A YEAR IN THE LIFE

OF PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL

A Year in the Life:

Vying for first place in the winter pep session's "Coach Greene Contest," Jeff Bryant, Tim Sweeney, John Greenwald, and Erin Greene show their unhappines over referee Bruce Baker's bad call.

Competition was a vital part of life at PHS. Some friendly, some fierce — all of it was designed to challenge and bring out the best in students. In addition to athletic contests, students competed against other schools academically. Super Bowl and Spell Bowl teams represented Plainfield admirably. Classes clashing against each other caused the colorful Homecoming floats and tough tackling in the traditional Powderpuff games. Within classrooms competition between groups (such as in Econ) put learning on a cooperative basis, while individual students worked for the special recognition of National Honor Society, Salutatorian, or Valedictorian. For most, this year in the life of PHS involved competition on a daily basis.

Classroom competition in the form of a Trivial Pursuit game allows freshmen Ryan Coe, Mike Bunting, and Shannon Wilson to learn the use of library materials with Mrs. Carrigan.

Academic Super Bowl competition requires hours of preparation; Marie Gillespie reviews logic with English team. Coaches East, Sudler, and Teany are thrilled with Jenny Taylor's run.

A Year in the Life:

Freshman Greg Schaffer finishes a Writer's Gallery assignment by typing his masterpiece in the Applications Lab.

It was 7:40, and students scrambled through the halls to get to class. Another day of school began. From those that paid attention to those that were preoccupied with thoughts of Friday night's game, each person came, day in and day out, to the welcoming halls of PHS in hopes of enriching his or her future. Some were weary-eyed from studying the night before for the big test; others rushed to complete the homework assignment they had forgotten about. When bells rang again, the halls were crowded with students rushing from one end of the building to the other. Some gathered in groups, gossiping, while others slowly slid to class, wishing they were back in sunny Florida. So went the day until 2:35 when students rushed on to work or practice. They would be back for another day at PHS.

Puzzled by the electric keyboards, Darrell Close and Debi Edmondson pause to work out the problem.

Standing in front of Mr. Effinger's Periodic Table of Students, Mike Griffin weighs his materials before continuing his laboratory experiment.

A Year in the Life:

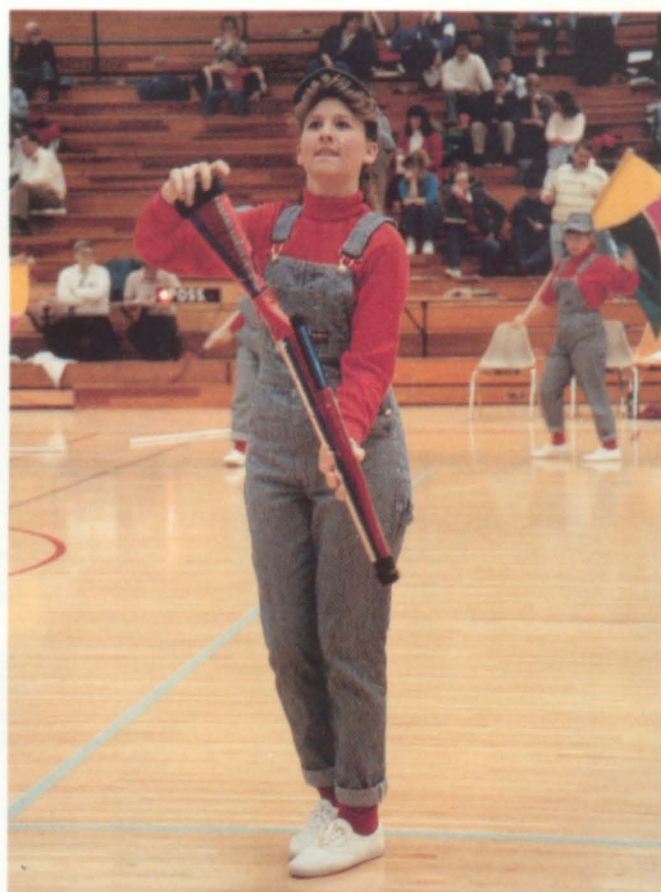

Marching magnificently in the Hoosier Dome, our Red Pride Marching Band comes home with a fifth place in the ISSMAA finals.

Creativity had many outlets at PHS this year. Art, music, and drama invovled students both in classes as well as out. Commercial art and drawing and painting classes decorated the showcase all year long. Fall brought the school musical; set crews designed a yellow brick road while witches (both good and bad) rehearsed. The Red Pride Marching Band had a tremendously successful season, topped by the arrival of Mrs. Elliott's baby and a fifth-place finish in the state. Belles et Beaux, the ever popular and prestigious singing group, toured competitively, including a 3-day stay in Chicago. Theater performances included The Mousetrap and what may become an annual event, "Star Pride." Debaters performed in as well as hosted a meet in the fall. Creatively, it was a full year in the life of PHS.

Tooling requires precise work; Sharlene Miller carefully designs and decorates a strip of leather.

Immensely successful, the fall production of The Wizard of Oz allows the cast to perform to a packed auditorium in all three productions; here, to the delight of the young Saturday afternoon audience especially, the wicked witch is gone!

A Year in the Life:

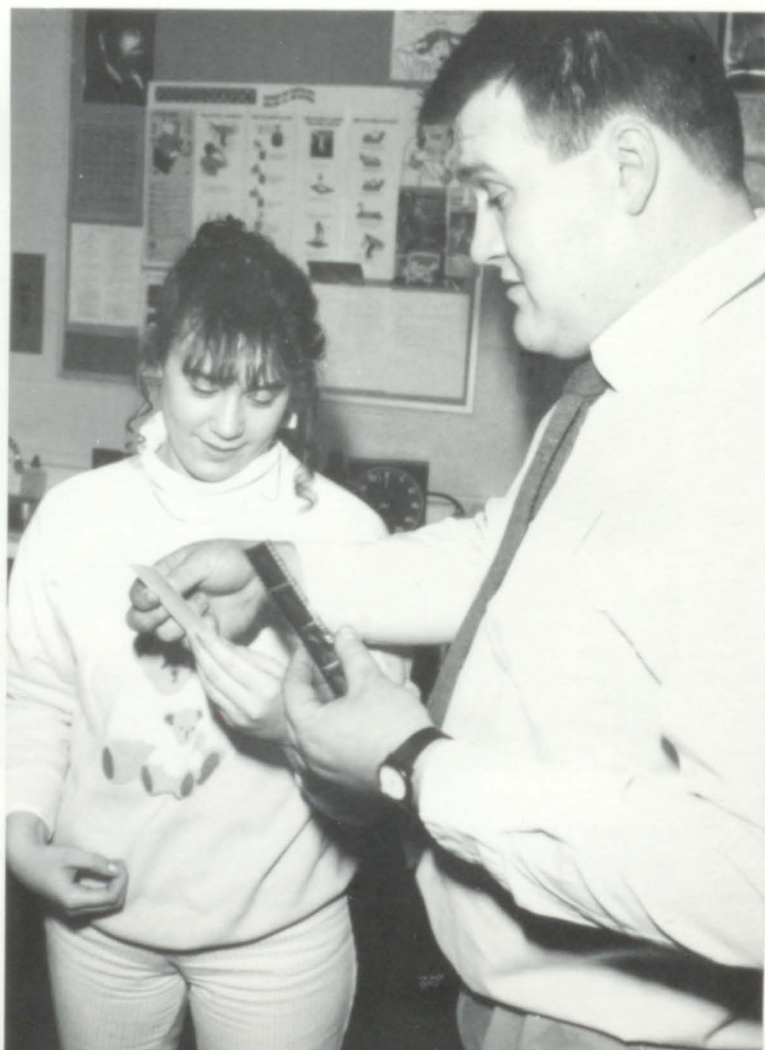

Intnely watching her team play, volleyball coach Masariu doubles as varsity and reserve cheer-leading sponsor.

A year in the life of any PHS faculty member would be very full of school-related activities. Preparing lessons and grading assignments, teachers found the school day was often longer than the 7:40 to 2:35 time span spent in classes. Teachers who coached put in additional hours of practice, travel, and game time. Others sponsored organizations such as SADD or Student Council, which led to meetings, conferences, and fund-raisers. Academic Super Bowl sponsors coached their teams weekly and took them to local and state meets. Musical and dramatic productions brought out teacher-directors who organized crews, conducted try-outs, and perfected the performances. From journalism to JA, from basketball to the band, faculty members contributed to the life of PHS.

A Year in the Life:

Sports were a major part of student life at PHS this year. As the program continued to increase — soccer and softball programs were added — more students had opportunities to participate or watch from August clear through June. Practices, weight training, diet, concentration — all aspects of gearing up for competition had to come into play when the clock started. Individually and in teams, athletes strained with their effort of competing. For the onlookers it was also eventful. Fans learned when to bring chairs or sit on bleachers, when to bring their own snacks or buy from the concession stand, when to cheer up a struggling team and when to heap praise at awards nights. Athletes and fans alike found that sports added much life to their year at PHS.

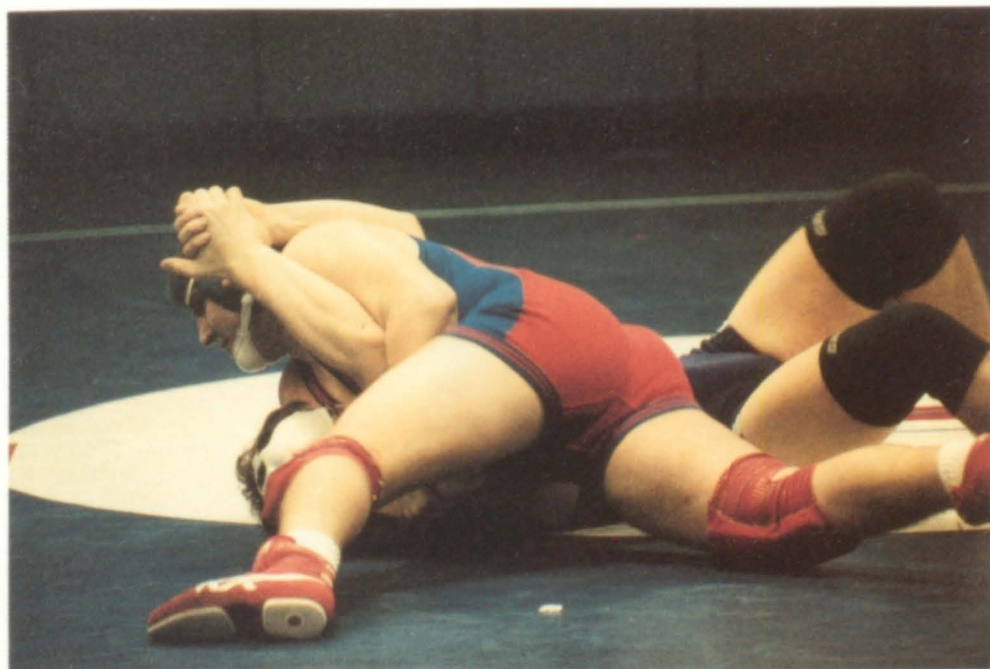

Behind-the-scenes efforts in the weight room bring athletes to peak form; John Hall does leg presses after school.

Library assistant Debbie Abplanalp gives up study hall to check out books.

Besides attending classes daily, PHS students spent their year in a variety of school-related activities. Some spent their study hall time in the A.V. Department or as library, office, or guidance helpers. Field trips expanded students' awareness and knowledge of certain subjects; popular trips were to the psychology class trip to LaRue Carter Hospital, PREP's spring visit to the IUPUI library, and the government classes' day at the Marion County courts. Business and journalism students put in extra hours by working in local businesses or producing the newspaper and yearbook. It was a busy year in the life of most PHS students.

Free time was a valuable part of the year in the life of the PHS student, but it quickly changed to busy time: most students found all kinds of ways to fill it up. Studying might have required a few hours a week out of school; however, students looked for other things to do, too. For some it was through athletic and academic competition or artistic expression. Many added part-time jobs to their schedules to make money for college, Spring Break, cars, and clothes. Planning for the future involved serious steps such as taking the SAT, visiting colleges, and talking to military recruiters. Friday and Saturday nights meant trips to Union Station, pizza at Noble Romans, dances, trips to Kings Island. Students found lots of ways to put life into their year at PHS.

Accompanying Mr. Conley, Mr. Pelkey, and Mr. Sweeney to their rendition of "Barbara Ann," Brady Sweeney plays drums for the act called "Three Men and a Brady."

Homecoming is a happy event for Shawna Edwards, who hugs her escort, Steve Krieger, after she is named Homecoming Queen 1988.

Stuck in a field without any brains, the scarecrow, ably and nimbly played by Jeff Bryant, awaits Dorothy in the musical The Wizard of Oz.

STUDENT LIFE

A YEAR IN THE LIFE

OF PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL

Homecoming week is a festival of fun

Sophomores present a cake to their members of the Quaker team.

Excitement over Quaker play gets sidelines involved, too.

Leading off the Homecoming Parade is the Red Pride Marching Band led by one of the drum majors Brian Schafer.

Traditional ride on the fire engine gets cheerleaders fired up for the festivities.

Many activities take place during the week of Homecoming. First was float building. Each class created a design based on the Student Council's theme of "holidays." The seniors won with "Cruising to a Quaker Victory Celebration;" juniors took second with "Goblin up a Victory," sophomores had a birthday cake which read "Wrap 'Em Up," and freshmen were "Rockin' to a Victory."

Queen and princess candidates were nominated, with voting taking place late in the week and results kept secret until halftime of the game. All candidates, along with their escorts, were introduced at the pep session on Friday. Relay races between the classes and teachers provided laughs, while the cheerleaders and pep band built up spirit for the evening game.

On Homecoming afternoon there was the normal bustle at the Plaza as final checks were made on the floats and all got ready for the parade. Even with a late start, the parade made its way to the PHS field for the annual game. Although the team lost, there was much enthusiasm for a week of festivities.

Float building is a week-long activity; here Katie Hall and class sponsor Miss King see results.

Seniors cruise to a first place float with this Victory Island.

Powderpuff helps tackle Prom expenses

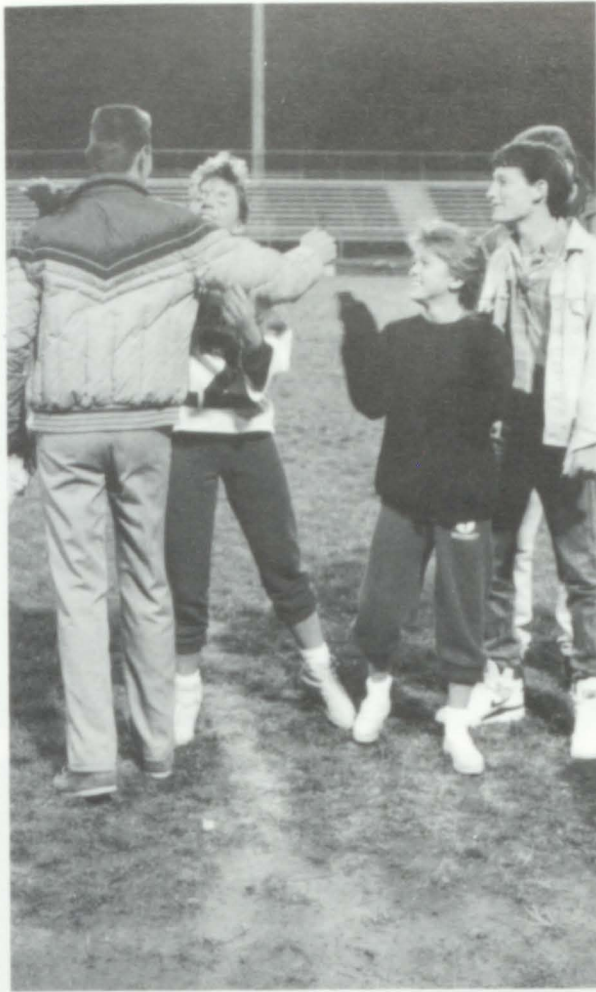

In one evening in the fall of every year, it's a tradition at PHS for the girls to play one game of football. And although it is supposed to be flag, there are plenty of tackles! This year the sophomores worked hard for a 12-6 victory over the freshmen. In the junior-senior game, Shawna Edwards ran for a near 99-yard touchdown only to discover that a penalty cancelled the score. In the end the juniors defeated the seniors 18-12. Halftime festivities included the crowning of the king and princes. Princes were Seth Arnold (1992), Ethan Hooper (1991), and Tim Wampler (1990). Powderpuff king for the Class of '89 was Tarry Schabel. Profits from the game helped finance the Prom at the Indianapolis Convention Center in April.

Junior center prepares to snap ball to quarterback Michelle Chaille as seniors form a strong defensive lineup.

Prince of the Class of '90, Tim Wampler salutes the fans who cheer him; Kim Haley, Jeff Chenault, Nikki Luttrell, and Marc Hamm laugh as Christi Andrews delivers Tim his bouquet of weeds. Who says a guy can't have that "cheerleader look?" Matt Kirchoff proves otherwise.

Congratulating Seth Arnold, Tracy Wright gives hug while Andrea Goss and Brad Ferrell enjoy the celebration.

As seniors fall behind in the score, Coach Darren Whaley and team plan what they hope will be a winning strategy.

Once again Michelle Chaille carries the ball against seniors Beth Holzknecht and Christy Wallace.

Sideliners Greg Gould and Tarry Schabel (later crowned Powderpuff King) watch the game.

With wizardry of drama, PHS goes to Oz

The Good Witch, played by Julie Jackson, advises Dorothy.

Amazed to hear Melayna Fillmore's report on the visitors are Jeff Hartley and Kelly Judd.

Stage crew members Jimmy Rinehart and Mike Morris transport parts of the yellow brick road.

Accompanied by an alert Toto, Christi Andrews sings to her Kansas family and friends Mary Ava Nease, Tom Bartley, and Mike Hartley.

Confronting the Great Oz, Spencer Beaman, are Jeff Bryant, Rob Pyatt, and Mike Griffin as the Scarecrow, the Cowardly Lion, and the Tin Man.

This year's musical, The Wizard of Oz, was a huge success. The play was presented three times on November 17 and 19, one of those presentations arranged especially for children.

The audience became lost in Oz as Dorothy (Christi Andrews) went down the yellow brick road in search of a way home. She quickly made friends with the Scarecrow (Jeff Bryant), the Tin Man (Mike Griffin) and the Cowardly Lion (Rob Pyatt) who joined her in finding the Wizard (Spencer Beaman). He was able to convince them all that to get what they needed they had only to look inside themselves. Dorothy returned to Kansas when she finally admitted that there is no place like home.

The wicked witches played by Melayna Fillmore, Alicia Dillon, and Kim Padgett, gather for a strategy session. Dorothy outwitted them in the end.

Citizens of the Emerald City Jessica Appleget and Grant Schlegel dance in celebration of Dorothy and her group's arrival.

Rec Nights and dances spice up the work week

Many dances and Rec Nights this year provided activities which ranged from ping pong to limbo and even hula hoop contests. Some of the dances were dj'd by John Thompson and Ryan Schafhauser, while one had the Indiana Sound Machine who used special effects such as smoke and bubbles. Dances were sponsored by PYF, Student Council and SADD. Most consisted of the guys in one of the gyms playing basketball or volleyball, while the girls stayed in the gym lobby and danced with their girlfriends or with the few brave guys who did venture out to dance occasionally. These evenings gave students the opportunity to talk with their friends, dance, or just sit around and watch everyone else have fun, too.

Enjoying the evening are Kim Padgett, Leslie Grossi, Alex Barile, and Juli Jackson.

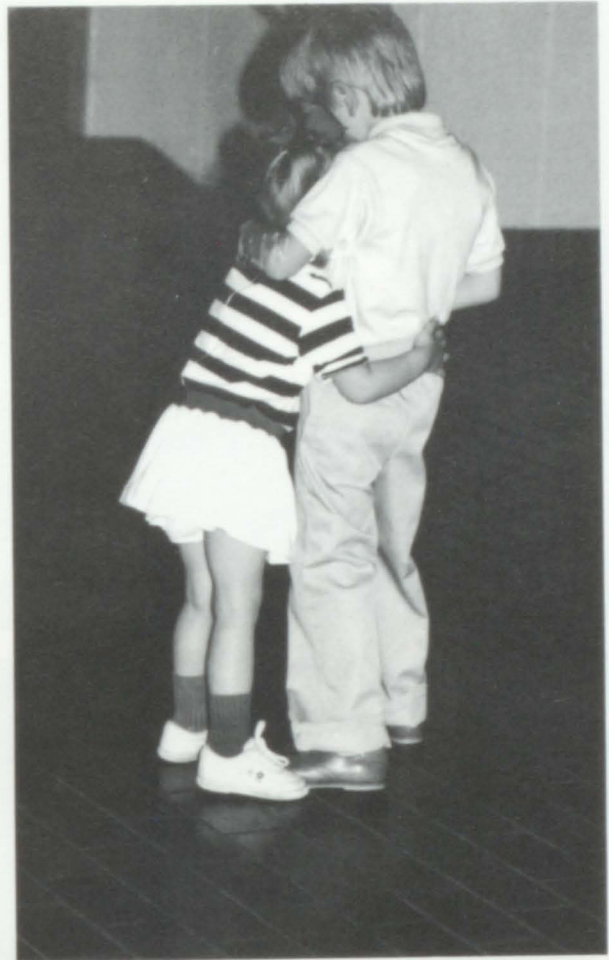

Volleyball competition between classes is popular at Student Council Rec Night; Bobby Western tries to return ball blocked by Cindy Hiland.

Leading Barbie MacDonald and Heather Ford in the "Dinosaur Dance," Melissa Combs snaps her fingers at the PYF Friday night dance.

The Indy Sound Machine provides music as well as smoke—so much, in fact, that a fire alarm caused the building to be evacuated this evening.
Dancing to a slow one are Student Council sponsor Mr. Brian Pelkey's children.

Basketball freethrow competition always lines up the guys. Waiting to take on Mr. Muston are Kurt Judd, Chuck Downey, Larry Odor, and Robert Freeman.
Officer Kehrt supervises Student Council Rec Night with Mr. Greene.

Star Pride Revue makes its debut

Performing "Barbara Ann" to the audience's delight are Brady Sweeney, Mr. Conley, Mr. Pelkey, and Mr. Sweeney.

Presenting Plainfield's own, the one, the only, the sensational Star Pride Revue Talent Show! Thanks to many dedicated dramatists, the Revue was a terrific act. Not only did it help raise funds for the Theatre Department, it also entertained many enthusiastic spectators. Talents ranged from song to comedy to ballet. Led by junior and senior high committees, the Revue included acts from both age groups.

A call-out in January offered students the opportunity to put together an act and try out for inclusion in the talent show. The final program on February 18 included 25 acts, with the Jazz Band filling in and concluding the program themselves. Especially popular, the group called "Three Men and a Brady" gave an encore performance at the winter pep session.

Usually an accompanist for other performers, Jeff Bryant solos in "Sonata in D—First Movement."

Belting out the song "Juggler's Delight," senior Rob Pyatt lends his support to the theater department once again.

Junior Tiffany Atkinson offers a change of pace during the evening of music as the Sugar Plum Fairy. Leading off and concluding the Revue, the Jazz Band capably entertains between acts as well.

"Edith Ann" comes to life through sophomore Kelly Judd's stage antics. This duet of Luci Yates and Mike Griffin suggest "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off."

Jobs reap rewards but require balancing act

Using his job at the nearest Target store for experience, Jason Callahan also earns DECA credit.

Many students balanced school and work. Whether they worked for college tuition, a Spring Break trip, a car, or extra spending money, PHS students were employed all over town. Most often they worked at local fast food restaurants, while some put in hours at supermarkets or specialty stores. No matter where the job was, the student had to fit in time for school work, too, sometimes after closing late. Study time after work usually resulted in a loss of sleep and a tough next day at school—or, worse yet, not completing the assignment. Jobs often took their toll in reduced social life, as well. Still, most agreed that the money to attend college, have their own wheels, buy some extra outfits, or hit the beaches over Spring Break was well worth the effort.

Today assembling a display at the local Kroger's, Stacie Hathaway sometimes works at the video or checkout counters as well.

Plainfield True Value's employee Joe Southwood tries to identify a particular part which a customer brought in for replacement.

Although there was a storewide strike at Preston Safeway, Becca Frame and Jeanna Grider manage to keep their jobs and their incomes.

Seasonal work allows Heath Helgason the winter for school activities and the summer for earning extra income.

Inspired by her job at Tuchman's Cleaners, Tina Austin plans to go into business management as a career, preferably as a CEO for a large corporation.

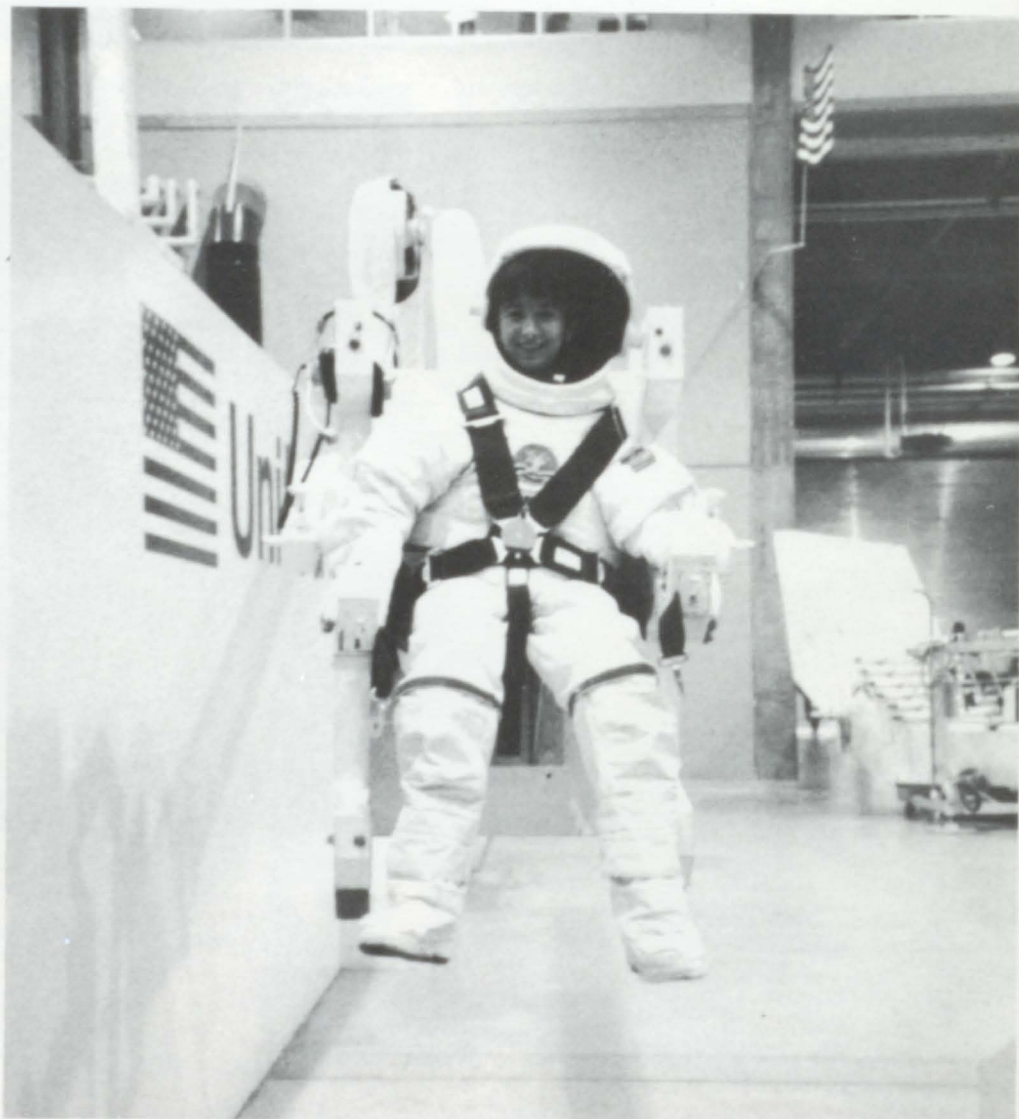

While stocking the candy and gum counter, Laurie Reid also helps customers at Medicine Chest Pharmacy.

Weekends, vacations and free time—students love it!

One great thing about a routine is the break from it, and that's what students felt about their free time after school, on weekends, and during vacations. Shopping, eating out, spending time with friends—these were common. Christmas and spring breaks offered time for travel to the beaches of Florida all the way to the mountains of Colorado. Free time was treasured by all.

Gathered at Treasure Island are Barry Taylor, Marc Hamm, Angie Freije, Curt VanWanzele, Tarry Schabel, Jett Ewing, John Hall, Gary Parker, Ryan Ennis, Katie Hall, and Stacey McMains.

Enjoying Panama City Beach are Debi Edmondson, Kim Baker and Elise and Liane Hesson.

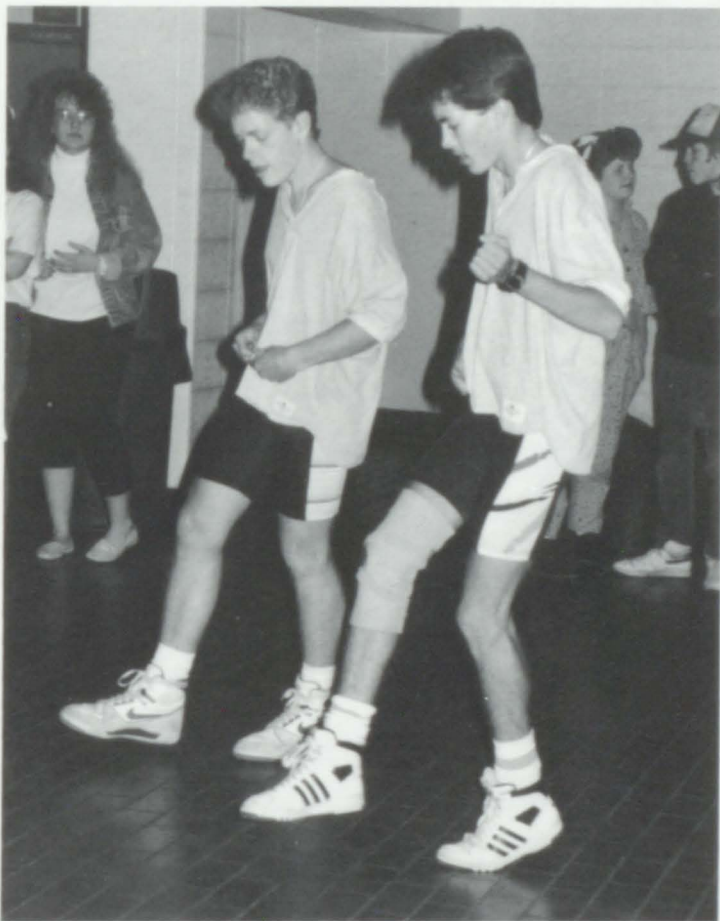

Eating out is always a favorite for Elaine Wolden, Kim Haley, and Tiffany Norris.

Floating in astronaut gear at the Huntsville Space Academy, Marie Gillespie takes a week off.

In his spare time Ryan Schafhauser plays guitar and occasionally Dj's the school dances.

Separated from the skateboard by inches and the ground by feet, Corby Friel is balanced by Brent Smith as Matt Weddis watches.

So good at this routine that they must practice it to perfection, Jeremy Wright and Larry Alexander dance at a PYF party.

Coming back with a tan from the neck up, Darren Groce enjoys skiing in Colorado during his Spring Break '89.

Couples head downtown for Prom night

Sometime around February, juniors and seniors again tried their luck at the "Prom date game." Then in March when Seventeen came out, the girls looked for the perfect dress while guys were fitted for tuxes. April 28 arrived—Prom day—and many took some of the day off to get ready for the big night. Before leaving for dinner, couples were photographed by all their relatives. Popular pre-Prom restaurants were Norman's, King Cole, and the Milano Inn. After dinner, couples walked around downtown or took a carriage ride before heading to the White River Ballroom at the Convention Center. Prom goes danced to music from D.J. Dan Masariu until 11:30, when they headed home with Prom favors, which were a glass with the theme of the Prom, "Lost in Your Eyes," and a keychain resembling the admission ticket. Next up was Post Prom.

Squeezing in time to pick up his tux, Brad Morrison takes care of one Prom expense.

Friday afternoon's decorating session involves Mrs. Jackson and Danielle Feasel situating one of the three large murals. "Lost in Your Eyes" is a fitting theme for this happy couple of Jana Smith and Brent Smith.

Dancing close to a slow number are Tyler Murray and Julie Phelps.
It isn't necessary to have a partner to enjoy one of the D.J.'s faster numbers.

The Convention Center's White River Ballroom offers plenty of parquet dance floor for the 380 students who attended this year's Prom.

Post Prom is a passage to paradise

"Betting" on the horse race are B.J. Mosley, Michelle Merriman, Angie Sanderson, and Jake Kendall.

Both Prom-goers and students who didn't attend Prom flooded this year's Post Prom, a "Passage to Paradise." Parents, led by Mrs. Becky VanWanzele and Mrs. Judy Pyatt, turned the gym into a cruise ship and a beautiful island paradise complete with palm trees. After receiving sailor hats, students enjoyed a variety of activities such as the frisbee toss, golf, darts, and shuffleboard as well as a casino to provide "legal gambling." The grand finale of the evening was the raffle, with students winning prizes ranging from Kings' Island tickets to a case of motor oil. Free pizza and soft drinks provided late night snacks. All-out community support made the evening a great success.

Tossing a roll of toilet paper toward a toilet seat target, Jennie Lowry takes careful aim.

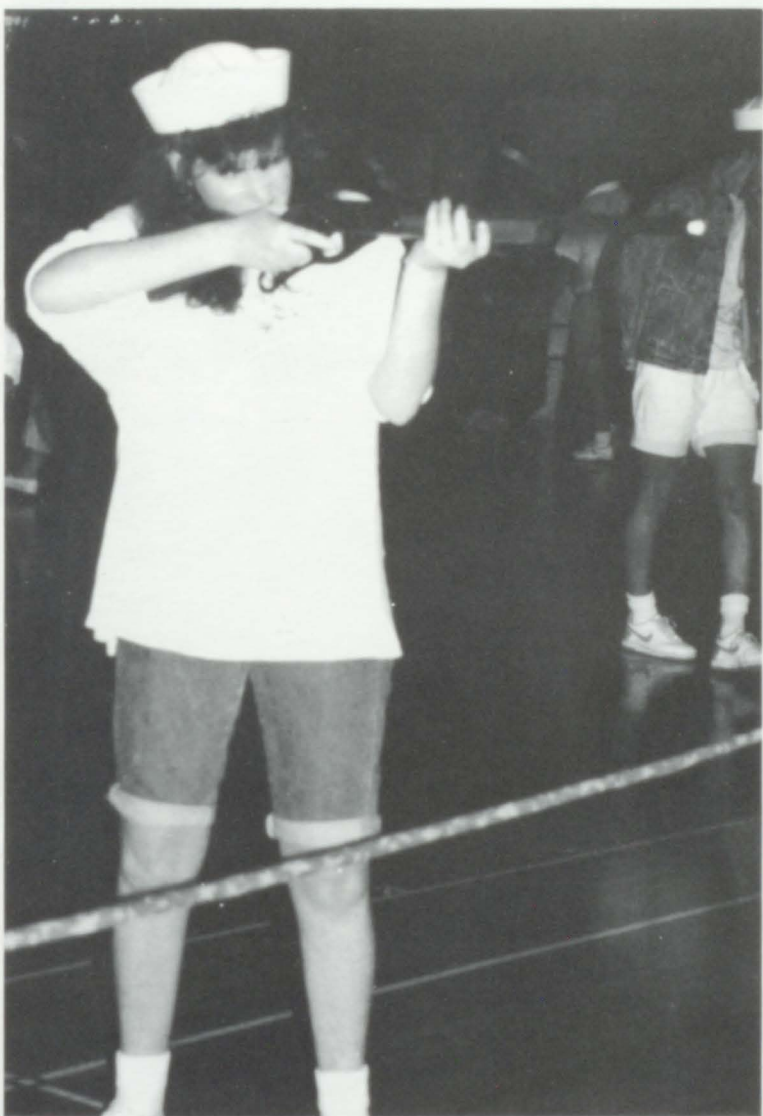

Watched by his date Niki Badour, Tarry Schabel intensely launches a disk.

Seeing his dart "fly" to the bull's eye, Chris McFarling smiles and Stacey Williams enjoys the contest.

Looking puzzled, Melissa English gets her instructions from Mrs. Ring, while Dean McClain and Chris Taylor wait their turns.

The baseball throw is a popular event for a confident Jerry Brooks. Ready to fire, Kathy Burton squints as she lines up the sight.

Popular Mousetrap succeeds in Aiken Auditorium

Backed by an impressively designed English manor house, Mousetrap cast listens to Detective Sergeant Trotter's suspicions; the eight-member cast includes Alicia Dillon as Mrs. Boyle, Bobby Western as Giles Ralston, Mike Griffin as Trotter, Kelly Judd as Mollie Ralston, Clint Newlin as Christopher Wren, Abigail Harris as Miss Casewell, Tom Bartley as Paravicini, and Corby Friel as Major Metcalf.

Wiling away the hours of play rehearsals, actor Clint Newlin illustrates his poetic expressions on the back of the set.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralston, owners of Monkwell Manor where a murder is being investigated, are played by Bobby Western and Kelly Judd.

Growing out of an enthusiastic core of students from the semester-length acting class, the newly-named Theatre Arts Department, under the leadership of Miss Jennifer Frieden, produced Agatha Christie's Mousetrap May 5 and 6 in Milo Aiken Auditorium. One of the longest running plays in England, Mousetrap has delighted audiences as they learn at the play's conclusion that the character in charge of the investigation, Detective Sergeant Trotter, is himself the murderer. Tension built during the play as all eight individuals were snowbound in an English manor house and murder was turned loose on the grounds.

To build interest in the play, the cast and crew presented "teasers" to all English classes the day before opening night. The audience was impressed by the British accents mastered by the actors, the elaborate set designed by the stage crew, and the careful and precise use of props. It was declared a success.

Skilled at getting the music to play each time the on-stage radio was turned on, Cindy Bowen impresses the audience with her precision timing.

Stage Manager Kevin Marquis cues lights and sounds, opens and closes the curtain, and generally keeps the play on pace.

Senior Awards Night brings recognition

Who says that students don't get paid for going to school? Scholarships presented on Awards Night, May 31, amounted to approximately $200,000 with special recognition given to achievement in sports and academics.

One of five seniors noted for perfect attendance during their senior year, George Bacon receives a certificate from Mr. Baker.

Principal Dale Jackson presents a medallion to Valedictorian Debi Edmondson while Salutatorian Jeff Bryant waits for his.

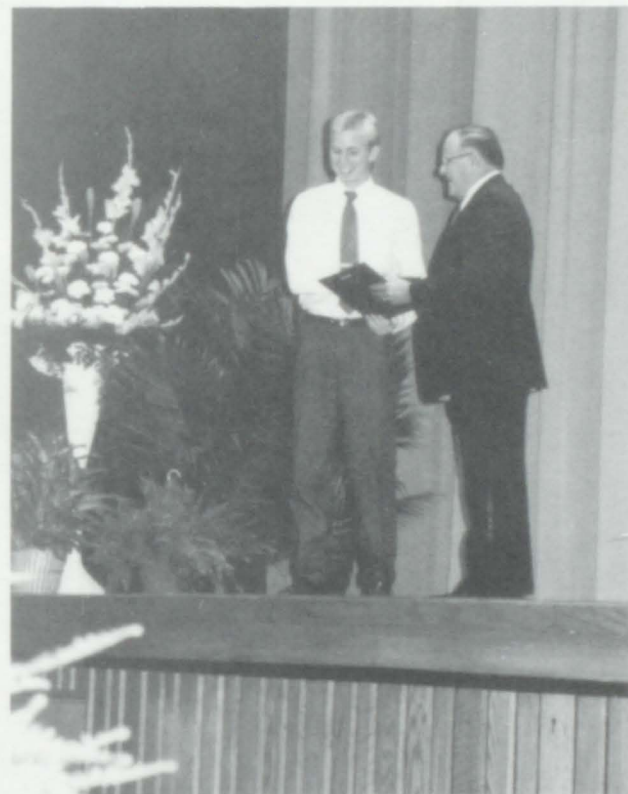

The Rick Roby Memorial Scholarship goes to Michelle McMains who plans to attend Indiana Business College next year.

Petty Officer Ron Baker presents a U.S. Navy ROTC scholarship to Matt Kirchoff.

Receiving an award based on scholastic achievement, Mirien Fillmore is the winner of the Wal-Mart Foundation Award of $1000 presented by Randy Fries.

Outstanding Senior Boy Athlete, winner of a PHS blanket for having 10 points or more during his four years in athletics, and member of the Indiana Basketball Coaches Association's Academic All-Star Honorable Mention team — Tarry Schabel is congratulated by Mr. Muston.

Delta Theta Tau sorority, represented by Mrs. Micki Adams, presents a $200 vocational scholarship to Jeff Randall.

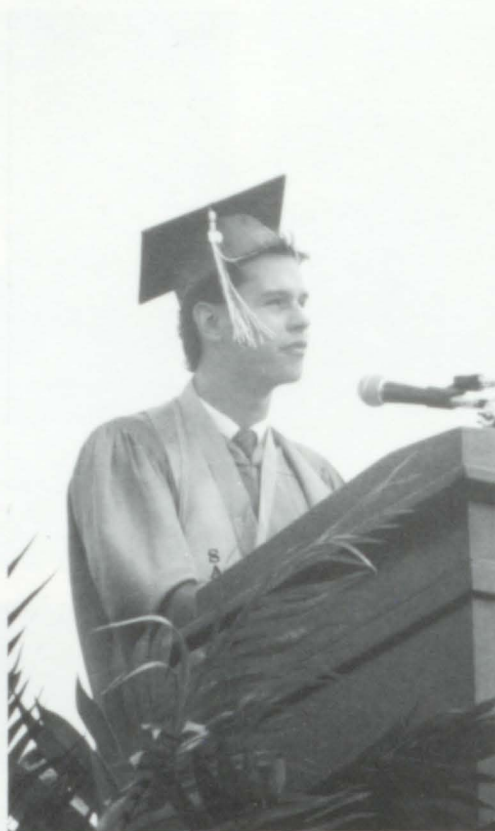

June graduates are told to brave failures

Several firsts occurred at this eighty-ninth commencement of Plainfield High School: it was on a Sunday afternoon in June, and it was held outdoors on the football field. The weather was warm and breezy as Valedictorian Debi Edmondson encouraged her classmates not to be afraid to fail, for "failure may be the necessary preparation for success." Diplomas were handed out by Board Member Mrs. Pam Hall, whose son John was a member of the Class of '89, and then class president Eric Schafhauser led the turning of the tassels.

Salutatorian Jeff Bryant points out that his classmates are moving from the structure of home and school to lives of greater independence.

Many graduation parties are held each year; here Danielle Feasel and Jeff Chenault stay under an umbrella at the Brentwood Drive 9-senior fest.

Valedictorian Debi Edmondson concludes her address by quoting from a poem by Robert Klein "Be All That You Can Be;" in encouraging the class to strive for their best, she quotes: "If you were 'all you can be,' then you won."

Since two graduation practices are necessary in case of rain or shine, senior class sponsor Mr. Conley explains the procedures.

Standing around before the ceremony begins, Larry Heckathorn, Larry Reed, Eddie Satterly, and Jamie Whitlow get into their gowns and figure out how to wear the caps so that they won't fall off.

The symphonic band and chamber choir combine to perform a commencement favorite, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic;" for the processional, the band played the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance," written by Victorian Edward Elgar.

There's no doubt about it! The Class of '89 is ecstatic to be graduates of Plainfield High School, and they throw confetti, streamers, and silly string in honor of their new status.

Involved in extra-curricular events, Mrs. Bowman (who is hiding the cast on her left wrist) and Mrs. Bradshaw visit during a home girls' basketball game.

Class of '89 arrives!

"We made it!" These were the words on every senior's lips on August 23, 1988. After 11 long years of anticipation, the final stretch was before us. It was now our turn to be the "Big Guys" at PHS. The first event to bring about that genuine "Senior" feeling was the ordering of graduation announcements, and cap and gown measurements. Work soon began on the Homecoming float with the theme of "Cruising to a Quaker Victory" that, of course, reigned victorious. Senior girls faced the agony of defeat when they lost to the juniors in this year's Powderpuff game.

Christmas vacation soon followed, and although it was a bit shortened due to the extended school year, it was a welcome relief. Return from the holidays brought the end of the semester and final exams, but for those graduating mid-term, it marked the end of their senior year.

Second semester continued the hectic pace. Seniors were kept busy with jobs, athletics, clubs and filling out college applications and scholarship requests. Of all events that took place, the best had to be Spring Break and Prom. After all was said and done, everyone knew that whether your senior year is just like any other year, or the greatest year of your life, you will ALWAYS remember it.

SENIORS

The countdown to Spring Break '89 begins with 50 days and doesn't stop until the seniors hit the beaches of Florida.

Seniors make waves

Most seniors made the necessary preparations for Spring Break '89 back in 1988. Although the HOT SPOT was Daytona Beach, some seniors ventured off to the slopes of Colorado, the surf of Padre Island, Texas, the streets of California, or the foreign lands of Europe.

Despite the fact that PHS seniors were spread across the map, they all had one ultimate goal: to have the time of their lives.

Instead of returning to the normal humdrum routine of a typical day at PHS, the atmosphere was that of excitement. Tales of adventure, suntanned bodies, photos and souvenirs filled the halls as each senior recapped the events of 1989 Spring Break.

The senior preoccupation for Spring Break is exhibited by their Homecoming float.

FCA helps seniors prepare for the beaches by offering Quaker beach towels; Liane Hesson and junior Tina Austin sell towels at lunch.

SENIORS

Class of 1990 is on the way to the top

No longer the bottom rung of the ladder but not quite the top, junior year is a time of changes and anticipation. "Just wait 'til next year when we're seniors," was commonly heard in junior get-togethers.

For those planning college, there were college visits, PSAT, and the SAT, which involved getting up early on a Saturday morning for three hours of tough questions. But it was only a Saturday morning, right?

Victories for the class consisted of a win in Powderpuff and a second-place finish in the Homecoming float building contest, the first win for the Class of 1990. Juniors ended the year by hosting the Prom at the Convention Center.

Between all night cram sessions for finals and PREP notecards, athletic practice and extracurricular activities, the junior year passed. The Class of '90 spent summer vacation knowing that when school reopened in August, they would, at last, be seniors.

The winning ticket of Milton Briggs, (secretary/treasurer), Doug Teany (president) and John East (vice-President) led their class through Homecoming and Powderpuff successes.

Adding spirit to home football and basketball games, Kevin Doolin dons the outfit of the Plainfield Quaker man.

With a Halloween motif to fit the overall Homecoming theme of "holidays," the junior float earns a second place; Kristy Oliver represents the class during judging.

Student Council member Tim Sweeney helps design the Pioneers' tombstone.

For sophomores the year is a 'piece of cake'

The Class of 1991 returned in the fall, experienced in the ways of building floats and playing powderpuff football. The class float, a huge birthday cake with presents to the sophomore players on the football team, was an impressive achievement, as was the win over the freshmen in Powderpuff. Sophomore year offered the class CHAP, health, driver's licenses, and a general feeling of being part of things. Lockers were much easier to reach this year, too, an invaluable measure of moving up in the PHS world!

Officers leading the Class of '91 are Kyle Lansberry, Vice-President, Jennifer Crawley, Secretary/Treasurer, and Andy Hylton, President.

Braving the bulls, sophomores manage to create this birthday cake for the Homecoming holiday theme.

Class of '92 adjusts to high school life

Homecoming Court members Gordon Castetter, Angie Freije, Jason Pearman, Andrea Goss, Josh Hanlon, and Lori Walland

Freshmen had to adjust quickly to life in the high school, for by the end of September they built their first Homecoming float. Then, within a few more weeks, they fielded a team for Powderpuff, and they played well, losing by only one touchdown. As the year moved on, they got used to running to class from their lockers in the 900 hallway; took foreign languages, biology, and physical education classes and earned their first high school credits; ordered class rings; and added to life at PHS.

Officers Heather Kelly, President, Bret Teany, Vice-President, and Angie Freije, Secretary/Treasurer Showing off the Quakers' winning style and Mooresville's demise on the turntable, the Class of '92 creates their first float.

Scholars merit academic honors at PHS, State

Selected students reaped the rewards of doing well academically. Locally, the National Honor Society recognized outstanding scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Members wore gold cords at commencement and had Honor Society stickers affixed to their diplomas. Some students competed academically statewide. Spellbowl members took first in County, third in Conference, and seventh in the state. Our Superbowl teams were the only group to finish in the top three in every category at the County meet. The social studies team became the first from PHS to win a state championship—a real honor!

Receiving another round of honors at the annual Senior Awards Night, the Social Studies Superbowl team of Jennifer Sutton, Kim Bloomer, and Mary Ava Nease are complimented by Social Studies Department Chairman Mr. Jerry Hankins.

Journalists record year's memories

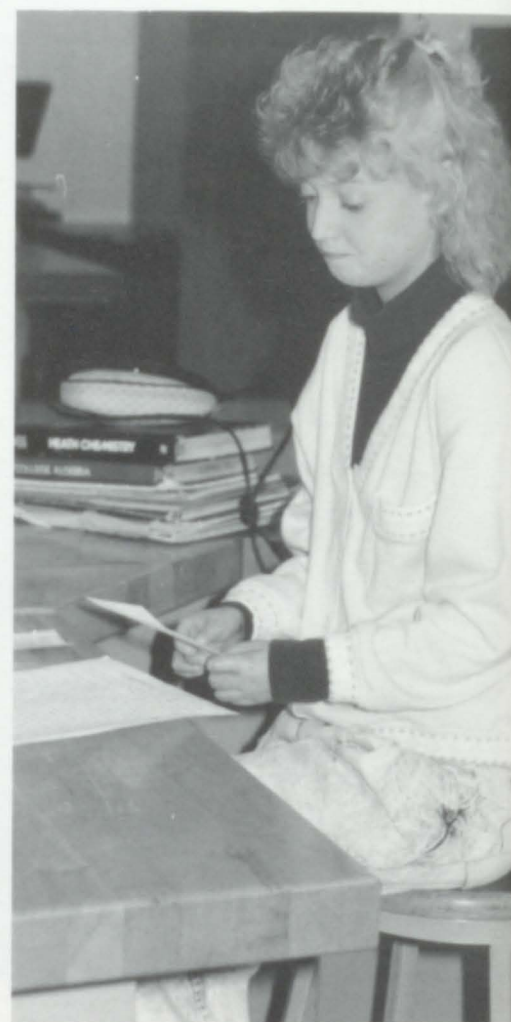

Hard work and long hours were what it took to complete the yearbook and newspapers, even though that wasn't all that went on at the meetings: there was a lot of fun, too. Sorting pictures, writing copy, and planning layouts were the biggest part of these jobs, but being sidetracked was easy when memories were being recorded. A great deal of the planning for the R.S.V.P. took place during journalism class each day, with production hours scheduled after school. Unafraid to tackle subjects of concern to students, the newspaper seemed to be well read. Wednesdays belonged to yearbook staffers who tried to keep up with the year's events. Always wondering if all activities had been covered, the staff sent in the final pages in June.

Sorting and labeling underclass pictures keeps Leah Laurenzano busy.

Belles et Beaux have sensational year in '89

With over 20 performances, Belles et Beaux were extremely busy. Directed by Mr. Peter Sims, the group began with the annual Quaker Day Parade. Other fall performances included a show for the PTO, the Hoosier Celebration '88 Parade, and a Plainfield Plus breakfast. December held a string of performances for the Christmas season, including the annual high school Christmas Concert and a show at Union Station. Contest season started with the Beech Grove Swing Choir Festival and two performances in Illinois—one in Kankakee and the other in Chicago for the prestigious Showstoppers Invitational. The final contest performance was the Best of the Midwest Show Choir Invitational in Center Grove. Their year ended with a stunning program, Sensation '89.

The annual spring Sensation program in the Aiken Auditorium allows Belles et Beaux to present their polished product to the Plainfield community.

In a light-hearted moment, Grant Schlegel is teased by singing partner April Fivecoat.

Choirs and ensembles receive firsts

No matter where they competed this year, our choral groups took firsts with superior ratings. Both the Concert and Chamber choirs attended ISSMA contests in April and earned first-division ratings. The men's and women's ensembles participated in February's Solo and Ensemble contest when they were awarded superior ratings; at the state contest, they came home with firsts. Two concerts, one at Christmas and one at the end of the year, allowed family, friends, and other students to hear their winning sounds.

Stepping forward to receive one of the Outstanding Senior Choral Student awards is Christi Andrews, for her involvement in the choral program for four years, three of them as a member of Belles et Beaux; the other recipient of this award is Nathan Chitwood, member of the Concert and Chamber choirs and men's ensemble. Bowing in respect to each other, the Chamber Choir and Mr. Sims complete their final performance of the year.

Bands earn ISSMA honors

Fifth place in the state ISSMA contest was proof that the Red Pride Marching Band had carefully prepared themselves through 95-degree rehearsals, after school every day, and on weekends. Gearing up for the big win, the band competed in several contests and consistently brought home first place trophies. In fact, their first time out at the Paoli Invitational yielded them grand championship honors. At Regionals, the band made the cut for State for the first time in 3 years and had the highest music performance score of the day. Mrs. Elliott attributed their success to the leaders in the program and the positive attitude which was set back in August. Incidentally, an additional highlight was the birth of Robert Michael Elliott.

Color guards perform well at Dome, contests

The color and winter guards had a successful year, helping place the Red Pride Marching Band in the top five in state competition and twice landing in the top three in their own contests. Both groups were dominated by freshmen, and, as a result, they had lots of energy and enthusiasm. The winter guard's "Trains, Trains, and More Trains" program took the guard to state competition for the first year, with a thirteenth place finish. During fourth quarter the girls designed and performed their own routines.

Sponsored by SADD, Mr. Bob Stromburg presents a program of funny stories about his childhood and tricks of pantomime in an effort to get students to think about the effects of pressure on their lives; here, with his ears covered (ours in the audience were not!), he demonstrates the result of too much pressure on the fragile sides of a balloon. It popped — loudly.

Student Council SADD and FCA serve school

Three organizations who serve students and the community were Student Council, SADD, and FCA. Major activities of Student Council, sponsored by Mr. Pelkey, included conducting Homecoming, serving as hosts for school-community functions, and sponsoring Rec Nights. Students Against Driving Drunk, sponsored by Mr. Baker, brought in speakers, set up a euchre tournament, and reminded everyone about the dangers of drinking and driving. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes, sponsored by Mr. Wilhelm, collected 1410 cans from first period classes and distributed them to needy local families at Christmas.

Playing euchre at the tournament in the fall, Mr. Ford and Eric Schafhauser check out their hands; Bret Teany was the eventual winner of the event.

Volleyball is probably the most popular co-ed activity at the Student Council Rec Nights.

International flavor comes to PHS classes

Increasingly popular classes were the foreign languages—Spanish, German, and French. Classwork involved memorizing words, conjugating verbs, conversing in the language, performing skits, and, eventually, reading the literature of that country. Clubs got together for fabulous food fests, where each member brought an ethnic dish.

English, social studies reveal human behavior

Whether it be an understanding of why certain famous people took the actions they did in U.S. history or an insight into how authors viewed the world through British literature, the social studies and English curricula aimed to broaden students' understanding of the world and people around them. Writing and speech classes encouraged students to express their own views while they learned to organize and present their thoughts precisely and correctly.

Math and science test hypotheses, offer proofs

Two departments which require students to pose questions and then prove or disprove them are mathematics and science. Ranging from consumer math and Biology 1-2 to calculus and physics, these departments' courses meet the basic requirements for graduation as well as prepare the college-bound. Science Research is a popular choice for students interested in independent study; many often come home from the annual Science Fair a little richer financially, also.

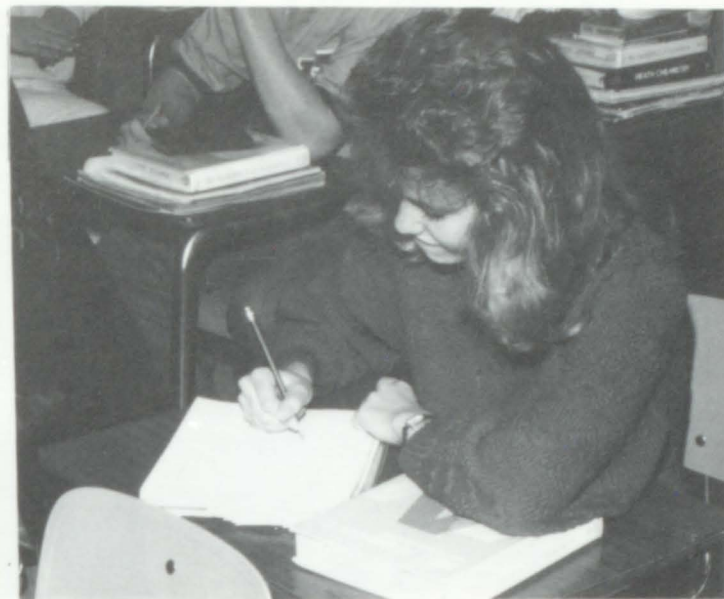

Advanced Chemistry offers Jennifer Sutton and Hoda Badr an extra semester's worth of laboratory experimentation.

Familiarity with computers is an important part of the PHS curriculum; David Long uses a TRS-80 in one of the three computer labs for student instruction in the high school.

A relatively new and interesting course at PHS is photography, taught by Mr. Latta, where Larry Heckathorn and Andrew Bennett develop film and eventually print photographs.

Hands-on classes provide quick, visible results

Regarded by many as a welcome break in the day of lectures and reading assignments, vocational and business courses offered students opportunities to apply what they had learned and see the results practically immediately. While Ben Davis conducted morning or afternoon training in vocational programs such as cosmetology, PHS included photography, marketing education, vocational auto shop, child development, home economics, and architectural drawing, for instance, in its curriculum.

One popular program at PHS is the Child Care and Development course which fills a two-hour block and offers high school students an opportunity to plan, create, and conduct a preschool for community children. Here Andrea Prater, Kerri Oakley, and Shelly Powell sit with the children while they hear a story.

The Vocational Auto Shop building on the southeast grounds of the high school campus is the place where several young men perfect their skills working on vehicles—either those brought in by school employees or those owned by the boys themselves. Bob Curl hammers on his car, hoping to have it done by summer.

Creativity emerges through art, drama, speech

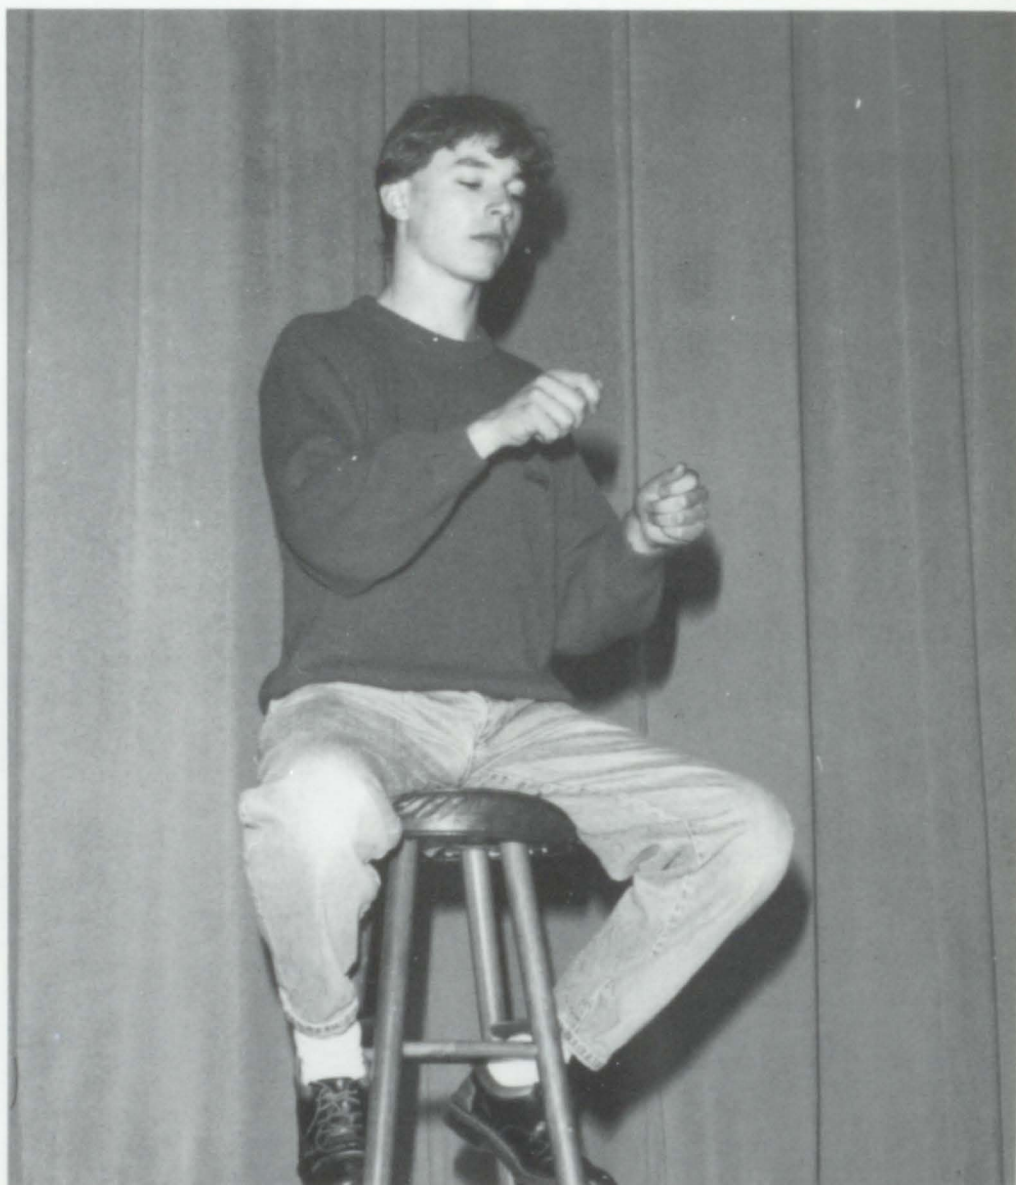

Heading the Theatre Arts program, Miss Frieden conducts class in the auditorium.

In between all the courses required for graduation, some students found time for classes in self expression. Art classes ranged from painting and drawing to ceramics, jewelry, and commercial art. Hallway showcases continually exhibited their products. All freshmen took speech classes; on an advanced level, Hoda Badr and Mirien Fillmore distinguished themselves at the Ben Davis debate tournament in January. The newly formed Plainfield Players cleaned the auditorium, staged Star Pride Revue, and brought enthusiasm to the stage.

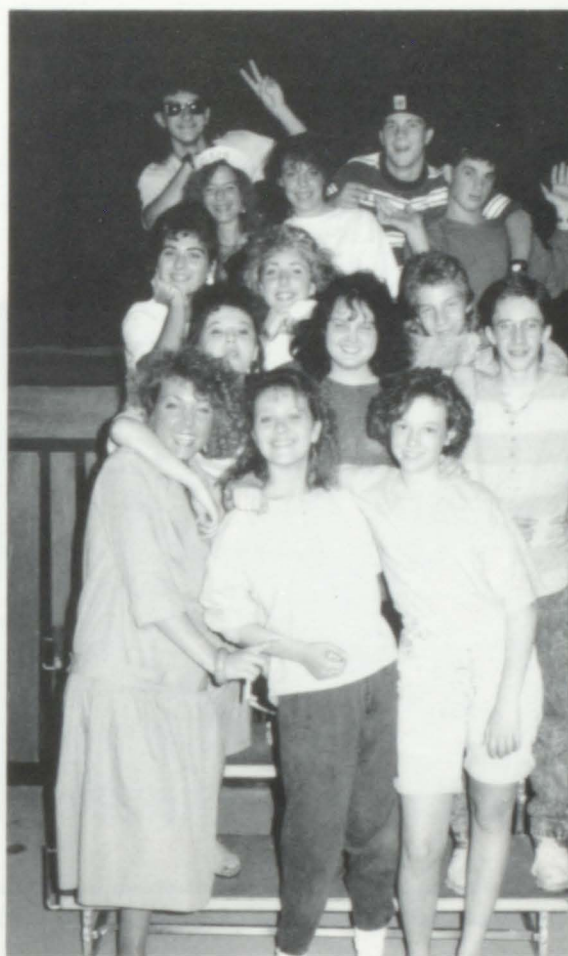

Stopping to view Barry Taylor's handmade paper, Mr. Theobald enjoys the spring art display in the auditorium lobby.

As an early exercise in theater arts class, David Goecker practices pantomiming on the stage.

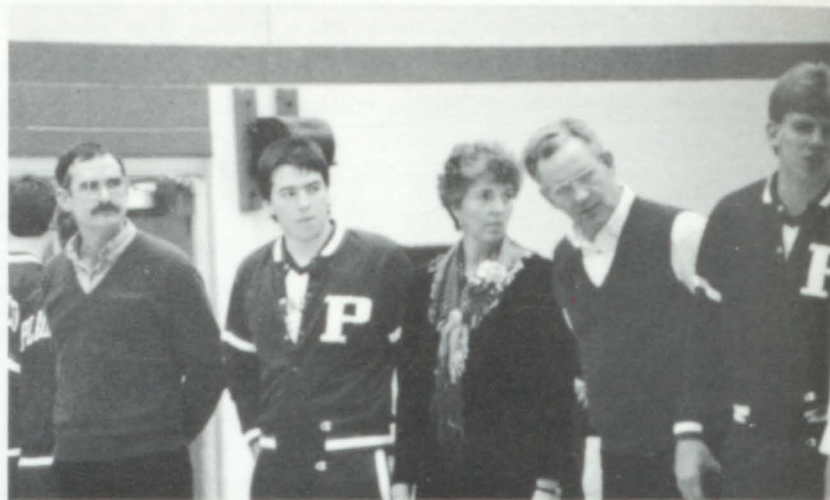

The annual art show displays the variety of projects — from stained glass to painting.

A YEAR IN THE LIFE

OF PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL

Kicking off the '88 football season, the varsity and reserve squads prepare to run through GO QUAKER screen painted ahead of time by cheerleaders and held by Jamie Goss and Christi Andrews.

Planning pep sessions is a responsibility of cheerleader squads; this one features a "Coach Greene" contest in addition to school song and class cheers.

Supporting the wrestling team during their season are Quakerettes Patty Milner, Tonya Smith, Melissa DeLong, Kelly McDaniel, Marie Gillespie, Daena Dummel, Becky Strong, and Christy Lynch.

Pumping up the crowd's spirits, Kim Haley and Amber Groninger are in step.

Cheerleaders promote pride/SPIRIT BOOSTERS

Adding pizzazz to the Sectional pep session is Mr. Conley accompanied by Brady Sweeney.

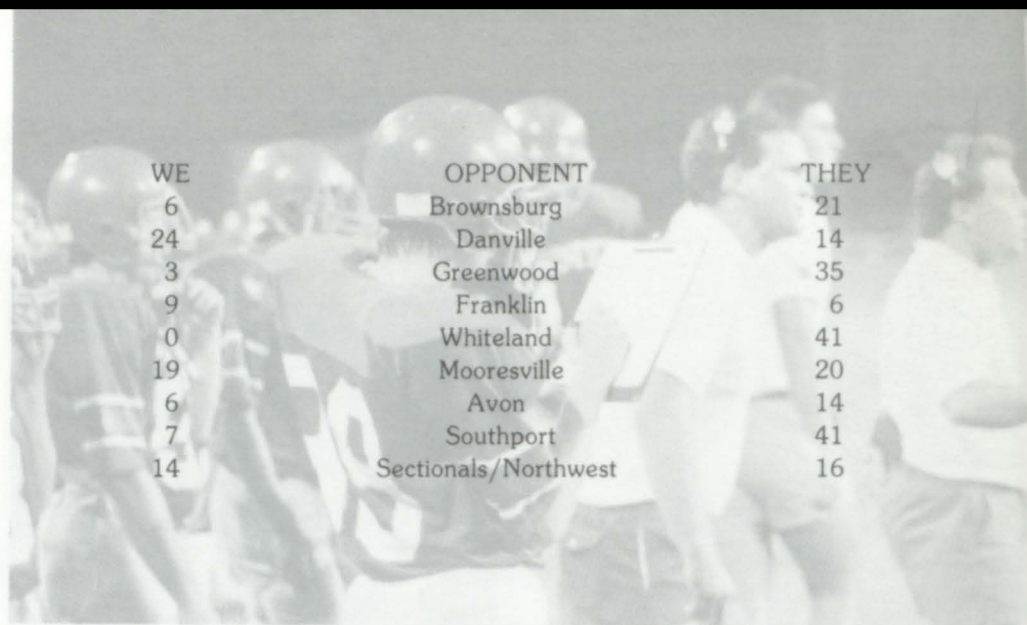

Boosting spirit this year at PHS was again the job of the cheerleading squad, the Quakerettes, the Quaker Man mascot, and all the fans. Tryouts for cheerleading took place in the spring of '88 in front of a panel of judges. Once past that test, the winning girls put together routines, went to camps, and performed at the County Fair in July. During fall and winter seasons cheerleaders painted signs, organized pep sessions, baked cookies, and attended the games faithfully. In an effort to raise student support and involvement, the squad created "Greene's Goons," a cheer block which followed the basketball team all the way to Sectionals.

Continuing a PHS tradition, Kevin Doolin is this year's Quaker Man.

Effort and hard work were key factors for the varsity football team. Although the season record was not impressive, Coach Schwanekamp was proud of his team. For him, a highlight of the season was beating an excellent Danville team at home. The season ended with a close loss to Northwest in Sectionals, 16-14. Pre-season team captains were Steve Krieger and Gary Parker, with Tarry Schabel, Darren Whaley, and Greg Gould as honorary captains for the year. MVP on offense was Greg Gould and on defense, Brad Hawk. Players named to the All-Conference team were Steve Krieger, Tarry Schabel, Greg Gould, and Brad Hawk.

Both reserve and ninth grade teams ended their seasons with more games in the win columns; in fact, in six games the Quakers held their opponents scoreless. Strength appeared in all positions, with quarterback sacks (Dusenbery had 9 in the game against Southport), recovered fumbles (7 different reserve players recovered fumbles against Greenwood), tight defense (against Greenwood the freshmen allowed the Woodmen only 16 yards on offense) and many players able to add points to the scoreboard.

Young team breaks even/BOYS' TENNIS

Pregame moments find the team milling around the fence while Erik Robinson warms up his forearm.

This year's tennis team was enthusiastic and hard working. Their goals were to do well in county, have a winning record, and be competitive in the conference. They came in third in the county, had an even season record, and finished second in the conference with two conference champs, Marc Hamm and Curt Theobald; Randy Brackney defeated a previously undefeated Avon player to finish second. Team captain Marc Hamm was honored as the most valuable player, while Curt Theobald received the Mental Attitude award. At the close of the season, Mr. Muston retired from coaching to devote full time to directing the Athletic Department.

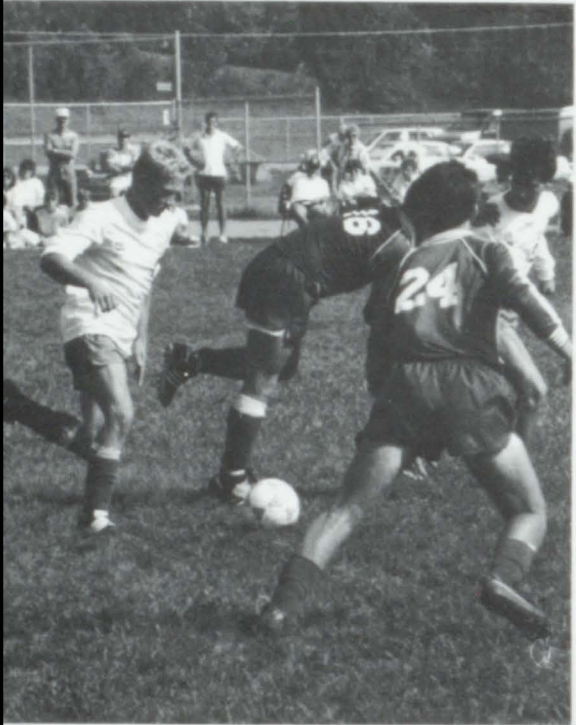

Half of the #1 doubles team, John East readies for competition. Mid-State Conference champ as well as team MVP, Marc Hamm practices his tennis form year-round.

Soccer proves itself at PHS/SOCCER

Goalie Bo Gallagher deflects the ball to Brownsburg hopeful.

Winning the first soccer game in the history of PHS, tying powerful Lafayette Jeff, and playing evenly with many established programs throughout the state were highlights of this first soccer season. Headed by a dozen seniors, the soccer team worked to build a positive image for Plainfield as they traveled from Terre Haute to Columbus to Lafayette and Bloomington. Along the way they were followed by a nucleus of supporters who brought lawn chairs and nearly had to provide lighting for a late home game against Terre Haute South. Brady Sweeney took away MVP honors, as he was depended upon to set up and score; Mental Attitude winner was Ben Strickland.

On the sidelines, players Brian Pace, Joe Hummel, and Darrel Close join Coach Sweeney in watching the progress; frequent substitution is necessary in this physically demanding sport.

Straining to stay in front of a persistent opponent, Cory LaRoche keeps himself between the ball and the opposite goal.

For the varsity it was a rough season of 12-14, but most importantly, according to Coach Masariu, the team never gave up. Inconsistency throughout the season was a frustration, yet the team was one of the most compatible groups she has had. Team captains Shawna Edwards, Beth Holzknecht, and Angie Smith led the group to the final game of the Plainfield Tourney. Edwards was named Honorable Mention of the All-Suburban team, while she also took MVP honors for the team. Holzknecht was cited for her mental attitude. Especially helpful was Michelle McMains who managed the team for four years. The reserve team had an outstanding season with a 20-0 record.

Always noted for her upbeat attitude, Beth Holzknecht stretches to guard the net.

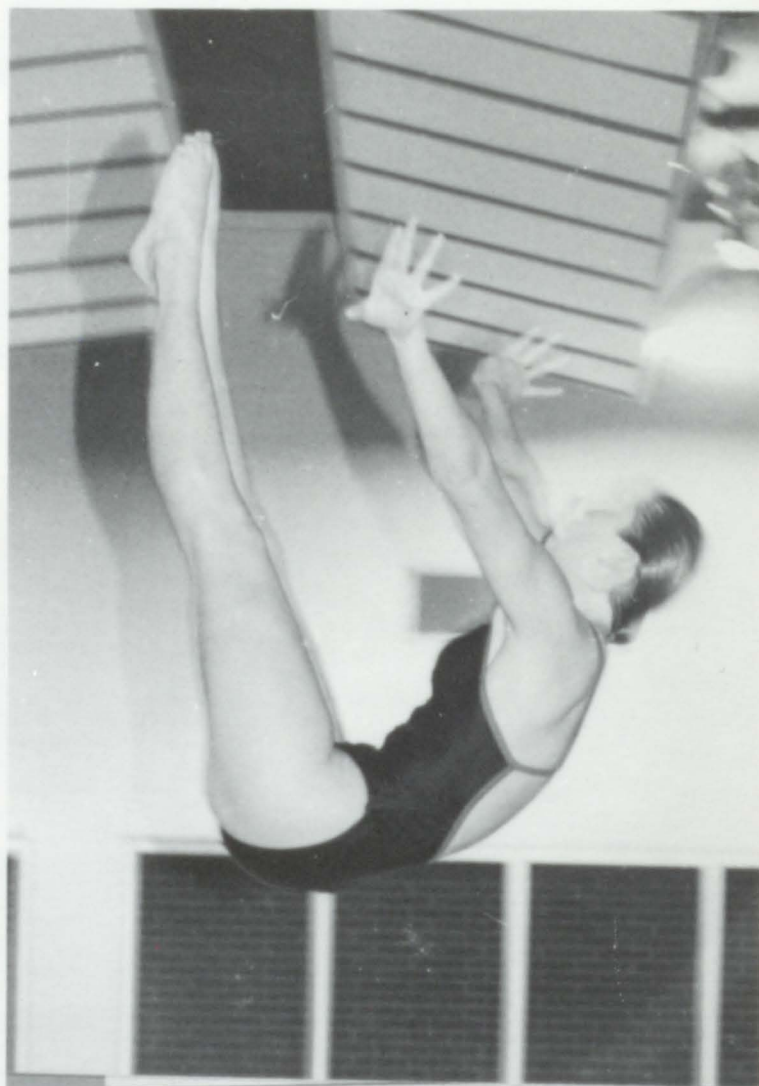

The team's MVP, Shawna Edwards bumps the ball next to teammate Kendra Fulford.

The team began a championship season with a decisive win over Beech Grove, came out of County with first place, finished second in the conference, and sent four girls to State: the medley relay of Joy and J.J. Williams, Shelley VanWanzele, and Debi Edmondson, as well as J.J. in the breaststroke event. Franklin was the team's main problem, causing their only defeat in the dual meets and edging the Quakers out of the Mid-State win by only 2 points. J.J. was the team's MVP, while Julie Wright won the Mental Attitude award.

Swimmers' season is impressive/BOYS' SWIMMING

A muscular stroke is needed for the butterfly; Andrew Bennett laps the length of the pool.

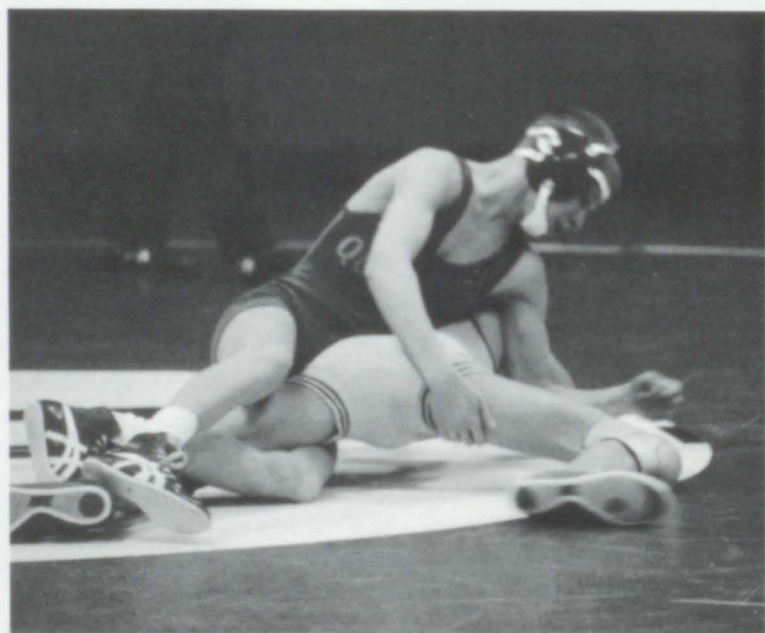

With excellent team depth and no weaknesses in any event, the swim team overpowered their opponents as one of the strongest dual meet teams in the area. Coached by two men experienced in swimming techniques, the team continued an impressive record that has built over the past 10 to 12 years. Individuals who excelled were Brady Sweeney as the Conference diving champ; the medley relay of Doug Teany, Tony Jordan, Andrew Bennett, and Lee Bobb; Tim Sweeney who posted the school's third highest record in the butterfly; and Doug Teany whose 1:05.6 in the 100 breaststroke was the second fastest at PHS. Andrew Bennett was honored for his mental attitude.

Selected as MVP for the season, Tim Sweeney charges into the pool.

Dethroning Avon as County champs was the highlight of the season for the wrestling team. With terrific senior leadership the team had a winning season; Coach Meunier attributed it to the serious and hard-working attitude established by the four senior captains. Season MVP was Doug Pirtle for getting the most falls throughout the season and advancing to State at 189. Dean McClain was noted for his mental attitude as well as for the most take-downs. David Burcham had the fastest pin at 0:28. The most improved wrestler, according to Meunier, was John Nease. On the reserve team, both Chad Briggs and Brandon Lewis were Conference champions.

Out for part of the season, center Mark Galloway moves toward the basket.

Led by a new coaching staff of Mr. Dana Greene and Mr. Don Dones, a mostly senior team had a rough go of it through this year's season. Seeming to have difficulty putting a good game together, the team struggled through some near misses, rebounded to take both overtime games, and ended their seasons with a disappointing loss to Cascade at Sectionals. At the close of the season, Tarry Schabel was MVP and second team All-Sectional, Eric Schafhauser was honored for his mental attitude, Greg Gould had tallied up the most assists, Darren Whaley provided most rebounds, and Curt VanWanzeele was selected All-Conference.

Freshman Scott Morgan sets up a play for Quakers.

Thirty-one prospective varsity players joined the reserve and freshmen teams this year, and the reserve came out with the best season record of all three teams, advancing to the County finals against Brownsburg. Several reserve players moved up to varsity level as the season progressed, filling in spots vacated by injured team members or as needed, according to coaching strategy. While the freshmen divided themselves into A and B teams, they came away with some close losses.

Both varsity and reserve teams came out of '89 with winning seasons. Led by three senior captains—Beth McMartin, Angie Smith, and Emily Smith—the teams consisted of many younger players, with only six of the seventeen members as upperclassmen. MVP at the end of the season was Angie Smith, who was noted in the Indianapolis News for her triple double in one game: double figures in scoring, rebounding, and assists; Angie also had the most assists throughout the season. The mental attitude winner was Michelle Chaille, while Angie McCool was singled out for most free throws. Managers for the teams were Tina Austin and Stacey Bennett.

Best season since '84/GYMNASTICS

Led by their three senior captains—Debi Edmondson, Shawna Edwards, and Beth Holzknecht—the gymnastics team of 3 seniors, 2 juniors, 1 sophomore, and 7 freshmen ended their dual meet season in the win column, came out of Sectionals in third place, and sent a girl on to Regionals, the first time since 1984. Although they were not as aggressive during early competition as Coach Rink wanted, the girls came on strong at the end and placed Erin Greene in the Regionals. Most Valuable Player honors went to Erin for her effort, while senior Debi Edmondson was given the Mental Attitude award. Assisting Coach Rink was Diana Simpson, a former Quaker gymnast.

Seasons have highs/GIRLS' TRACK, CROSS COUNTRY

Noted for her hurdling, Kim Basch clears a low hurdle in the 300.

Although both the cross country and track teams had seasons under .500, they had highlights. Janette Searle, an exchange student to PHS, was a top finisher against Avon and in the North Montgomery Invitational; she was the team's MVP, while Elise Hesson won the Mental Attitude award.

In track, it was a season for individual achievement. Shawna Edwards won second in the Sectionals to go to Regionals, where she won seventh place in high jump. Kim Basch took fifth in Sectionals in the 300 low hurdles, and the 1600 relay team of Lucy Bednarek, Erin Greene, Beth Reynolds, and Katie Zimmerman set a new school record. MVP was Edwards, and Debi Edmondson won mental attitude honors.

Taking the baton from her teammate Kim Basch, Shawna Edwards stretches out for a run.

Runner Damon Leach clears the low hurdle with room to spare.

Distance running in Cross Country requires the careful pacing of Quakers Richie Rice, Chris Ragan, Brian Mills, Andy Hylton, and Jason Hammond.

Poised at the starting line, Brad Sims prepares for take-off; he and his relay team were especially successful this season.

Launching his shot into the air, Ty Robbins is lifted off the ground as he follows through after release.

Teams run up wins/BOYS' TRACK, CROSS COUNTRY

Cross Country, Front: Todd Biggerstaff, Larry Meyer, David Boulware, Bobby Lang, Chris Ragan; Row 2: Ryan Schafhauser, Andy Hylton, Jason Hammond, Kyle Lansberry, Ben Collins; Back: Coach Brian Pelkey, Matt Kirchoff, Eric Schafhauser, Jim Cooper, Brent Siebenthal, Brian Mills

Led by three seniors—Kirchoff Schafhauser, and Siebenthal—the cross country team had a tough season, posting few wins but providing experience for the team's 13 underclassmen. MVP honors went to sophomore Kyle Lansberry, while Todd Biggerstaff, also a sophomore, was noted for his fine mental attitude.

Plagued by injuries, the track team still had a winning season. Underclassmen finished an encouraging third out of 13 in the Quaker Classic. Noted for their performances at Sectionals were Joseph in pole vault, Gould in long jump, Hartman and VanWanzele in shot put, Morris in discus, Helms in the 400, and the 1600 relay of Helms, Schafhauser, Sims and Hammond. Tarry Schabel took MVP honors as a consistent performer, while Greg Gould was recognized for his attitude.

Quaker Field is a hit / BASEBALL

With the construction of a new middle school taking over the old Anderson Park diamond, Hummel Park became the site of the new Quaker Field, and a first-class facility it is. Community support was recognized on opening day, as Board President Yoho threw out the first ball. The varsity ended their season slightly under .500, with a strong finish at Sectionals, going to the final game. A 4-year award went to Brad Hawk, with Steve Krieger selected as MVP and Dean McClain noted for his mental attitude.

Senior, Dean McClain, on third, is the recipient of the MA award, while pitcher Steve Krieger is MVP.

Stretching to make the play, co-captain Kim McMains ends her season by catching more than 60 out of 69 hits during the season at shortstop.

Coaching the first softball team for PHS, Mr. Jay Clapp feels that the season was a productive one which he is proud of.

A good first base player, Kathy McGary is also the leading batter for the Quakers. Having improved throughout the season, Tiffany Summers, experienced in slow pitch softball, delivers a fast ball over the plate; she made a good adjustment to fast pitch play.

First team takes County/SOFTBALL

Softball Team, Front: Kim Shelley, Kendra Fulford, Kim McMains, Jenny Hughes; Row 2: Stacey Winters, Alisa Western, Tiffany Summer, Kathy McGary, Coach Jay Clapp, Brooke Wittell, Katie Hall, Jennifer Miller, Gina Laban; Row 3: Janet Giles, Sharlene Miller, Joy Williams, Angie Smith

The second new sport to be added to the PHS roster this year, softball was coached by Mr. Jay Clapp. Clapp was proud of the positive attitude displayed throughout the season, for the girls were competitive and worked hard. Winning County was a real plus with defeats of Avon and Brownsburg. The team came from behind 6-0 against Franklin in the Sectional game to take it into extra innings. The mental attitude award was given to Jenny Hughes, while the only senior, Angie Smith, received MVP honors.

Ready to run, Kim Shelley leans toward second while she watches the batter.

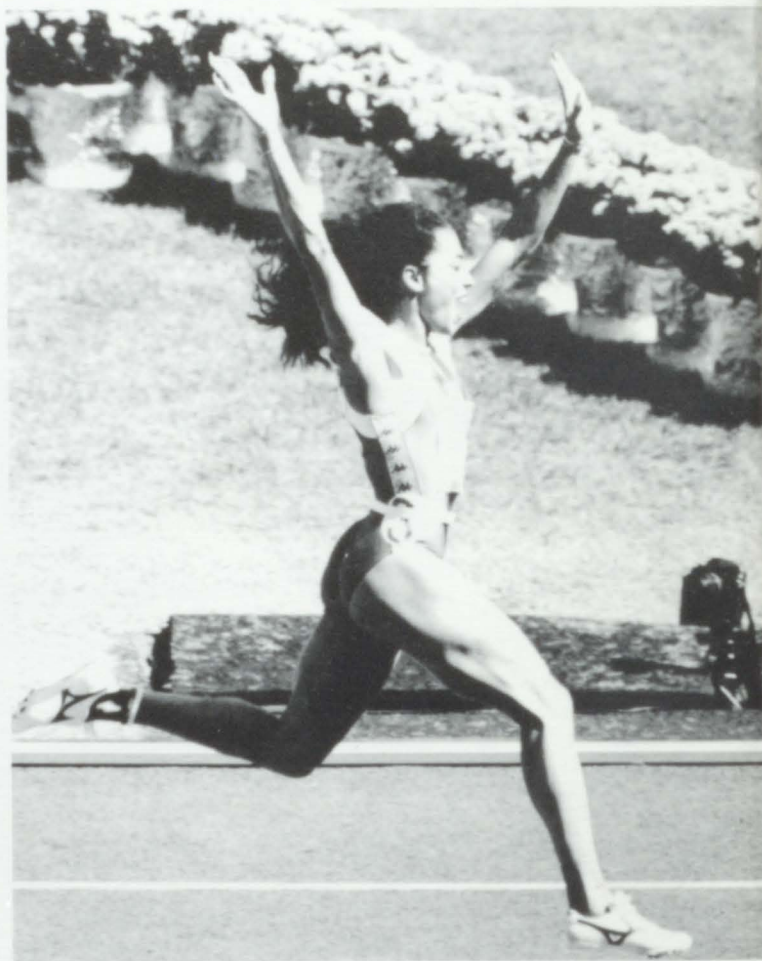

Team co-captain and MVP, Angie Smith winds up from third to throw the runner out.

Capably supervised by an alert referee, a new five-member team takes the Quaker home court to replace the basket during the Franklin game.

Olympic runner Florence Griffith Joyner dazzles crowds in Seoul, South Korea, with her one silver and three gold medals as well as her stylish running outfits.

The PHS bookstore, run by DECA students, regularly advertises its special in the front hall display case. Valentine's Day workers at Hardee's are Laurie Morarity, Mary Dees, Nikki Luttrell, and Angie Burke.

PAN BRIO

If you like the Sicilian, then you'll love this! The Pan Brio is formed and baked in a round pan-coated with olive oil. The Brio is then topped with generous amounts of sauce and real American dairy cheese. It is then loaded up with the toppings of your choice and baked to a golden brown.

Come on in to Noble Romans and try a Pan Brio. You're gonna love it!

 GOLF 150-151
 Good, Brian (12) 52, 53, 125, 138

In the fall of 1988 in Seoul, South Korea, U.S. long-jumper Carl Lewis leaps to another Olympic medal, while PHS's own Greg Gould practices his jump on the home track; Gould was one of Coach Teany's most reliable and versatile seniors this year.

Indiana's Republican Dan Quayle becomes Vice President with running mate George Bush in the fall election which pitted them against Democrats Gov. Michael Dukakis and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. Meanwhile, CHAP students Andy Hylton, Tony Jordan, and Jamie Owens go back in time to become rulers of an earlier century.

Game show host Bo Gallagher and assistant Shawwna Edwards put seniors through a review of clichés in English 12-4.

At one of several Rec Nights, John Hall seems to size up his friend Curt VanWanzele's outfit. A happy Shannon Davis picks up her cap and gown in the guidance office.

INDEX H — M

The happy faces of Mary Dees, J.J. Williams and Marla Lich reflect their feelings about graduation, while Brady Sweeney grins with his cap and gown in hand. Ready for the ceremony are Mary Trobaugh, Penney Feltner, Michelle Benning and Stacy Wood.

Only 18, Debbie Gibson hits the charts with her songs (her "Lost in Your Eyes" was our Prom theme this year), and popular Irish group U2 picks up a Grammy award; at home our own band takes a fifth place trophy to add to the showcase collection: Brian Schafer, Debbie Newlin, Becky Swallow and Steve Meyer.

INDEX M — R

Rock star Robert Plant grabs the microphone to belt out a song, while local musician Mr. Sweeney strums a guitar to a 50's style song. Talented drummer David Lewis dazzles his audience at Sensations '89.

Clowning around and taking life a little more lightly, Barry Taylor, Tim Sweeney, and Brad Sims ham it up, while Mrs. Kellogg expresses her good humor at float building. Getting paid to be funny is the privilege of Indiana's David Letterman.

INDEX R — T

Caught by the camera! Mike Bowermaster signs for peace; Paul Carpenter and Kristy Fredrick pose at Powderpuff while John East leans into the picture; and Gina Combs and Marie Gillespie serve punch only to have Darla Reeves lighten the mood.

INDEX T — Z

Prom brings out the couples: Scott Frisbie and Heather Russell watch the dance floor, while Spencer Beaman and April Fivecoat move to a fast song, and Christy Wallace takes a break with her date, David Cupp.

T-shirts in honor of seniors who live on Brentwood Drives East and West include the names of the graduates who, as a group, hosted a rainy pre-graduation party.
