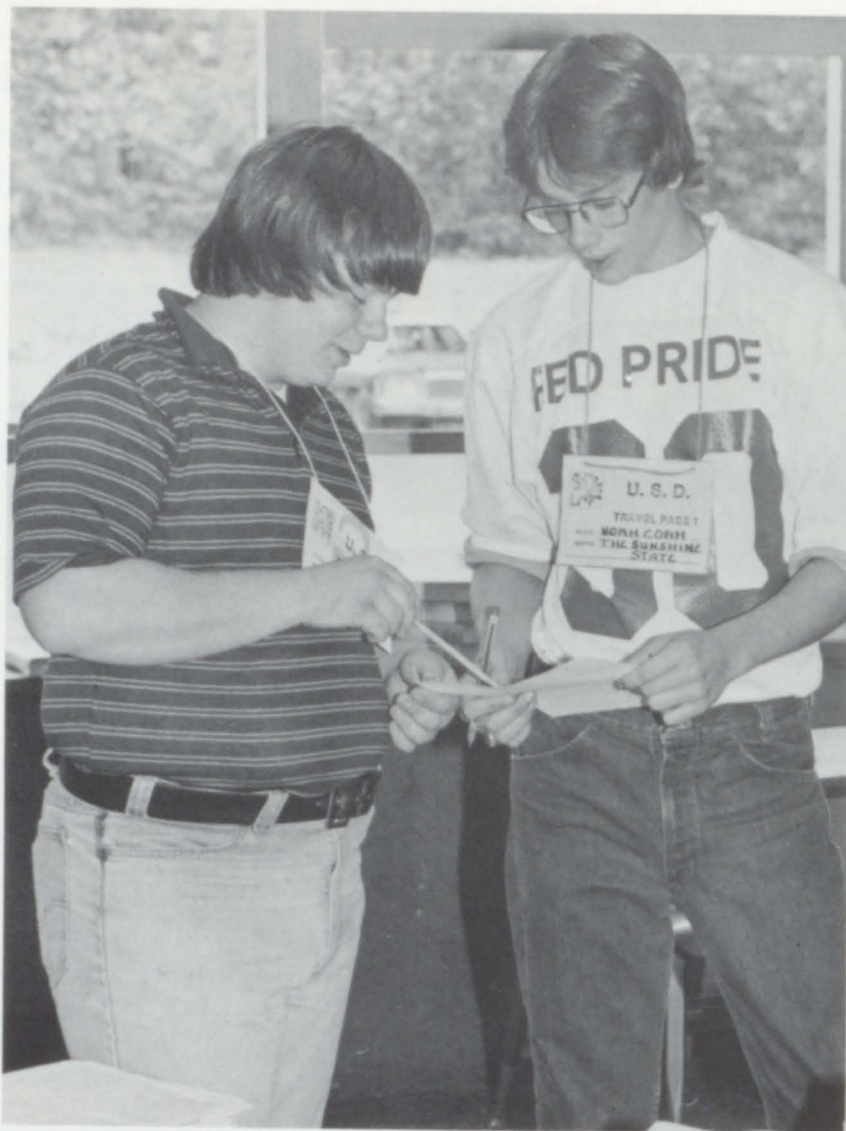

Taking care to observe every microbe on the slide, Judy Crump and Janet VanVlyman try to get all data possible before their biology period ends. Using care and precision, Kevin Gulley expertly wields his compass to finish a geometry class assignment.

With utmost precision, Doug Bennett flames his innoculating needle during a chemistry lab.

Taking time out for thought, Tina Smiley and Amy Boyer ponder a particularly hard algebra problem.

During a computer math class, Dan Wisehart demonstrates his knowledge of electronics to Brian Swift and Gary Montgomery.

Experiencing problems of government in the game "Disunia", Don Seneff and Mark Jerome complete a monetary transaction.

Narrowing their outlook on history to that of Hendricks County are Indiana History students John Kolodziej, Stephanie Gilfillan, J.R. Mauck and Brad Jones.

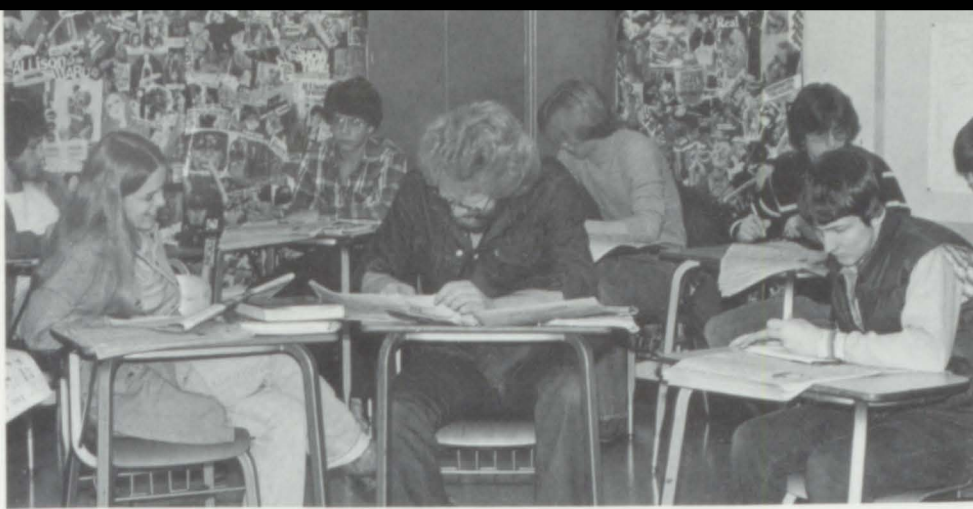

"Sweeping Up", during class, Pat Turner does the role assigned to him.

In English classes, students learn how to communicate more fluently with their fellowman. Composition literature courses entail intensive reading and writing assignments.

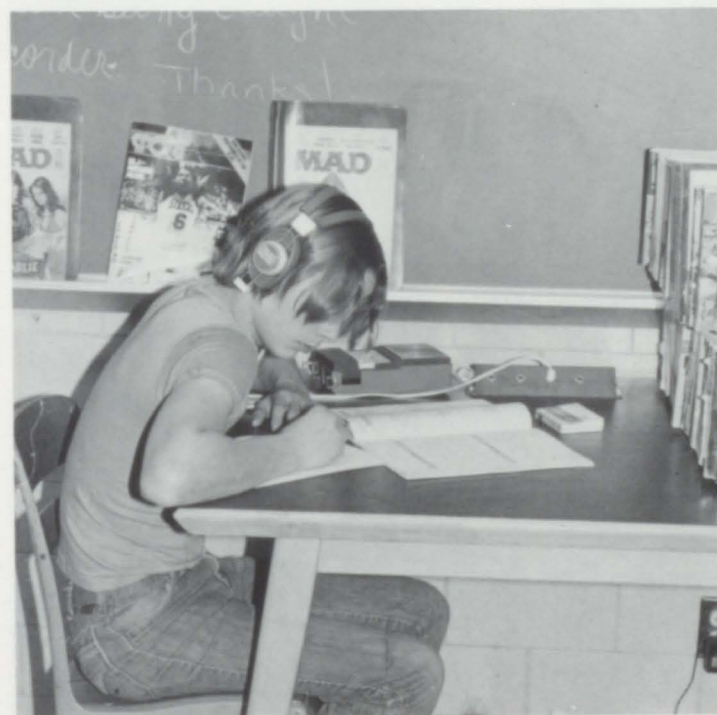

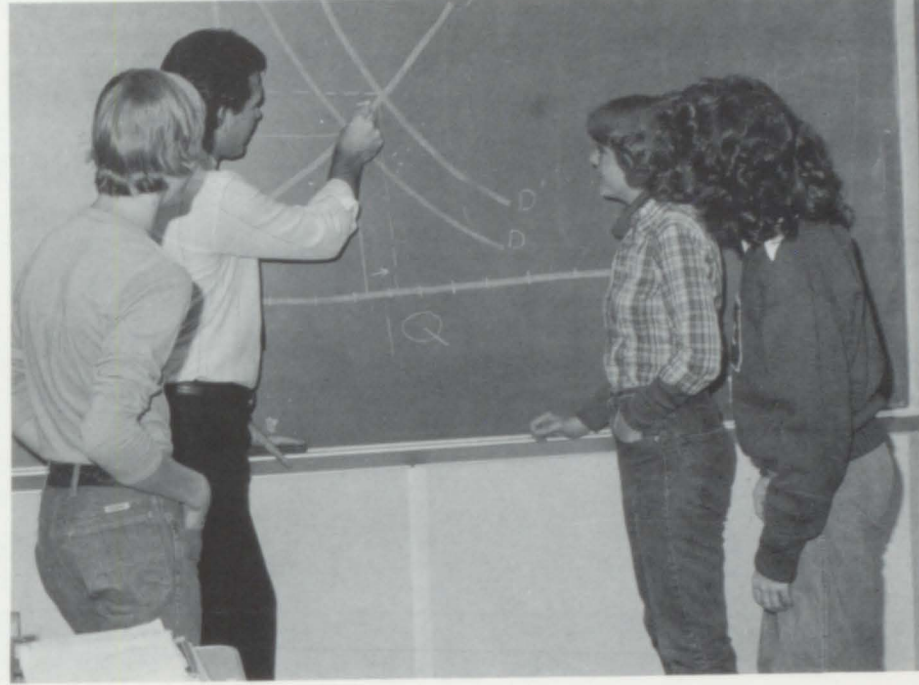

U.S. History, Government and Economics classes teach students of a different mode of living, both past, present and future. Sociology and Psychology classes teach about the mind and the individual in society.

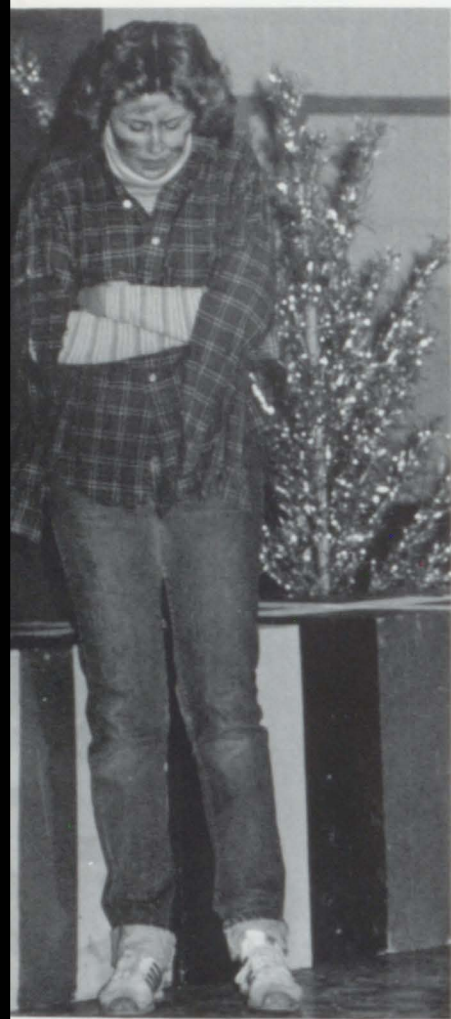

Wide variety of courses offered in English, Social Studies

While looking through papers for Sociology class, Debbie Loechel, Dan McCullough and Mark Turley make the best of their class time. Using colored markers and rulers to make her drawing perfect, Janet Boyer learns the technicalities and artistry of planning stage sets. Showing off his artistic ability, Mr. Theobald uses a graph to illustrate a problem to Greg Scharlau, Judith Johnson and Joni Burlison. Building reading speed and comprehension through special labs, Bobby Ping bows his head in concentration. Having fun while learning "Kiddie Lit.", Paula Chandler entertains friend during class.

Strolling out of the kitchen at the start of the feast, Mike Baldwin and Gerry Wright sing while holding their candles high.

During the Christmas choral concert, the choir festively sang well rehearsed songs.

Choir, Glee participate in concerts, contests

Busy with practices and rehearsals, all choral groups made use of the class time allotted them. Most of the choral groups' agenda included a Christmas and spring concert, as well as a contest.

This year the choir was invited again to sing in Christmas on the Circle. Among numerous concerts, the appearance at commencement stood out in the Seniors' minds, it being their last.

The swing choir, otherwise known as Belles and Beaux, master techniques more intricate than do the other groups. Members must have an astute mind since the group does plenty of memorizing. The Women's Club, Open House and several concerts at school number among their appearances.

The fine arts gave PHS students a break from their regular daily curriculum. Art and Music classes helped students develop and exercise their latent talents. Students chose from a host of classes varying in difficulty and interest.

Working on their wall mural project in the central offices are Joni Burlison, Tammi Baskerville and Sandi Chenowith.

Newly formed Camera Club and R.S.V.P. work together

Working on the newspaper staff gave one a unique learning experience as well as the satisfaction of producing a quality piece of journalism. Working constantly, the R.S.V.P. staff published 4 issues this year.

New this year, the Camera Club consisted of students interested in photography as a hobby. Working closely with the Yearbook and the newspaper, pictures taken by the Camera Club were the ones generally used by these publications.

An emphasis on health, fun and fitness is a characteristic of most P.E. classes. Students can choose a wide variety of activities, ranging from swimming to tennis. The diversity of these classes is especially important to freshmen, who must participate in these classes all year. More advanced activities challenge students who are interested in physical education as a profession or want fun and exercise during their day.

Health classes move beyond a study of anatomy to include social health problems and individual responsibility in a healthy society. Demonstrations in this class include the life saving technique CPR.

Homecoming '78 Sparks Quakers' Spirit

Within two weeks, the student body of PHS was busily preparing for the 1978 Homecoming. Queen and Princess candidates were chosen and class floats began to take form. As the big day drew closer, anticipation mounted.

Friday, September 29, arrived with perfect weather for a homecoming. The day's activities began with a morning pep session to bolster enthusiasm even higher. Spirits remained high throughout the remaining school day right into the parade.

The Quaker team kept up the excitement, scoring touchdowns from the start of the game to give Plainfield the lead at halftime over the White-land Warriors. The Plainfield Show-band opened halftime with an encore performance, after which the Queen, Susan Hart, was announced with Sharon Blair, Angie Stephens, and Joni Pappas as her Court. The senior float captured first place with its original design. The Quaker team proceeded to keep their lead, to make it a victorious Homecoming for everyone at PHS.

Happiness shines from Susan Hart as she is crowned Homecoming Queen.

With ease and perfection, the winning Senior float proves who's best during the pregame parade.

While standing still, the Plainfield Marching Band plays another recognizable melody at the halftime show.

Enthusiasm erupts as Mr. Reedy, Miss Bowie, and Mrs. Cokain try to arouse spirit in their fellow classmates Mr. Dykes, and Mr. Shew at the early morning pep session faculty skit.

Ready to begin, Suzanne Hand and Joni Burlison prepare to lead the Red Pride Showband at the beginning of the halftime entertainment.

Powderpuff Night Belongs to Sophomores and Juniors

The fourth annual Jr.-sr. powderpuff football game was here again, but this year's game brought about new and exciting changes. A short game between the freshmen and sophomore girls was to be played in addition to the traditional jr.-sr. game. And what football season is without a homecoming? Certainly not our girls' one-game "season." The Student Council planned a full-fledged homecoming with class floats and a ruling king and court.

As a result, powderpuff players weren't the only people busy preparing for the big night. Ingenious floats were being constructed from grocery carts and left-over lunch pennies were being dropped into favorite king and prince candidate boxes.

The fresh.-soph.'s game opened the night's festivities with a complete victory for the sophomores. The seniors looked the victors at first, until the junior team scored their first of several touchdowns. From then on, it was a sure win for the juniors.

Senior Coaches, John Haley, Alan Wilson, and Bill Conn contemplate and yell encouragement from the sidelines.

Cringes and wild gestures characterize the eerie wizard, Wayne Long, as he questions Janet Boyer.

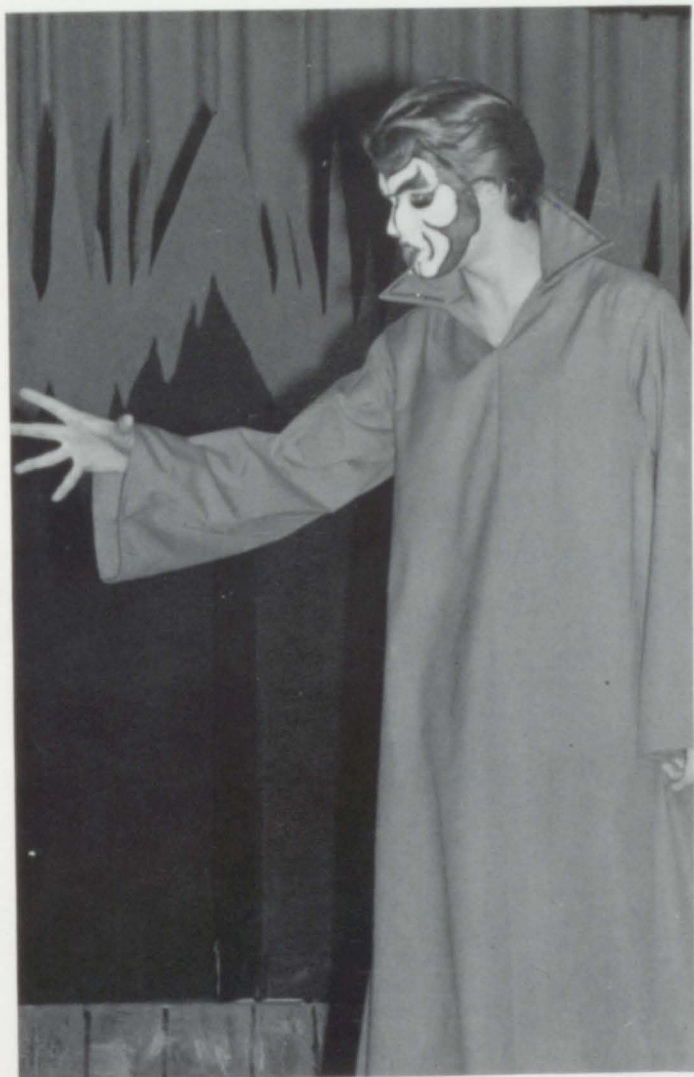

Whether or not Satan had anything to do with the Salem, Massachusetts, witchhunt of 1692, he certainly had nothing to do with the Plainfield Drama Department's production of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible."

Based on fact, the heavy drama led a tense audience through a helter-skelter plot filled with superb acting. Opening with the haunting "Tubular Bells," and leading to an unforgettable figure of death, each scene clearly focused on the mishaps of a small New England town stricken with discrimination and hatred. The high point came with a brilliantly acted courtroom scene which left the audience even more intrigued.

While "The Crucible" expressed the value of a man's name during its time period, it also was Mr. Miller's reaction to the McCarthy Trials of the early 1950's, when the country was witnessing a horror similar to that of a small village nearly four hundred years earlier.

In glowing candlelight, Angie Walker and Dave Christy march into the Madrigal evening's medieval castle.

And the Madrigal begins! Doug Johnson, Tim Taylor and John Allen announce the opening procession.

Wondering what's in the punch, seniors Doug Bennett and Maureen Dakin participate in their last Madrigal at P.H.S.

Court page David Ruark delivers the boar's head to assembly as busy kitchen help watch.

Singing carols, Terry Barker and Judith Johnson entertain the listening diners.

Taking their places at the banquet tables, members of the Madrigal chorus, Gerry Wright, Mike Baldwin, John Himmelheber, Mary Wertz, Shelly Bridwell, Terry Barker, Dave Christy, and Judith Johnson, welcome their guests to the traditional Christmas dinner with song.

The arrival of Christmas heralded the usual flurry of activity for everyone, and the Belles and Beaux were no exception. Christmas-time meant Madrigal-time, which the singers were actively preparing for.

Up to two weeks before the feast, a volunteer stage crew was busy building a new set that would change the cafeteria into Medieval England. Christmas trees, candles and pine boughs depicted the Yuletide Season of hundreds of years ago. Many new gowns and costumes were being sewn and ordered, in addition to the old wardrobe, to further the total effect.

Opening with the traditional trumpet fanfare welcoming the guests, the procession of Lords and Ladies entered and took their seats. After a delicious meal, a hush fell over the dining room and the Belles and Beaux began their much practiced medley of traditional Christmas songs to an assembly of family and friends.

Students at P.H.S. go country-western

One thing was certain—"it sho' weren't no ordinary dance." This year, the Juniors and Seniors sponsored a dance very unlike the usual formal dance. Tickets went on sale at $2.00 per couple for the first Turnabout Barn Dance. The turnabout was—the girls asked the guys, and the barn was—the high school cafeteria.

Scattered with bales of hay and equipped with a stereo sound system, the cafeteria started filling up at 8:00 with couples dressed in jeans, overalls, cowboy boots and hats, or anything else that had that country air.

The action began right away, with plenty of free food and Coke, dancing, raffles, and games. Even though it was a barn dance, that didn't keep students from dancing a few "not-so-country" dances—especially when a disco contest crept up, but the favorite remained the Virginia Reel. Everyone left feeling tired, but happy, and the Junior and Senior's treasury was a little richer.

Brushing off a few strands of hay, Dean Eggers checks Janet Niemeyer's hair for any more.

"It's a work of art!" persuades Rick Masselink as he displays the raffle prize drawn by Mrs. Carrigan's son.

Noses to the ground, the guys get set to push their peanuts across the floor in a race to the finish, although it appears some would rather do it their own way.

It's time-out for a Coke break as Joe Crugnale accepts two glass-fuls from Diane Mosser.

Accepting their prizes from Doug Bennett, Mitzi Buis and Lynn Mongan marvel at their good fortune in winning out-of-date T.V. Guides.

R-E-D P-R-I-D-E Alive in Full Stride

What do Quakers have that nobody else has? Red Pride! And it was certainly evident during the many Pep Sessions and Spirit Boosters held throughout the year, not to mention the sport events.

Homecoming began the year generating a spirit that never died. The Marching and Pep Bands kept home games lively with their halftime shows and crowd-pleasing tunes. The Girls' Auxiliary Corps added flair with their colorful opening and halftime routines. Student Council and Cheerleaders contributed to much of the fun with their original skits during Pep Sessions.

Of course, none of this could have happened without the active participation of Pep Club and, most importantly, students. They painted and hung signs throughout the school, dressed in crazy clothes for Spirit Week, decorated basketball players' homes, and supported their school enthusiastically. It all added up to a great year for PHS Spirit.

Cheering to the Pep Band's music, students catch the spirit and pass it on.

The lights slowly dimmed, the band played a medley of familiar songs, the curtain opened, and "Oh, what a beautiful morning" began an oh-what-a-beautiful evening in Aiken Auditorium.

Oklahoma, the Pulitzer Prize winning musical, was one of the Plainfield Drama and Music Departments' most extravagant productions, complete with a set that included two houses and stage-height trees. The audience traveled back seventy-five years to the open territory before Oklahoma became a state.

Against this backdrop two men—charismatic Curly played by John Himmelheber, and rugged Jud played by Dave Lemonds—rivalled over lovely and naive Laurie, played by Delisa Rogers. While ranchers and farmers became friends, Laurie and Curly's romance developed and Oklahoma became a state.

At the final curtain on Saturday night, the cast and crew as well as the audience agreed that Oklahoma was, indeed, OK!

Taking their time, the close Junior team carefully unravels their maypole slow enough to keep it from becoming tangled but yet fast enough to stay in pace with their competition. "Giddy-up," shouted Nancy Ruddick just before she and her Freshman teammate began the piggyback race down the gymnasium stretch. Impatience mounts as Seniors Jenny Scifres and Brent Eccles desperately help Patsy Keeton untangle the rope from around herself. A victorious cheer results from faculty members as they successfully complete the ominous pyramid. All's in good timing as Sophomores Darla Walters, Beckie Bennett, and Shelly Holzknicht glide down the gymnasium floor while backholding a slippery ball. With the aid of another Senior, Doug Bennett prepares for the place setting stunt with Lynn Morgan's help.

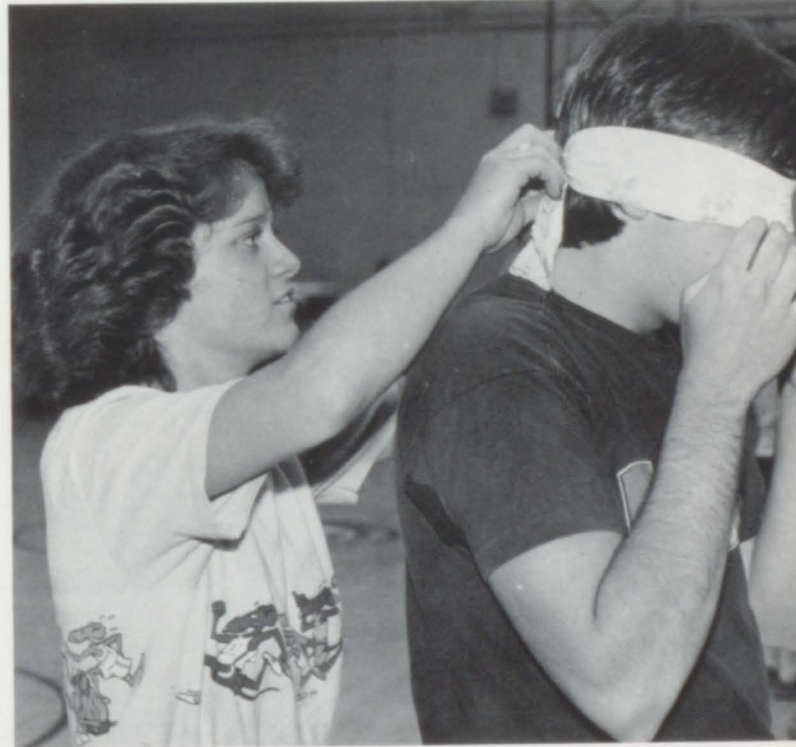

As April showers began to fall, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes once again organized another detailed, fun-filled, and enthusiastic "Almost Anything Goes."

Weeks before the occasion, Mr. Conley, FCA Sponsor, earnestly began recruiting members of the student body and faculty into participating their minds and muscles in a series of excruciating events.

As the twentieth drew near, each class and the administration had a team of eager athletes anxious to get the most popular class competition race of the year underway.

Finally, their moment arrived. With a short explanation preceding each obstacle, the night of utter rivalry began. The array of fans were led from one event to another toward the finish where the Seniors were found to be the victors, and the lead in the Clash of the Classes was in their hands.

Everything does go At Almost Anything Goes

Quaker couples "Got the night" and the weekend

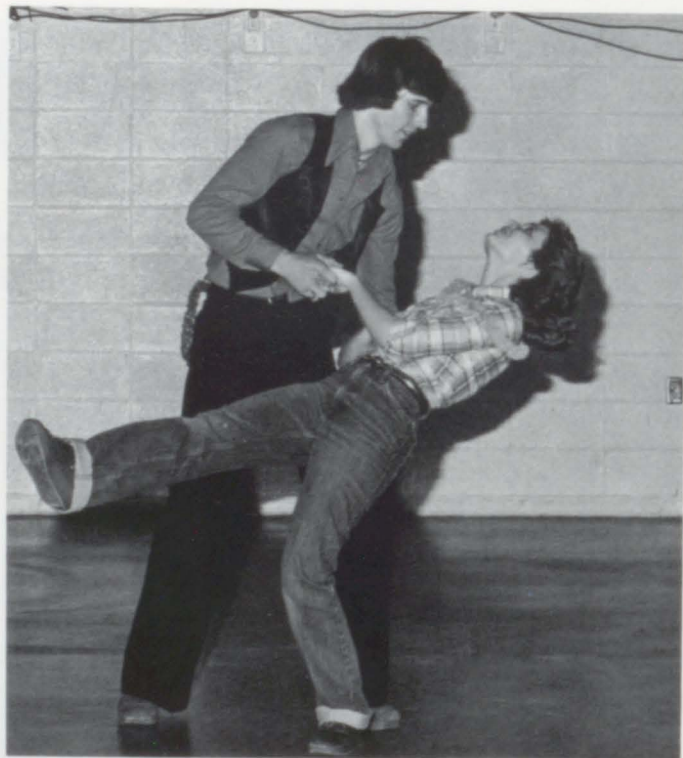

Planning for this year's 1979 Prom officially began the week after Christmas Vacation. Students volunteered their time to producing a memorable occasion with Bob Seger's "We've Got Tonight" as its theme.

The Indianapolis Convention Center was chosen as the main attraction and the High School Gymnasium as the second feature. As April 28 drew near, P.H.S. couples prepared themselves for a momentous event.

Saturday arrived with afternoon expectations high only to be calmed as the evening got underway. By 9:00 p.m., early arrivals entered into a beautifully decorated ballroom where excitement was to be at their mercy until midnight.

As the clock struck twelve, the enthusiastic dates returned home, planning to attend the Post-Prom. Recreation facilities were at their disposal, refreshments were available, and prizes were given to those who had come to enjoy the three hour excursion.

Sunday was planned by the couples themselves. Many spent the day at King's Island, an excellent climax to a weekend of fun and togetherness.

Heading toward the photographer, Patti Kiefer and her date leave the line of couples waiting to be photographed.

Dancing the night away, Mitchell Speaks and Julie Wallace return from the Prom to Post-Prom, only to step the pace up a little more.

With a big smile, Julie Perkins reaches hopefully for the winning ticket as Mr. Dykes and a parent look on.

Interests caught, David Christie and his date, Lori Kesterson, take a look at the art decorating the Convention Center's halls.

Taking a rest from the dancing, couples gather 'round their table for some friendly conversation at the Prom.

Also gathered 'round their table for a rest, these tired Post-prom participants don't seem to be doing quite as much conversing.

Couples sway to the soft music of The Continentals as the Prom of '79 comes to an end.

Field Day brings a Vacation from afternoon classes

For the first time in many years, the Student Council sponsored an event akin to that of F.C.A.'s "Almost Anything Goes."

"Field Day" was the grand finale of a year-long competition known as the Clash of the Classes. The afternoon of fun was filled with events taking place on the football field, an area needed for many of the obstacles which required students to bring forth their all.

From an obstacle course to a tug-of-war, members of teams representing each class were "tested" for their vigor. Freshmen played Sophomores, Juniors played Seniors, and the winners played each other.

When the event came to a close, it was tallied that the Freshmen had overcome their elders, but it was the Seniors who were champions of the Clash of the Classes.

The stretcher race brings forth much enthusiastic stamina from the Senior team as the hurriedly run down the football field.

"One-two; one-two" repeat Juniors Steve Livingston and Brenda Hancock, guiding their 'three legs' successfully ahead of their competition.

"It's a bird, it's a plane!" No, it's Sophomore Natalie Homan high above the ground for the first hurdle in the obstacle course.

Role reversal is essential when the Senior girls chase the Junior boys in quest of possessing the latter's hat.

"PULL!!!" Strains the Freshmen team as they put their weight into the tug-of-war.

Cinderella never had it so tough, realizes Laura Ragan while sweeping a football across the football field for the Freshmen team.

A helping hand is lent by Eric Fuller and Rusty Fairfield as Susan Hart puts the finishing touches on her graduation robe.

The Grand Finale of 12 years arrives for Barb May as she receives the long awaited diploma. At the sound of "Pomp and Circumstance," the graduates of 1979 begin their processional.

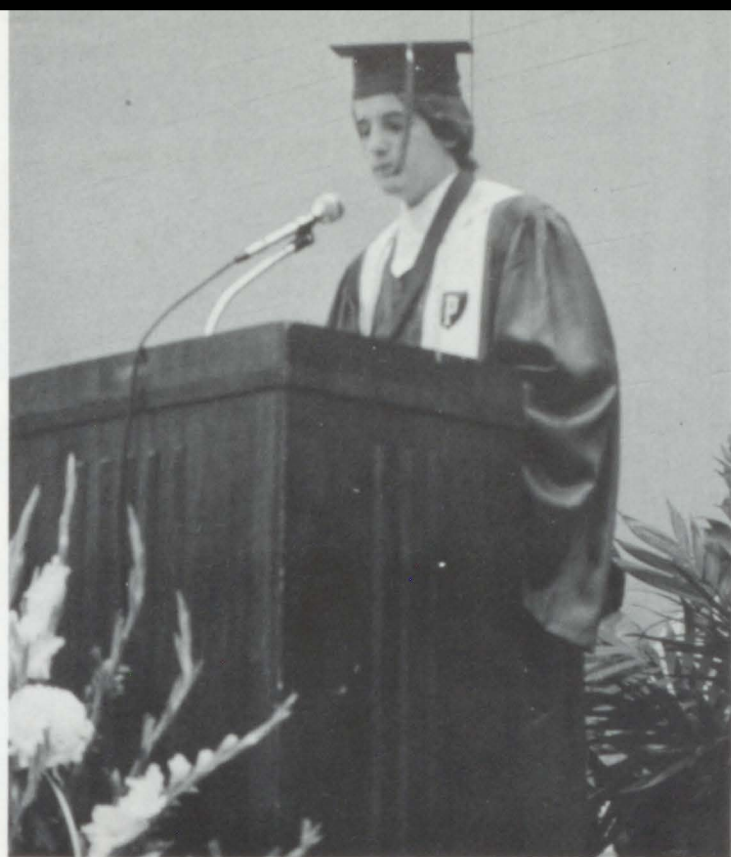

"We made it," whispers the class of '79 as they listen to Pastor Kent Allen with an audience of half of Plainfield's population.

Addressing his fellow classmates, Valedictorian Rick Masselink gives a sentimental farewell which earned him a standing ovation from his peers.

Salutatorian Pam Moss looks on as other National Honor Society members, Nancy Joswick, Allen Isenogle, and Janice Hughes receive their honorary gold cords from Miss Reel.

The graduation of 1979 was, in only one way, no different from any other: the gymnasium was converted to the largest "sauna bath" in the world, proving to be a very warm climax to twelve years of hard work.

All was disconcerted at afternoon practice as the Seniors crammed to learn the right step and where to sit amidst a design which formed a large red "P" within a field of blue. After the first try, the impatient graduates were dismissed, only to anxiously await the final hour.

Seven-thirty arrived and the show began, on time! Last minute hugs and handshakes were exchanged just before the High School Band played the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance."

After the processional, Dr. Marc S. Hays gave the invocation. Mr. Kent Allen addressed the graduates, followed by Rick Masselink's valedictorian speech. Preceding the presentation of diplomas, Salutatorian Pam Moss directed the class in the turning of the tassels.

The minutes that followed were that of total chaos, as the Class of 1979 celebrated the beginning of the beginning.

Whistles blew, oatmeal flew,
And the Class of '79 bids adieu
