Rise and Shine. Tuesday, August 22, 1989. This was the first day of a new year. We rushed in the door, arriving early, even if we were never on time again. In the halls, we greeted old friends, and we made a few new acquaintances.

Here it was — a chance for a new start! We had planned this school year just this morning while taking a shower and getting dressed in that new outfit intended to impress everyone and show off the tan that took the entire summer. We'd be on time to class. The honor roll wasn't impossible and setting our sights high was good. Getting more involved in school activities looked like it could be fun. There would be no trips to the office. And finally, we could even keep our lockers in better shape. After all, there were only nine months until summer vacation.

We did great, at first. But sometimes our good intentions got lost along the way. But we meant well, and we did accomplish some of those resolutions (and weren't they made to be broken?).

But even though the first day excitement faded during those long nine months, there were memorable moments. Classes, clubs, sports, activities, friends, and even the teachers and classes helped make 1989-1990 memorable. After all, when school ended on May 31, 1990, we were ready to move on with our lives and into a new decade.

Although Clash Day for Spirit Week is not widely practiced by the student body, the cheerleaders go all out for this event. Kneeling: Heather Saulsbury, Jamie Goss, Jenny Taylor, Tonya Cooper. Standing: Dia Daniel, Angie Freije, Amber Groninger, Amy Anderson, Alex Barile, Erin Greene, Kendra Fulford and Andrea Goss.

Preparing to leave the Plainfield Plaza for the annual homecoming parade, band members warm up, get their marching lines straight, check their uniforms, get last minute instructions and even offer one another encouragement as shown by Donnie Shumaker and Matt Underwood.

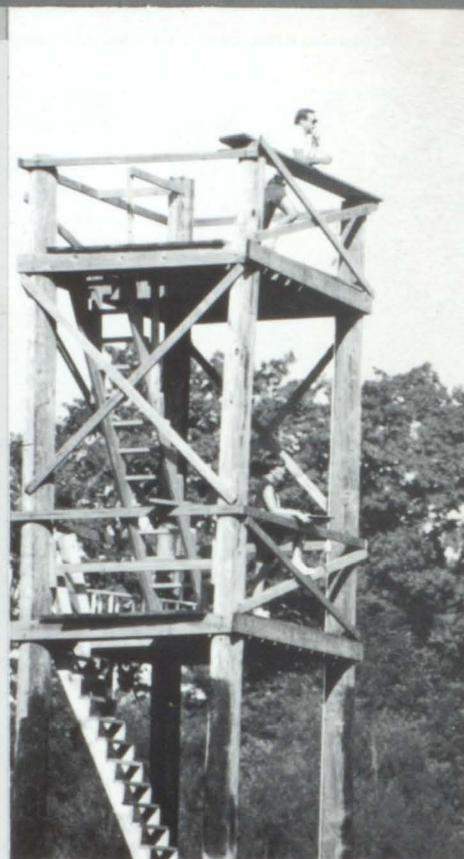

Plainfield's Teacher of the Year for 1990 is Mr. Bruce Milburn who has contributed a great deal to education and PHS in his 26 years of teaching, including the design of the Plainfield Quaker on this yearbook cover. Singing the last number at the March Star Pride Revue are Jeremy Elkins and Luci Yates performing "After All."

The new band tower on the east lawn near the soccer field provides a place for band director Mrs. Elliot and her husband to analyze the band's movements from a new perspective. After hours English for extra credit brought many honors students in for popcorn, cokes and a movie.

Having served as the Quaker man for the past two years, senior Kevin Doolin is partially dressed to ride in his last homecoming parade in the red and blue costume. To cheer at a daytime football game is a new experience for cheerleader Angie Freije but after a night rain delay, daytime football is in order. Concern is apparent on the faces of these Quaker supporters who are watching the boys' varsity basketball team go down in sectional defeat.

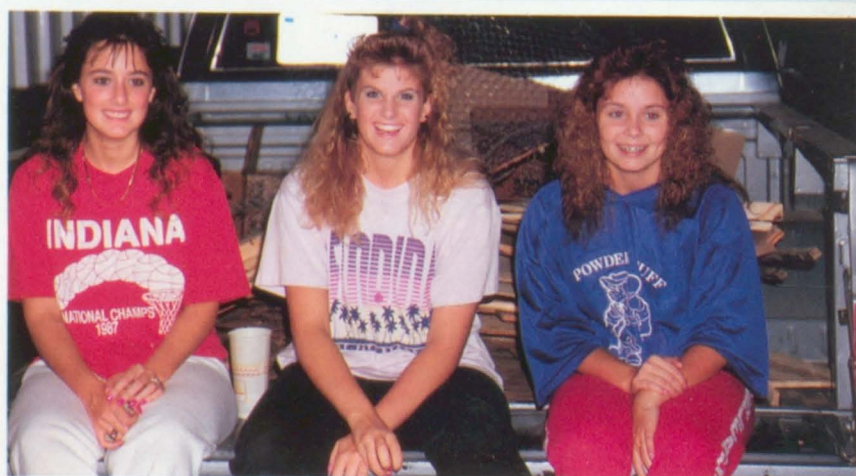

For Mrs. Jackson, teaching English takes on a new meaning as the spring rains came — in! The rap song performed by Jonn Thompson and the Posse wins the approval of the audience. As a National Honor Society project, Erin Mossman prepares flowers to deliver to shut-ins.

The project XL winners are recognized with a pizza and coke lunch for their creative efforts in this Farm Bureau sponsored drug awareness program; two of the participants are Daphne Farrington and Kristin Helser. The control board for light and sound looks really complicated but taking control of the situation are Jason Schlachet and a helper.

Junior Josh Wieland brought home several first place ribbons and the right to compete in the national science fair after the state competition. During pep session activities, Traci Wortman takes aim with a squirt gun at Jared Stagner's shaving cream covered face.

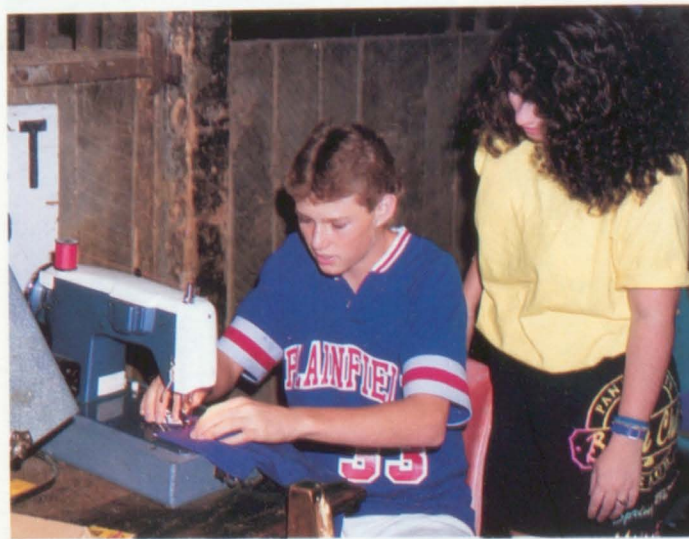

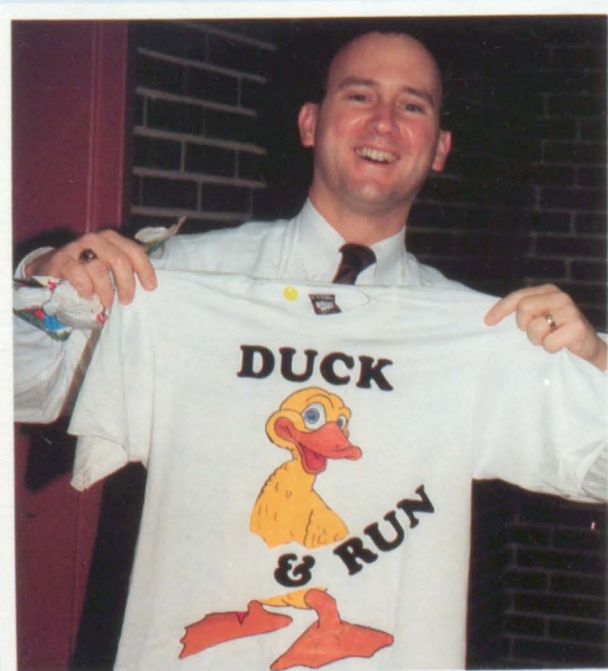

The Women in Sports reception gave Kathy McGary and other onlookers the chance to see how women's sports have progressed. Vocabulary building through Scrabble are Matt Skirvin, Ben Bill, Josh Morrell and Jason Cheek. Laura Updike, LeeAnn Edwards and Lisa Cangany take a float building break during a busy homecoming week.

To make sure everything on the sidelines is running smoothly is the job of football student manager Katie Hall. Spring fever and prom fever hit when tuxedos, worn by Brian Moore, Tim Hensley, John Spencer, Steve Fippen, Tim Wampler, Matt Rhoden and Keith Smith, started appearing at school.

With the sewing machine under control, Jamie Owens, with the watchful eye of Christa Cassidy, begins to sew the football player's pants for the first place junior float. In keeping with the new fight policy is Mr. Strauss' gift from the faculty Christmas breakfast.

Student Life

Left: Communicating with the crew members on lights and sound in the control room and up on the catwalk is Ben Friedman's job during Star Pride Revue. The freshmen coaches for the girls' powder puff team find their first experience calling the plays a nail biting experience.

Trends Affect More Than Clothing

The 1989-1990 school year saw the revolution of glowing colors in everything: shorts, hats, ski wear, t-shirts, and even tuxedos; college logos on sweatshirts; tennis shoes; car graphics; and, sunglasses. Girls picked up on the wrap-around free flowing pant style. The guys dressed up in waist length jackets with dress pants. Jeans were, as always, the most popular items. Leather jackets were also abundant. Popular brand names included Body Glove, Guess, IOU, Gotcha, Guess, Levi, OP, and many more.

Tennis shoes became status symbols with Air Jordans, Reebok Pumps, British Knights, and LA Gear. Car graphics were new this year, as CD's and tanning beds grew in popularity.

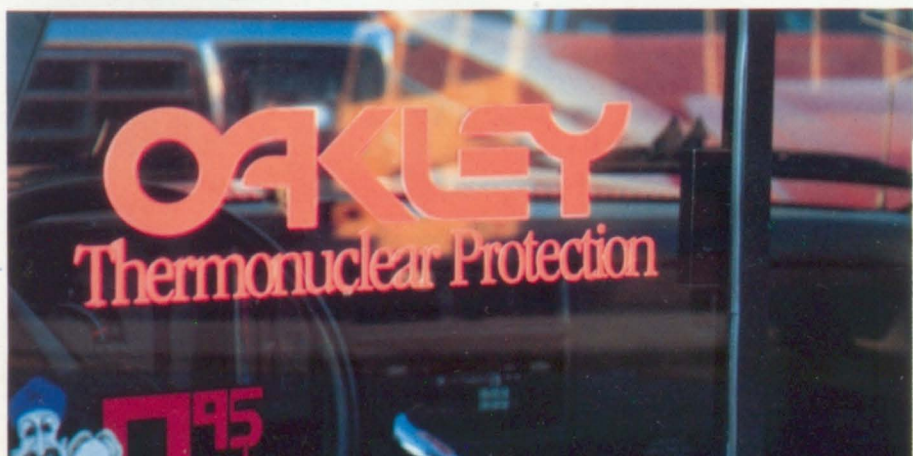

Guess clothing, as worn by Matt Mendenhall, remains popular after several years on the market. Trish Dilk and Tonya Cangany show off IOU sweatshirts, a common wardrobe item after the Christmas holidays.

The understated is not the style as displayed at Galyan's; fluorescent is the newest item with sportswear, shoes and hats in glowing colors.

Big money is required to maintain fashionable shoes such as Jordans, Reeboks, and Bo Jacksons. College sweatshirts not only are popular but show spirit as exhibited by Jason Mead, Ernie Spradley, John East and Lori Walland.

Clockwise from left: Oakley window graphics, clothing and especially sunglasses are hot. CD's have taken over the cassette tape as the way to buy music. Modeling some of the latest styles are Courtney Benson and Danielle Jackson.

Super Heroes Theme for 1989

Float Building

A minor amount of faculty assistance can't hurt anything as freshmen sponsors Miss King and Miss Sprowl inspect the float paper skirt. To shape chicken wire into something recognizable is the task of juniors Kim Padgett and Darrell Close.

Countless hours of planning and hard work go into a homecoming float. The process begins with a theme selection by Student Council. Once that theme is established, it's time for the class officers and their sponsors to go to work. Decisions must be made: where to build the float, whose wagon can be borrowed, what the design and theme will be, and what supplies to order. A work schedule is established and sponsors are lined up to supervise. And finally, the real work begins.

Beginning with a bare wagon, class members measure, saw and hammer to frame their float. Chicken wire is molded to the appropriate shape; flowers, poms or float paper hide the unsightly wire. Special effects such as light and sound are added. Fringed skirts and cut out letters complete the final touches to create a finished, and hopefully, award-winning float.

The senior officers bask in the glory of what they hope will be an award winning final float as classmate Jake Kendall also enjoys the moment.

Quaker Victory Highlights Activities

By the time September 22 arrived, princess and queen votes had been cast, new outfits purchased, mums ordered, parade plans finalized, judges selected; floats needed only to be moved to Plainfield Plaza and final touches completed.

Activities for the night included the parade led by the cheerleaders atop a fire truck, 1988 Homecoming Queen Shawanna Edwards, Grand Marshall John East and the PHS Red Pride Marching Band. Each class was represented by princess candidates, a float and class officers.

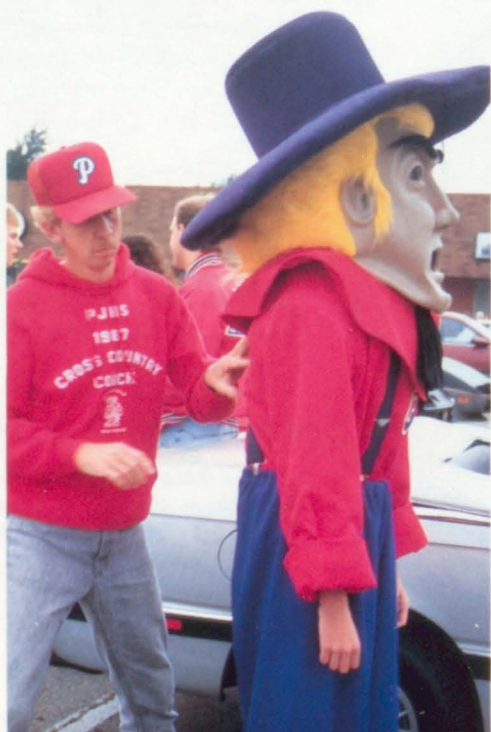

The float competition resulted in a second place award for the senior float, "Batman and the Quakers: the Dynamic Duo," and a first place junior finish with "Quakers Super Heroes Sandwich Warriors." Gina LaBan was elected homecoming queen with Jenny Taylor and Brooke Wittell the other candidates. The junior class selected Heather Clapp; Robin Baker and Kendra Fulford were the other candidates. The Class of 92 chose Angie Freije and Lori Walland as candidates; Jennifer Miller was chosen princess. The freshmen picked Cher Gallagher from a trio including Jeni Bond and Ryan Dodds.

The halftime activities led to a come from behind 15-14 victory over Whiteland on the last play of the game. The evening's activities concluded with 1988 yearbook distribution and the annual dance.

Celebrating a great play by their teammates in the last few seconds of the game are juniors Brad Sims and Ethan Hooper, along with Jake Kendall.

The annual girls' clash of the classes took place on October 23. The freshmen and sophomore ladies battled to a freshmen victory. The second round of competition left the senior class victorious over the juniors.

Powder puff activities included not only an entertaining flag football contest but "cheerleading" exhibitions from male class members dressed in their best feminine attire. Each team had an abundance of coaches.

For prince the freshmen nominated Jake Firkins, Chad Masterson, and Jeremy Riddell. Sophomores selected Chuck Downey, Ryan Ennis and Brad Ferrell. Ethan Hooper, Damon Leach and Jason Mead represented the juniors while the seniors chose Milton Briggs, Tim Sweeney and Tim Wampler. With votes tallied, the classes chose Jake Firkins, Brad Ferrell, Ethan Hooper and Tim Wampler.

Whether voluntarily done or done under pressure, powder puff chores require a lot of people volunteering their time and some teamwork as shown as chain gang members Jonn Thompson, Pete Jackson and Jason Cummings, sophomores.

The Boyfriend

Before the actual performance, last minute preparations include helping; Heath Helgason lends a helping hand to Spencer Beaman back stage.

The fall musical presentation was The Boyfriend. This 1920's comedy focused on the adventures of the young women at Mme. Dubonnet's Finishing School. Scenes included a beach setting with brightly colored cabanas and young ladies and gentlemen in the typical flapper-type bathing suits. One especially popular scene featured a costume party.

The amorous adventures of several couples are the mainstay of the program. Luci Yates played Mme. Dubonnet. Steve Boles was her romantic interest, Percival Browne. Stephanie Linn and Mike Hartley played another couple in love, Polly Browne and Tony Brockhurst. Other major parts were played by Spencer Beaman, Jessica Appleget and Tami Jagers. The November presentation featured a large cast and a variety of musical numbers.

Clockwise from left: Peering into the mirror, Jeff Bartley checks his appearance. Mrs. Schneider works backstage to finalize Steve Boles' make-up. To check the stage lighting is just one job performed by stage crew member Kevin Marquis.

Left: Sitting atop the shoulders of just two of the admiring beach crowd is Jessica Appleget. Below: Tami Jagers performs duties as an employee of Mme. Dubonnet.

Clockwise from left: Prying some information from Tami Jagers are several of Mme. Dubonnet's students, Sara Jennison, Alex Barile and Jamie Goss. Reuniting after a long separation, Luci Yates and Steve Boles are delighted to see one another. Mike Hartley and Stephanie Linn find true love in an unlikely match with one another.

Students Participate in "Games"

Listening to team introductions, the participants get "psyched" for the team competitions.

Jenny Miller "crab walks" to the finish line for her segment of the competition. "Leap frog participants Ida Cauldwell and Troy Pace hop down the floor. Running with a basketball between the knees is an easy task for Chad Bobb.

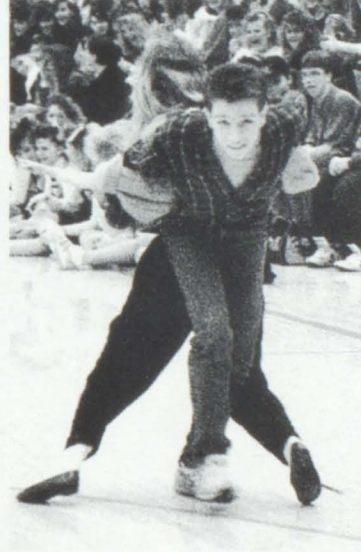

This tumbling pyramid is the conclusion of a series of chaotic team activities.

Friday afternoon — seventh period was shortened to boost morale and/or honor our athletic teams. This year featured more pep sessions with more athletes recognized and more student involvement. The cheerleaders led class competition cheers; the band entertained with the school song.

Competitions, some between grades, were featured. The "games" included leap frog and crab walks, jumping rope and hula hooping, shooting free throws and shooting squirt guns, popping balloons and building pyramids.

Demonstrating various physical challenges are Mike Barnes and Krissy Holden balancing the tennis ball; Milton Briggs pulling a reluctant Lee Ann Edwards; Steve Moon racing down the floor carrying his partner; Darla Dierkes and Ernie Spradley dribbling while running a three-legged race.

Spirit of the Season Catches On

A snow-covered tree adds beauty to the holidays. Mr. Strauss, Mr. Goldsberry and Mr. Jackson feed a hungry faculty breakfast.

Scrabble the day before vacation is a great English activity for red and green clad Meredith Fillmore, Sara Jennison and Janeen Taylor.

The Christmas spirit seemed to catch on in 1989. The season had never been totally neglected, but in the interest of education and fewer classroom disruptions, decorating and activities had always been minimized. This year, previously undecorated areas boasted Christmas trees, flashing lights and wrapped packages.

Students and teachers alike joined in the festivities. Involvement included an abundance of red and green clothing, decorating rooms and a very successful food collection for local distribution.

Christmas elves couldn't look more properly attired than senior Stephanie Davis. For the entire school's enjoyment, Liberty Willis, along with other art students, paint the auditorium windows.

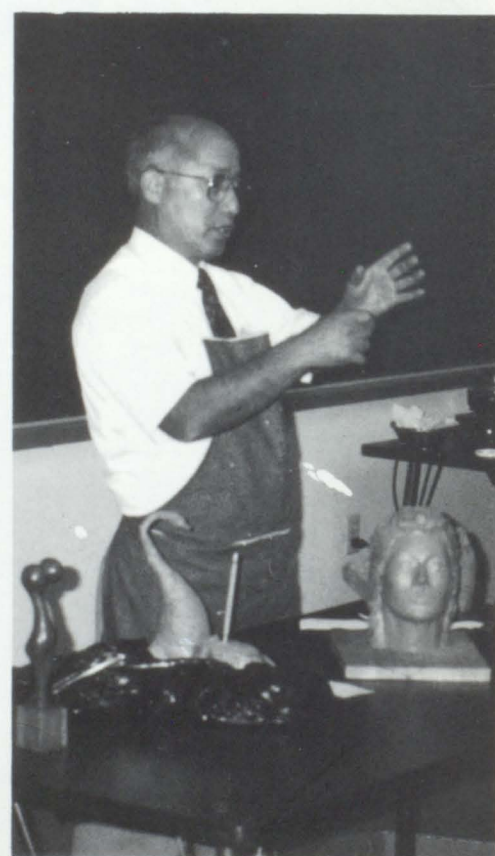

Santa Muston makes a surprise stop to distribute gifts at a 6:30 A.M. holiday breakfast for the faculty and staff.

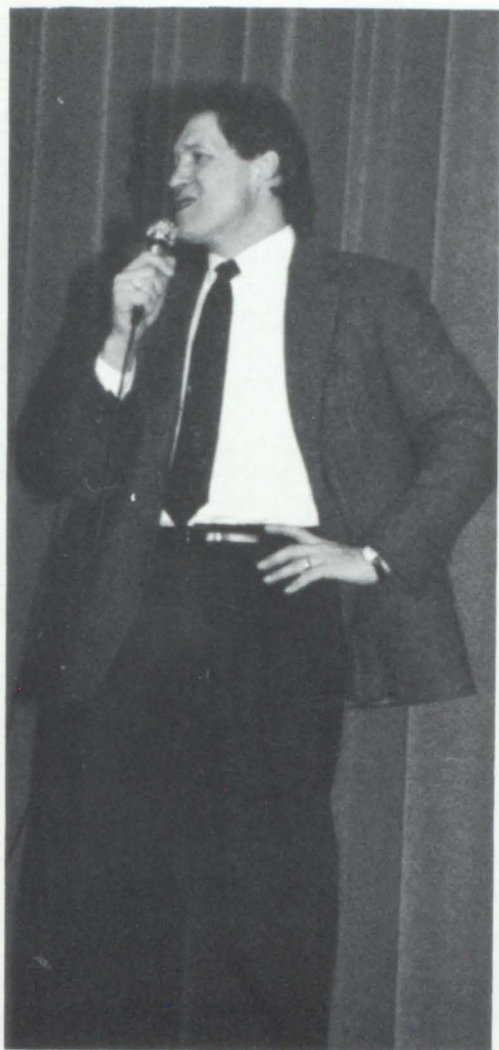

Outside Influences Affect Our Lives

School board members Mr. Shore and Mr. Pilcher receive schedules from Ethan Hooper and Chad Briggs on a visitation day. Ms. Cindy O'Connor from Social Health of Indiana meets with a group of freshmen boys.

Generating a great deal of student enthusiasm while promoting individuality and self motivation is guest speaker Mark Scharenbroich, the "boom-bah-hey" man. On career day Mr. Marker greets Indiana Health Careers speaker, Ms. Trudy Tharp. To learn as much American culture as possible, West German exchange student Arnim Hilgendorf prepares for skateboarding.

Even when it seemed nothing changed at school and the schedule became monotonous, guests in our building added some variety. Visitors appeared and disappeared throughout the year. Some guests came in for an hour or a day; these included convocation presenters, junior achievement advisers, school board members, recruiters, career day speakers, visiting artists and more. Other guests extended their stays, some for weeks or even an entire school year. Student teachers were abundant; their time was spent developing their own teaching abilities as well as observing PHS teachers for a variety of techniques. Foreign exchange students anticipated a year long visit when they arrived at school. No matter what length of time was spent here, the guests heightened learning experiences at PHS.

At senior exit interviews sponsored by the guidance department, recruiters and vocational representatives discuss future plans with about to be graduated seniors Suzanne Hummel, Christy Burger and Kim Floyd.

Valentine Dance

Christmas Theme Becomes Valentine Dance

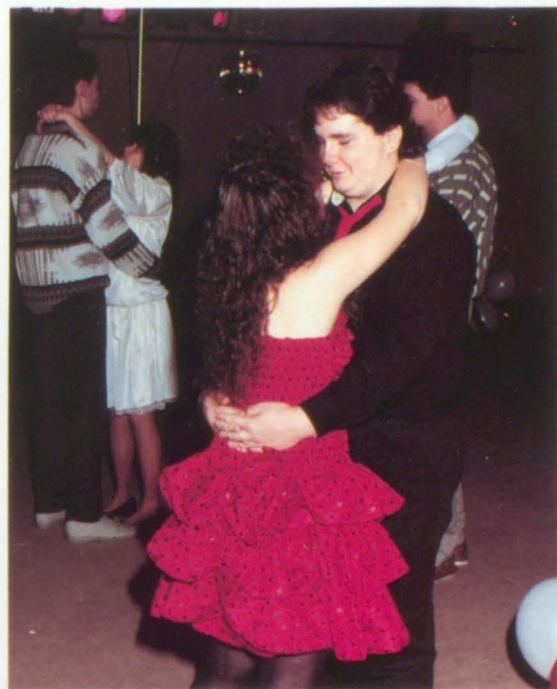

Top left: Enjoying a few moments to relax and talk with friends are Amber Hacker, Mike Hartley and Laura Schaible. Above: Brad Henderson and Debbie Martin take a whirl to sounds provided by a DJ.

The Guilford Township Community Center was reserved, the decorations were planned, and the photographer was scheduled. Carriage rides had been arranged, and the SADD-sponsored Christmas Dance was ready.

When sub-zero temperatures and dangerously low wind chills set in on December 22, the Christmas trees were exchanged for hearts. The dance was postponed to February 17 and a Valentine theme was established. Many guests enjoyed sitting and visiting with friends, others spent time on the dance floor, and almost everyone took advantage of the free carriage rides through Hummel Park.

Posing for the camera are Jamie Sparks, Brandy Watson, Debbie Webster, Chad Bobb, Karen Apple, Darrell Diamato and Leann Jones. To chaperone the dance is the duty of SADD sponsor Mr. Baker and his wife Linda.

Varied Activities Interest PHS Students

Collecting penguins and talking on the phone are two leisure activities of Shelley VanWanzele. To get just the right shot with the camera is Ethan Hooper's goal.

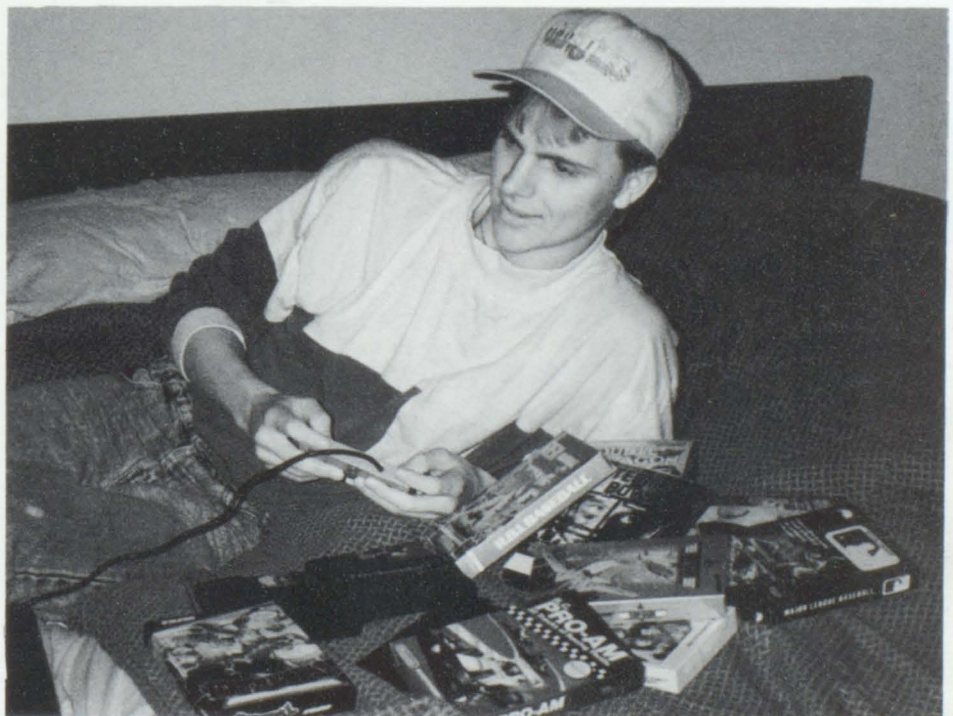

During a motocross race, Kevin Lampe becomes airborne in an attempt to finish well.

Hobbies, interests, activities. Girls still enjoyed the stand-bys: talking on the phone, collecting, hanging out with friends, going to the mall and shopping. The guys did many of the same activities, but video games was a new interest many adopted. Baseball card collecting also gained popularity.

Beside the conventional hobbies, students expanded to more unusual recreation. Racing of all kinds had caught on. Flying, both real planes and models, was practiced. Whatever the chosen pasttime, they all provided a break from the rigorous schedule of school and homework.

Proudly displaying her trophy, a barefoot Stacy Strong sports her karate attire. John East is one of numerous PHS Nintendo enthusiasts.

Talented Teenagers Perform

The Posse's rap performance, complete with body guards, features Milton Briggs, Jonn Thompson and Keith Smith performing an energetic dance with DJ Doug Teany providing music. "Magic" is the name of mime Seth Arnold's act.

Returning to their childhood and singing about "Happiness" are Natalie Lyons and Jill Harvey. "Just a Little Something" by Clint Newlin is a drum solo.

The Plainfield Players' Second Annual Talent Show was performed on March 9. The auditorium was the scene of the Star Pride Revue, a one and one-half hour program demonstrating the talents of PHS students. A total of fifteen acts were performed, offering a wide variety of talents.

Dance and singing routines were performed by several of the students but other acts included a pantomime, a drum solo, and a monologue. Miss Frieden, director, was assisted by a fifteen member committee.

Jobs Cover Wide Variety

Kroger customers are assisted with sacking and carrying their groceries by a smiling Todd Berlin.

After a long, hard day of hitting the books at PHS, many students move on to other things. Some go home to the TV, snacks and maybe a little homework. Others stay for a practice of some kind — sports, music, the play, or academic super-bowl. Still others stick around for other activities such as yearbook or newspaper or science research, but many head for work.

Part time employment ranges from a few hours a week to almost full time jobs. The locations vary with fast food being the most common, but students can be found in many different businesses. And why do they work? The reasons range from the car and its insurance, to spending money, to that trip to Florida over spring break.

Washing dishes at the Waffle House is the part time employment of Bill O'Connor. To wait patiently for each customer to make a decision is only the first part of the job for Baskin Robbins employee Kathy Lowry. Michelle Chaille writes the charge slip for a Galyan's customer.

Below: Working with videos, checking books in and out, repairing and reshelving books are just a few library duties of Misty VanJelgerhuis, Jessica Gillespie and Ginny Maxson. Right: Tammy Lewis sets appointments at the busy Silver Shears Styling Salon.

Stairway to Heaven

With the help of Mr. Balloon Man, Mrs. Carrigan, Michelle Chaille and Brooke Wittell prepare the Convention Center.

The planning began immediately after the 1989 prom. The location was chosen: the Indianapolis Convention Center. A date was established: April 20, 1990. The theme was selected: Stairway to Heaven. The colors were picked: black and silver.

Pre-prom activities included the endless shopping trips for just the right dress and the tux to match. Flowers were ordered and dinner reservations were made. The night finally arrived and after dining in various locations, prom goers entered the Convention Center. Guests were greeted by tuxedoed balloon men as they walked through the black and silver balloon heart-shaped arch. The dance floor was adorned with a large balloon star and columns. Even the picture backdrop featured balloons in the shape of a "stairway to heaven."

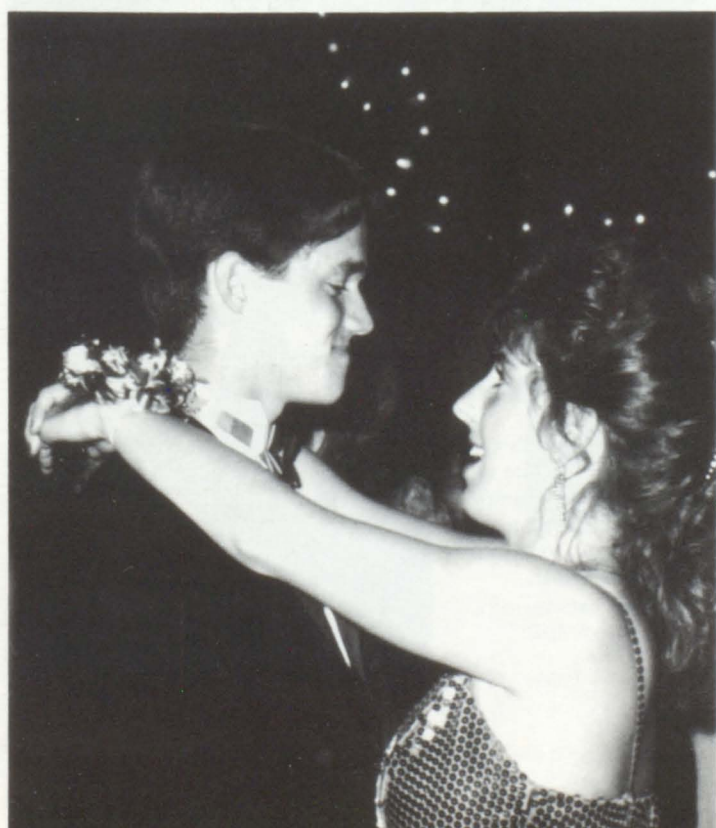

Clockwise from above: Departing for dinner at the Canterbury Hotel and the Convention Center are seniors Brad Sims and Gina LaBan. To examine and repack each prom glass is the job of Melisa Akers and Laina Ridenour. Kim Haley responds to the music. A large crowd of dancers sways to the sounds provided by DJ Danny Masariu.

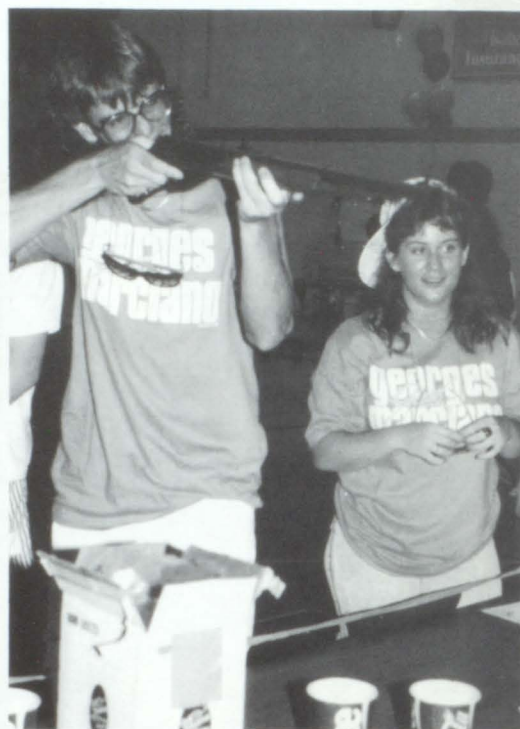

A barefoot Courtney Benson, planning to take a picture, is the focus of the photographer. With the balloon star in the background, couples flood the dance floor. Black and silver balloons make a great souvenir for junior Chad Jones.

Above: Choosing to enjoy the prom as a senior group are: (front) Doug Teany, Jenny Taylor, Kristy Oliver, Jared Stagner, Suzanne Pyatt, Tim Wampler; (middle) Michelle Chaille, Keith Smith, Laura Updike; (back) Doug Pirtle, Jett Ewing, Darren Groce and Jake Kendall. Up, Up and Away was the theme of the 1990 post prom. Hours and hours of preparation by parent volunteers were evident. The exterior of the gym featured lanterns lining the sidewalk, a giant, lighted hot air balloon and a lighted theme sign. The entrance featured a ceiling covered with helium filled balloons to stand under while signing in, registering for raffle prizes and donning new neon sunglasses. The gym lobby featured a wide variety of balloons with lights to highlight them.

The splendor of the decorations led to the activities within the two gyms. The west gym featured a number of games to test a person's abilities. Games included ring toss, dart throw, football toss, miniature golf, squirt guns, hula hoop toss, mop shuffleboard, ping pong and many more. Success at these games earned ticket punches to be traded for prizes found in the east gym. The east gym also featured casino games, including horse racing, blackjack, roulette, chuck-a-luck and poker. The evening concluded with a drawing for prizes, many of which were donated by local businesses.

You Can't Take It With You

With a primary concern in life of being physically fit and learning ballet, Essie, as played by Tonya Cooper, stretches her legs as Grandpa, portrayed by Tim Sweeney, looks on and offers some valuable knowledge.

The spring play, You Can't Take It With You, was about a seemingly crazy family, the Vanderhofs. Actually, the Vanderhofs weren't crazy but rather were professionals at relaxing and being happy. They had enough money to take it easy. They spent their time pursuing hobbies like writing plays, collecting snakes, printing flyers, learning ballet, painting, creating new fireworks and playing with Legos. They were a happy family who shared meals and experiences with one another but with a gentleman caller around, some questions are raised about their lifestyle and how it fits into the reality of life itself.

The play was directed by Miss Frieden. Major roles were played by Tim Sweeney as Grandpa, Katie Hall as Penny Sycamore, Jeff Fine as Paul Sycamore, Jennifer Crawley as Alice, Bobby Western as Tony Kirby, Tonya Cooper as Essie and Paul Carpenter as Ed. Supporting cast members included Meredith Fillmore, Bobby Williams, Doug Margason, Ben Friedman, Clint Newlin, Nikki Meyers, Curt Theobald, Tiffany Scalzitti, Nikki Coder, Mike Hartley, Bret Teany, and Ryan Coe.

Left: Paul Carpenter, who performs as Ed, has two hobbies to occupy his time: playing the xylophone and printing flyers. Seniors Receive Honors

The annual awards for the valedictorian and salutatorian are the most prestigious awards that many seniors strive for and only a few accomplish; wearing their honorary medals are Salutatorian Gina Combs and Valedictorian Brett Ritchie.

May 30, 1990 was the night the seniors received awards and scholarship in excess of $300,000. Departmental awards were first on the evening's agenda with athletic, business, English, fine arts, language, math, science and social studies awards being presented. The senior class officers were recognized, and the gavel was passed from outgoing senior president Tim Sweeney to the incoming senior president Ethan Hooper. A senior slide show followed.

Girls' and boys' state delegates were recognized as were valedictorian Brett Ritchie and salutatorian Gina Combs. Students in the top 5% of the class were recognized; National Honor Society members, students earning honors diplomas and presidential academic fitness award winners were all introduced. National Merit Scholarship letters of recommendation and Purdue University certificates of recognition were presented, followed by awards from the U.S. Army Reserve, the U.S. Air Force and the American Legion.

Scholarship money from universities, local businesses and sororities, and memorial funds were awarded for the remainder of the program.

Graduation

Preparing to follow the seniors into the football stadium are administrators, school board members and teachers: Mr. Strauss, Mr. Jackson, Mr. Shore, Dr. Eiche, Reverend Means, Mrs. Palmer, Mr. Conley, Mr. Pilcher, Mrs. Hall and Mr. Gladden.

The last week of school featured dismal weather with a number of serious storms throughout the state and nation. Plainfield was no exception with rain and wind Saturday, June 2. Graduation day, Sunday, June 3, dawned bright and sunny, but by the time the ceremony was beginning, the wind was blowing strongly. The graduates struggled to keep the caps on with tassels on the left side.

Seniors entered at the east end of the football field to Pomp and Circumstance. The salutatory and valedictory addresses followed the benediction by Rev. Jacqueline Means. Diplomas were presented by Mr. Jackson and school board member Mr. Chris Shore. Class president Tim Sweeney instructed the class to move their tassels, and the seniors responded with an abundance of silly string and confetti. Red and blue balloons were released and scurried away in the strong breeze. As the graduates headed for receptions and parties, the wind brought forth yet another heavy rainstorm.

Foreign Languages

The foreign language offerings for this year included French, German, and Spanish. Besides the regular classroom activities involved with each language at various skill levels, foreign language students found intercultural activities in Plainfield and Indy to be limited. The students and their teachers did find that food was an international pastime and spent time eating and sampling foreign cuisine. The Spanish Club, with sponsors Ms. Davis, Mrs. Moreland, and Mrs. Weaver visited both Acapulco Joe's and Chi-Chi's. The German Club sampled Hansel and Gretl's Restaurant while the French Club dined at Renee's. About 80 German and French students also combined their cooking talents for a pitch-in with a foreign flair, followed by a rec night in the gym.

Vocational

Vocational activities were varied as always. When a student signed up for any course in the vocational area, a number of choices were available. In the shop area, course titles included auto shop, small engine repair, metal shop, woodworking and home repairs. Other selections offered were graphics, photography and drafting. In the home economics area courses included foods, clothing, singles' survival, child care and interior design.

Ben Davis High School vocational classes were also available to PHS'ers and many did participate. Through this program senior Robert Freeman participated in an air conditioning and refrigeration competition. His first place finish sent him to Tulsa, Oklahoma for a national competition and a scholarship to ITT.

Business

The business department continued to offer their traditional courses: typing, note-taking, general business, accounting and computer accounting. Class time involved instructional time, practice time, and independent projects along with testing. One highlight of the year featured Staci Suba being selected to compete in a national typing test that consisted of three problems and a timed writing.

DECA was another part of the business department. Mr. Bohac supervised the program which allowed credit for part-time employment. Members ran the bookstore and competed against other chapters. At a leadership conference held at Eagle Creek in September, Dan Sandlin was elected the District 8 Vice-President. In January Plainfield won the sweepstakes trophy with 29 students able to continue to the State Career Development Conference. On February 14, Brett Ritchie was awarded the Indiana Vocational Education Secondary Student Award for Excellence by Governor Bayh. At state on February 24, three members qualified for the national convention in San Jose, CA: Brett Ritchie, first in marketing; Wes Wilson, first in food marketing; and Joel Spoon, second in quick serve restaurant management. Wes Wilson placed first in food marketing, and Brett Ritchie was in the top ten in general marketing.

Spellbowl

This year's spellbowl team consisted of ten members and one alternate in grades 9-12. Membership was strictly voluntary although English teachers recommended some of the strong spellers. The first competition was held on Tuesday, October 3. Plainfield placed second in this county competition held at Avon High School. The second spellbowl meet was held at Plainfield. This was an area competition on Tuesday, October 17. The Quaker team placed third in this event.

Academic Superbowl

Three academic superbowl competitions were held during the second semester. Teams competed in special areas: all-around, English, fine arts, math, science and social studies. The first event was the county competition held at Danville on March 14. The math and social studies teams placed first, and the all-around and English teams placed second. Plainfield's total team score was the highest of all teams participating.

March 29 was the Mid-State event at Plainfield. Three teams, the all-around, English and social studies, placed second.

Greencastle was the site of the regional on April 17. PHS was the only team to have all of its teams finish third or better. Results included a first place finish for English; second place finishes for all-around, fine arts, science and social studies; and a third place finish for math.

On Friday, Ms. King's class, Kyle Pell, Marty Allen, and Matt Frazee, takes a break from their regular study routine to play a game of UNO.

Special Classes

Several classes were offered at PHS to assist special students. Working in small group settings, these classes helped students accomplish classwork that would otherwise be difficult, if not impossible. Special teachers Ms. King, Ms. Timmons and Mrs. Weisbach were assisted by aides Mrs. Heiland and Mrs. Lautenschlager.

Above: Mr. Bradley, PE teacher and assistant athletic director, measures a long jump attempt by one of his students.

When the weather turns cold, physical education classes move indoors for a variety of activities; Heather Sneed works hard to clobber the ball for some extra bases while Janeen Taylor illustrates good pitching form.

Physical Education

Every freshman had to pass to graduate. Every freshman dreaded the dash to the locker room, a race to dress out and scurrying to get changed and to the next class on time. But while the class was going on, most really enjoyed the activity. Physical education, a state requirement, featured a large number and a wide variety of games and sports. This was the opportunity to be active and not get in trouble for it. Whether the day's activity was in the gym, or the pool, or outside, it always promised to be lively.

Peer facilitation, a new class this year, teams a high school student with an elementary student in an effort to provide friendship and guidance; Dan Sandlin spends time getting acquainted with a student enrolled in the program.

Peer Facilitation

A new class this year was a peer facilitation class taught by Mr. Baker. Students applied to enroll, and a committee selected approximately 25 of the many applicants for each semester. The first quarter of the class was spent learning how to listen and communicate with a younger child. Through a variety of one-on-one and small group activities, high school students learned ways to constructively criticize as well as ways to support proper student behavior and improve improper behavior. Guest speakers such as psychologists and social workers helped prepare the teens for the second quarter of the class.

During the second quarter each facilitator was assigned two elementary students to work with. They met each one for two hours a week. During this time activities varied from playing games, helping with homework, just talking or discussing problems. High school students then spent Fridays back in the classroom sharing some of their experiences. The class members generally felt that they had made a difference in the youngsters' lives.

Debate

The debate competitions resulted in some high place finishes for PHS competitors. On Saturday, September 30, Brian McKee represented PHS at the National Forensic League Student Congress. The Logansport competition was held in mid-October. The team of Dee Ann Welch and Melissa Schafer concluded with a 3-1 record to place them in the top 5 of 32 teams. The final competition was at Lafayette Jefferson High School in November. Ribbons were awarded to the top 10 of the 26 teams participating. Receiving ribbons were Sahir Nadir and Brian McKee; Carol Shepherd and Dee Ann Welch; and Asra Ali and Curt Theobald.

Drama

Plainfield Players, the PHS drama club, kept busy this year. In the fall they visited Park Tudor to watch the dress rehearsal of The Curious Savage. They also worked on three productions this year: The Boyfriend, Star Pride Revue, and You Can't Take It With You. Committees formed within this organization included the auditorium crew. This group was responsible for the technical workings of these productions, including all lights and sound. Other crews built sets, did make-up, prepared costumes, sold tickets, found props and advertised. These same members of Plainfield Players worked whenever the auditorium was in use such as dance rehearsals and the Young Woman pageant.

Journalism/ Yearbook

The RSVP staff this year set out to make some changes and those were evident with the first issue. The paper was written and designed at PHS by journalism students, but the paper was printed at the Messenger/Flyer office with a full page format. Adviser Miss Hunt and Editor Nikki Robinson supervised a staff of about 25 in the production of this year's six issues.

For the yearbook staff, work began in January with labeling and picture identification. Possibilities were discussed for cover ideas. Likes and dislikes were established, and the book was started. This year's staff primarily focused on advertising sales, a major aspect of yearbook production. Meeting most Wednesdays during the second semester were Julie Honey, Kevin Marquis, Jenny McKnight, Laura Shew and Kelly Spanton. They were assisted by Chris Brothers, Curt Dennis and Robin Maupin. Others assisted when time permitted.

Red Pride Band

As always has been the case, the band was one of the most active organizations at PHS. Fund raisers, as always, were a priority but so was competition and fun. The marching band began its competitive season at the Paoli Invitational on September 9 with first place honors, including firsts for overall music, color guard and grand champion overall; there were 14 bands in the competition. The district contest on Saturday, October 1, resulted in a first division rating. At regional competition at Bedford North Lawrence on October 14, the band placed in the top five, qualifying for the ISSMA State Finals at the Hoosier Dome. Another competitive series was the Band of America competition. At the Midwest Regional at Terre Haute on October 21, the band placed third in their class. At the National Mideast Regional at Kings Island, Ohio, the Red Pride band competed against 28 schools and advanced to the finals competition for Bands of America; this is the first PHS band to achieve that honor. The America Grand National Championship was November 17 and 18 at the Hoosier Dome.

Other band accomplishments were numerous. The color guard presented the colors for a Pacers-Bulls game at MSA. Many students performed well at the ISSMA Solo and Ensemble Festival at DePauw University in Greencastle on February 3 and advanced to the state competition at North Central High School on February 24. There were first division ratings for five individuals and four ensembles. The band performed on the track in May for the 500 PreRace Pageant.

Individual honors went to Kent Finchum for being selected to the 1990 Indiana All State Band. The Hooks All State Marching Band included Brigitte Monnett, Jenny Hughes and Robin Maupin.

Choirs

The music department was busy with practices, fund raisers, performances and contests this year. The Girls' Ensemble and the Mixed Ensemble performed during the Christmas season downtown and a concert at school. In January, choir members performed at contest at Lebanon High School. There were a number of first place awards which sent twelve soloists and seven ensembles to the state competition at North Central High School on February 17. The State Solo and Ensemble Contest resulted in first place medals for soloists Jessica Appleget, Jeff Bartley, Gina Combs, Jeremy Elkins, Ed Gunnell, Mike Hartley, Heath Helgason, Julie Jackson and Lucy Yates. Seven ensembles, which totaled 97 members, received first place ratings as well. The concert season concluded with the annual Spring Extravaganza on May 22, followed by an appearance at graduation on June 2.

For the Belles et Beaux fund raising included fruit sales, holiday gift sales including fresh evergreen wreaths, and collecting cans for recycling. A major fund raiser was the Dessert Fiesta in the spring. In competition the group finished seventh of twenty in Sullivan, Illinois. The group performed a number of shows this year including appearances at the Plainfield elementaries, downtown at Christmas, and Hummel Park for the annual Springfest. The group also performed at the fund raising Dessert Fiesta and the annual Sensation show. The highlight of the year was a week long trip to Mexico City and Acapulco for four concert performances.

Mathematics

The math department again offered a number of courses of various ability levels. Course offerings included a range from basic math to calculus and trigonometry. In between were formulas, theorems, proofs, equations, story problems, angles and polynomials.

Computer education also fell into the realm of the math department. A new computer lab was completed during the second semester. A number of computer classes were offered.

Using the calculator to add together the numbers to complete the assigned problem is Charles Hillman.

To complete the problem is the task of Tiffany Norris while surrounded by classmates Robert Samuels, Chris Schooley, Kristin Helser, Tim Sweeney and Curt Theobald.

Once they arrive at the formula for one compound, Clint Newlin and John Spencer move on to the next one until they are all identified.

Left: After they have checked the fuse used to launch the rocket, Tamera Peters and Harold Reed plan to see if the experiment will fire. Below: After getting the weather station established in the library courtyard, Mr. Ford's class poses with their creation.

Science

Course variety was obvious in the science department. Physical science began the list which included biology, chemistry, physics, meteorology and science research class. Activities included field trips to the new planetarium at the Children's Museum, dissecting, building weather stations and creating chemical compounds.

Science research class did well at the Central Regional Science Fair at Butler University on March 29. There were seven honorable mentions, two third place awards, two seconds, and four first place finishes including one to Josh Wieland. This finish took Josh to the International Science and Engineering Fair in Tulsa, Oklahoma, in May. His fourth place finish in Tulsa gave him the distinction of Plainfield's first Grand Award winner at the international level.

English

With the four year English requirement the teachers in this department kept all students busy. Course offerings ranged from ELS, introduction to fiction, speech and writer's gallery for freshmen to American literature and basic composition or CHAP for sophomores. Juniors participated in two quarters of British literature along with advanced composition and PREP. Senior English offered quarters focusing on novels, drama, nonfiction and poetry or AP English.

Activities in the department varied with in-class skits, speeches, Scrabble, a British tea, board races, acting and library Trivial Pursuit. Project XL and ISTEP were additional English concerns. After-hours English for extra credit consisted of Brit lit movies and discussion, complete with popcorn and cokes.

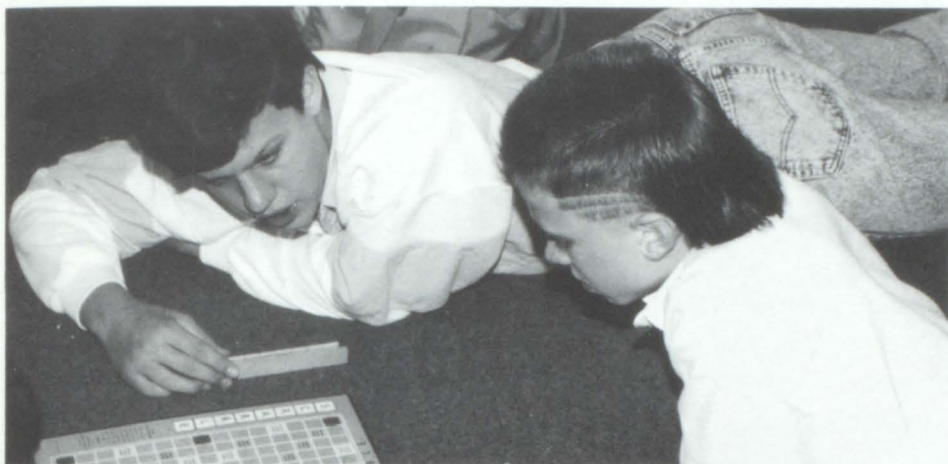

Taking advantage of some extra class time, Lisa Epperson works on the night's reading assignment for Lord of the Flies. Trivial Pursuit is the name of the game for library research in Roger Flick and Bobby Williams' ELS class.

Body language and hand movements are just two distinguishing characteristics of Mr. Hankins when lecturing to his class.

Social Studies

World and U.S. history, government, CHAP, economics, world geography, psychology and sociology were some course offerings of the social studies department. Famous for their videos, other activities also took place. Field trips included LaRue Carter and Central State mental facilities, the Boys' School and the courts in Indianapolis. In-class activities included skits and simulation games along with other small group activities. Junior achievement was again part of the econ classes with local business people assisting with the projects. The products for the two econ businesses this year were mugs and spirit towels.

Scholastic art finalists and winners for their projects are Amy Barile, Stephanie Kerr, Lucy Bednarek, Jennifer Crawley, Jenny L. Hughes and Angie Bednarek.

Art Classes

Metals and weaving and jewelry and pottery and water colors and acrylics and textures were just a few of the kinds of projects for the art classes. Classes especially worked with clay this year as a result of a loan of some special equipment. Students and their works were professionally photographed for an art magazine ad after their pottery creations were completed.

The annual art show in the auditorium lobby accompanied the Belles et Beaux Sensation program on Friday, May 25. Among the displayed items were works that had been judged in the Regional Scholastic Art Show. These works included honorable mentions for Amy Barile and Stephanie Kerr; gold keys for Angie Bednarek, Lucy Bednarek and Jennifer Crawley; and gold key finalists Angie Bednarek and Jennifer Hughes. Gold Key finalists have their work entered in national competition.

Honor Society

The National Honor Society took in a large number of new initiates this year. Students were selected based on not only grades but also character and leadership. In addition to being an honorary organization, members performed service activities.

Along with adviser Mrs. Bowman, the four officers, President Angie Bednarek, Vice-President Marie Gillespie, Secretary Becky Swallow and Treasurer Brett Ritchie, planned a number of activities. In the fall members dressed in Halloween costumes and visited the three elementaries. In kindergarten, first and second grade classes, members discussed trick or treat safety tips and passed out treats. Initiation of new members took place in November.

In the spring the service activity focused on the elderly and shut-ins around town. Honor Society members delivered fruit, snacks, magazines and flowers. They also did odd jobs while on their visits like picking up yards and washing windows.

Student Council

New advisers for the Student Council, Ms. Carpenter and Mr. Strauss, implemented a new election process for the council. The executive board consisted of the class officers from each class and remained constant throughout the year. The membership itself was elected each quarter from fourth hour classes. This plan allowed more students the opportunity to voice an opinion and become involved in student activities, but there were some problems. Class representatives reported the council's activities and plans to their classmates. But on several occasions an idea was decided on but before that idea became reality, a new council was elected that may or may not be willing to follow through with the idea. Consequently, some plans never materialized, and the executive council was in a position where they had to do a great deal of work to finalize a plan.

Despite the problem, the Student Council managed to establish a homecoming theme and plan the dance. Other dances were held throughout the year including a "spring fling" street dance at Hummel Park. A computer dating match-up was done. The biggest undertaking of the year for the council was a blood drive held on Tuesday, February 13. Students and teachers alike gave the "gift of life."

F. C. A.

The FCA, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, was an active organization. Sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm and Mr. Peters, this organization met on a monthly basis at the home of one of its members or sponsors. Officers were elected at the September 13th meeting at Tina Austin's home. The officers chosen were Tina Austin, president; Angie Bednarek, vice-president; Tim Sweeney, secretary; and Todd Biggerstaff, treasurer. In November the group traveled to Bloomington to meet with the IU FCA and attended the Methodist Church together one Sunday. December 11-15 was a canned food drive with class competition to see which class could bring in the most cans. Mr. Muston's class brought in 312 cans, while Mrs. Moreland's group contributed 216. Ms. King's class averaged 17 cans per student and in Mrs. Weisbach's class, the average per student was 12 cans. The FCA concluded the canned food drive by awarding two Indiana Pacer tickets to Leslie Grossi for guessing the total number of cans. The December activities concluded with Christmas caroling.

A state FCA retreat was held the end of January, and on February 9 the national convention was held at the Westin Hotel in Indianapolis. The group attended church together at the end of February and in March went to a Pacer game. FCA shirts were ordered and information was available for summer camps. The year concluded with regular meetings, a parents' night on Monday, May 14, and a final meeting on May 22nd to elect 1990-1991 officers.

December 11-15 are the dates of the FCA canned food drive for which Angie Bednarek and Leanne Gaddie collect cans from classrooms after school. The SADD semi-formal Valentine Dance is only complete with a picture for Vanessa Niles and Wes Stayte.

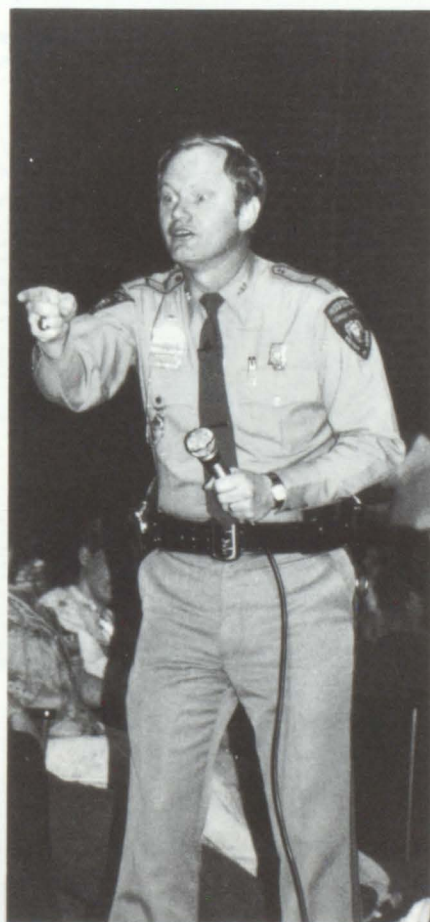

S. A. D. D.

Students Against Driving Drunk, SADD, was a local chapter of a national organization. Mr. Baker worked with the organization to provide contracts, speakers and information to students in an attempt to prevent students from driving while drinking or riding with an intoxicated driver.

Activities for the year included a semi-formal Christmas dance but when sub-zero temperatures forced its cancellation, a Valentine Dance was held instead. The event was held in February at Hummel Park and featured a DJ and carriage rides.

Two other SADD activities focused on prom season. When students purchased tickets for the prom, they were encouraged to sign a "prom promise." Because of the potential for tragedy as students begin celebrating the prom, the end of school and graduation, a prom promise was a contract to not drink or take drugs on prom weekend. The second prom-related activity featured a Mississippi state patrolman, Lt. Pete Collins, who discussed alcohol related offenses and accidents with juniors and seniors.

Coaches

Coaching techniques and styles vary

The season stretched ahead, and there was so much work to be done. From the time the athletes signed up until the final competition of the season, the coaches had their work cut out for them. Many long hours of practice seemed endless, but when the season had finally begun, the frustrations and the rewards were numerous. Whether the end result was a winning season or a sectional victory of even a "not-so-great" season, the benefits of coaching weren't measured in terms of dollars and cents or wins and losses, but rather in friendships and a job well done.

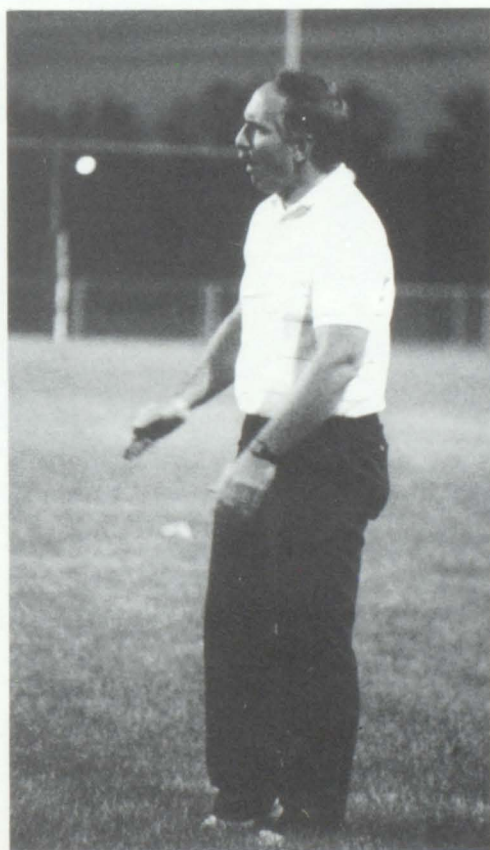

In addition to the abstract rewards, coaches led their teams to some concrete awards this year. Highlights include the varsity football team's first ever playoff victory, a sectional title for the girls' basketball team and an undefeated boys' track team. Coaching successes and great student performances led to winning the boys' all sports trophy for the conference.

Serving as the athletic director for a school the size of Plainfield Junior Senior High School is a major job for Mr. Muston who makes sure all sporting events go smoothly with workers, referees, etc.

Crouched to see the action from a little different viewpoint is Coach Greene as Assistant Coach Dones looks on. To take the team to the regionals in style was Coach Lynn's promise who enters one of the three white limos. When things didn't go as planned, Assistant Coach VanWanzele and Coach Schwanekamp looked to see if the new tactics worked.

Representing the school at most athletic events were a group of twelve young ladies full of enthusiasm and energy. The cheerleaders' job may have looked glamorous, but there was more to the job than met the eye.

After several weeks of working out routines, spring tryouts resulted in the selection of freshmen, reserve and varsity cheerleaders. Under the direction of Ms. Gorick, the freshmen girls worked on routines and cheers in preparation for the following year. Miss Masariu, the reserve and varsity sponsor, helped her girls register and prepare for summer camps and competitions. A four day stay at Purdue's cheerleading camp put the girls into the six finalists. Although they did not place in the Hendricks County Fair, they brought home second place honors from Marion County and a tenth place finish statewide.

When school started in August, the practices continued, and the games began. Besides cheering the girls made signs, decorated hallways, houses and lockers, and organized pep sessions while fund raising to offset their expenses. Quaker bracelets and poinsettias were two of the items sold this year.

Team members ran a circuit which took them through the park, up and down the hill east of the school and around the building. In three invitationals the Quaker runners placed first at Cascade, second at South Putnam and third at North Montgomery. The team finished second in the county, fourth in the Mid-State Conference, fourth in sectionals and ninth in regionals.

The boys' team was led by mental attitude award winner Andy Hylton and MVP Kyle Lansberry. For the girls Lucy Bednarek received MVP honors, and Beth Reynolds was the recipient of the mental attitude trophy.

For the freshmen football team, Coach Teany and Assistant Coach Moss had a long roster to work with. The season started well with four consecutive wins followed by losses in the final three games against some tough competition.

The reserve team schedule had six games with the Quakers landing a 4-2 season record. Like the freshmen, this team registered early victories with big wins over Brownsburg, Greenwood and Franklin, followed by a couple of two touchdown losses. A 14-6 victory over Whiteland ended the reserve season for the team, Coach Witham and Coach Meunier.

Despite its slow start and a regular season record of 3-7, Coach Schwanekamp's varsity football team had some bright moments. After two consecutive losses in the opening games, the Quakers played Greenwood in a driving rainstorm. The game was washed out and concluded with a 30-14 Saturday afternoon Plainfield victory. Two weeks later a last play 72 yard pass from quarterback Mark Galloway to Brian Dusenbery led to a come from behind 15-14 homecoming victory over Whiteland. The last few regular season games were losses, but the playoffs gave the team a new opportunity. The first round of the playoffs gave the Quakers a record-setting first ever playoff victory. The 48-20 win over Northwest was highlighted by 246 yards rushing by senior Jared Stagner. He shared MVP honors with another senior, Jett Ewing.

Close to .500 was the season record for the boys' tennis team. The Quakers ended with an 8-9 season. The team got off to a strong start with three consecutive wins. A mid-season slump resulted in six consecutive losses, but the boys finished strongly with three wins in their last four matches. Tourney play placed the team third in the county meet and second in Mid- State action. In the sectionals the team defeated Northwest but lost to a tough Avon Oriole team. Individual awards presented by Coach Cavanaugh included MVP honors to senior John East, and the mental attitude award went to senior Paul Carpenter.

The varsity spikers concluded the regular season with an even 12-12 record but lost the first round of sectional play. The girls started with four strong wins, followed by three consecutive losses. The rest of the season was on-again/off-again with wins and losses alternating almost from match to match. Miss Marariu's varsity team came back to win the last two regular season matches after four losses but then fell to a tough Mooresville team in the sectional. End of the season awards went to Jenny Taylor for mental attitude and Angie Kalb for MVP.

Miss Sharon Warren, the reserve coach, led her team to a 12-7 season record. A strong three wins began the season with 11 of their 12 wins coming in the first 14 games.

Soccer

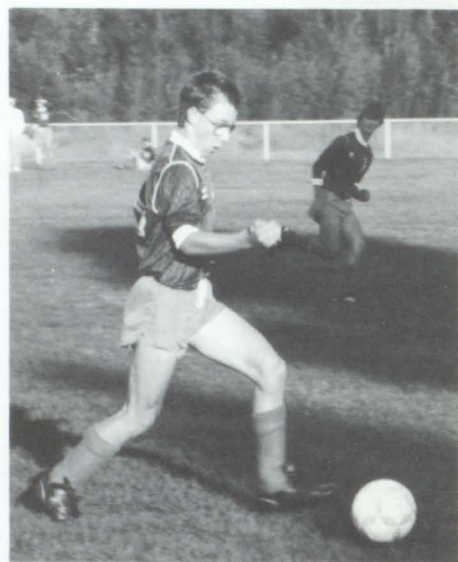

First round tourney win in second season

Goalie Mick Welsh gets the ball back downfield quickly after an attempted goal.

Finishing 7-8-2, the soccer team alternated wins and losses for the first seven games. Coach Sweeney led the Quaker team to this near .500 season in their second year. The well rounded team consisted of players from all four grade levels. Led by mental attitude winner Brett Heald and MVP Milton Briggs, the team won one game and lost one in the county tourney. The victory was against Danville, 4-2, with an 8-3 loss to Brownsburg. In the end of the season tourney, the Quakers defeated West Vigo in a close 5-4 match and then fell to Brebeuf by a score of 4-0. Co-captains for the team were Milton Briggs and Mick Welsh. Serving as managers were Kevin Doolin and Matt Jones.

When the freshmen basketball team was formed, Coach Witham had enough players to develop two teams. The A-team had an overall record of 12-6. After losing the season opener to Greenwood, the team went on to seven consecutive victories. The rest of the season was inconsistent with wins and losses falling randomly. Mid-State play featured a first round win against Beech Grove with a 43-32 score, but the team fell to Greenwood a second time by a score of 52-43.

For the B-team only five games were scheduled with the team ending with three wins and one and one-half losses. The team defeated Mooresville and Danville early in the season, lost to Center Grove and beat Greencastle. The last game concluded at the half with the Quakers down to Brownsburg by one point.

An 11-9 record was established by the reserve basketball team. Coach Clapp started his team off with two big wins over Cascade and Avon, and then a one point victory over Center Grove. After a loss to the Brownsburg Bulldogs, the reserve broke a five game winning streak with a loss to Avon in the final game of the county tourney. The Quaker reserves did not fare well in late season play, losing their last six games including overtimes with Greenwood and Franklin.

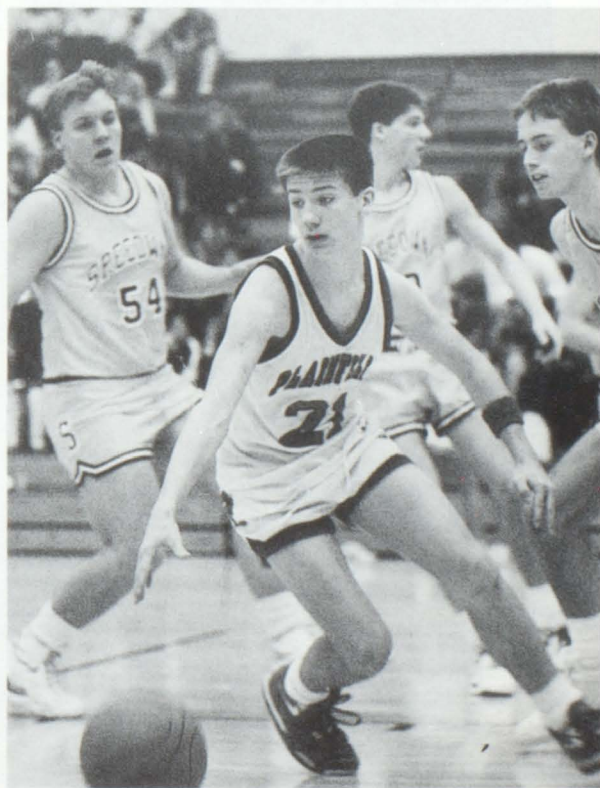

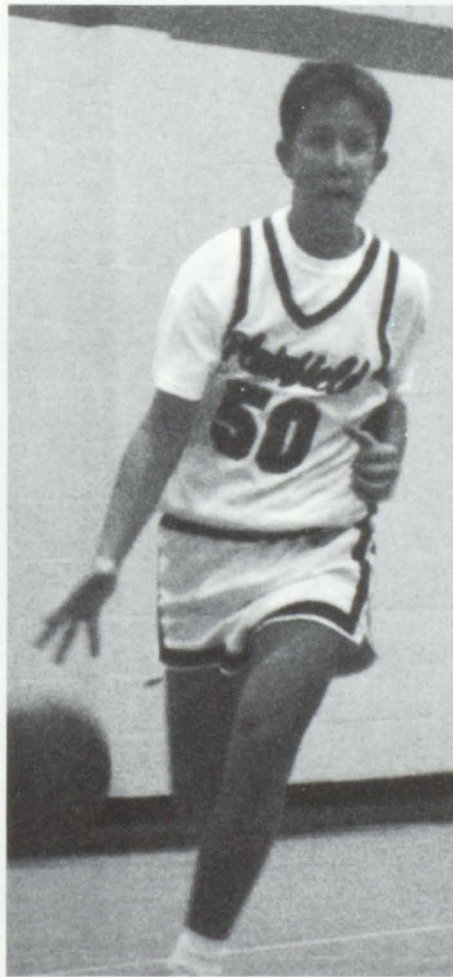

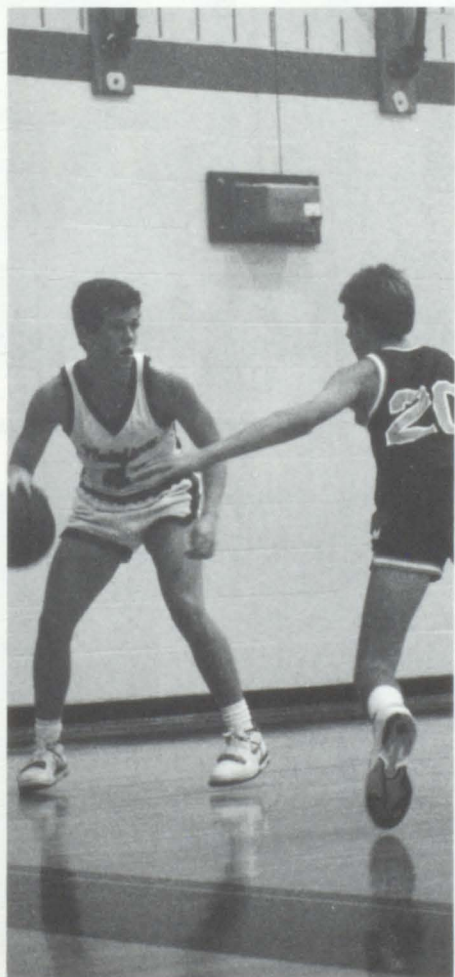

Airborne and on his way to the basket for a layup against the Greencastle reserve squad, Junior Jason Hammond flies effortlessly to the goal.

While scrambling to keep the ball inbound, Paul Carpenter is backed up by teammates Josh Hanlon and Curt Theobald.

The Quakers had a long and hard season, ending with only four wins and sixteen losses. The rocky start included five losses before a win over Greencastle. Later in the season, the team battled to wins over Whiteland, Zionsville and Speedway. Tournament play featured a first round loss to Tri-West in the county tournament by a score of 56-48. The Quakers were again defeated in first round sectional play when Brownsburg won 55-34. Coach Greene and Assistant Coach Dones' team was led by co-captains John East and Curt Theobald. Individual awards were presented to Paul Carpenter for mental attitude and Mark Galloway was given MVP honors.

Garry Fathauer, while attempting a basket, is blocked by a Mooresville Pioneer as Curt Theobald waits for the rebound if necessary. At Cascade Mark Galloway looks for a place to pass the ball.

Airborn with a Whiteland defender over his back is Josh Hanlon under the basket. Damon Leach obstructs the progress of the Whiteland offensive player. Against Greencastle, John East dribbles around the outside to drive to the basket.

A sectional victory was the highlight of the varsity girls' season after a close to even regular season. The girls began with a big win over Pike but fell to Avon in the county tourney. Coach Lynn saw three victories before the girls slumped to four consecutive losses. The rest of the season was sporadic with wins and losses falling randomly. The sectional pitted the girls against Danville for a 58-31 victory, and in an overtime victory for the final game, the girls defeated Avon 72-67 for the sectional crown. Making good on a promise, Mr. Lynn's team traveled to the regional via limousines but fell to Ben Davis 59-43 in the afternoon game. Nicole Isaacs worked with the team as manager. Angie McCool was selected as MVP, and Buffy Heckler was the mental attitude award winner.

The reserve team, coached by Coach Masariu, finished 9-8. The girls began the season with two wins, followed by four losses. The next two games were wins, including a one point overtime victory against Danville and a loss to Brownsburg in the county tourney.

Boys' Swimming

Great season/Mid-State championship

Coach Teany and Assistant Coach Rigdon directed a very successful boys' swimming team to a 14-2 record including a Mid-State championship. The Quakers scored 100 or more points in eight of their meets. Brownsburg and Southport were the only two teams to better the Quakers. Tim Sweeney and Doug Teany led the team as its captains and also shared MVP honors. Alan McKamey was the swimmer exhibiting outstanding mental attitude. Nikki Meyer managed the team. In addition to a Mid-State championship, the Quaker swimmers placed second in the county and fifth in the sectionals.

The team featured only three juniors and seniors with a large contingent of freshman gymnasts for future strength. The girls finished well in tournament competition, finishing third at Columbus East, second in sectionals and third in regionals. Coach Rink was assisted by Ms. Simpson. Senior Kim Baker was the mental attitude winner, and Kristy Edmondson was the most valuable gymnast.

The boys' track team concluded their regular season with an undefeated 10-0 record. This well rounded Quaker team also fared well in post-season meets. The team kept their undefeated record to place first in both the county meet and the Mid-State conference meet. A fifth place finish was accomplished in sectional competition. Three players, Darren Groce, Brad Sims, and Doug Teany received recognition for four years of participation. Doug Teany was also the recipient of the mental attitude award while Milton Briggs took M.V.P. honors.

Great season play with only one loss

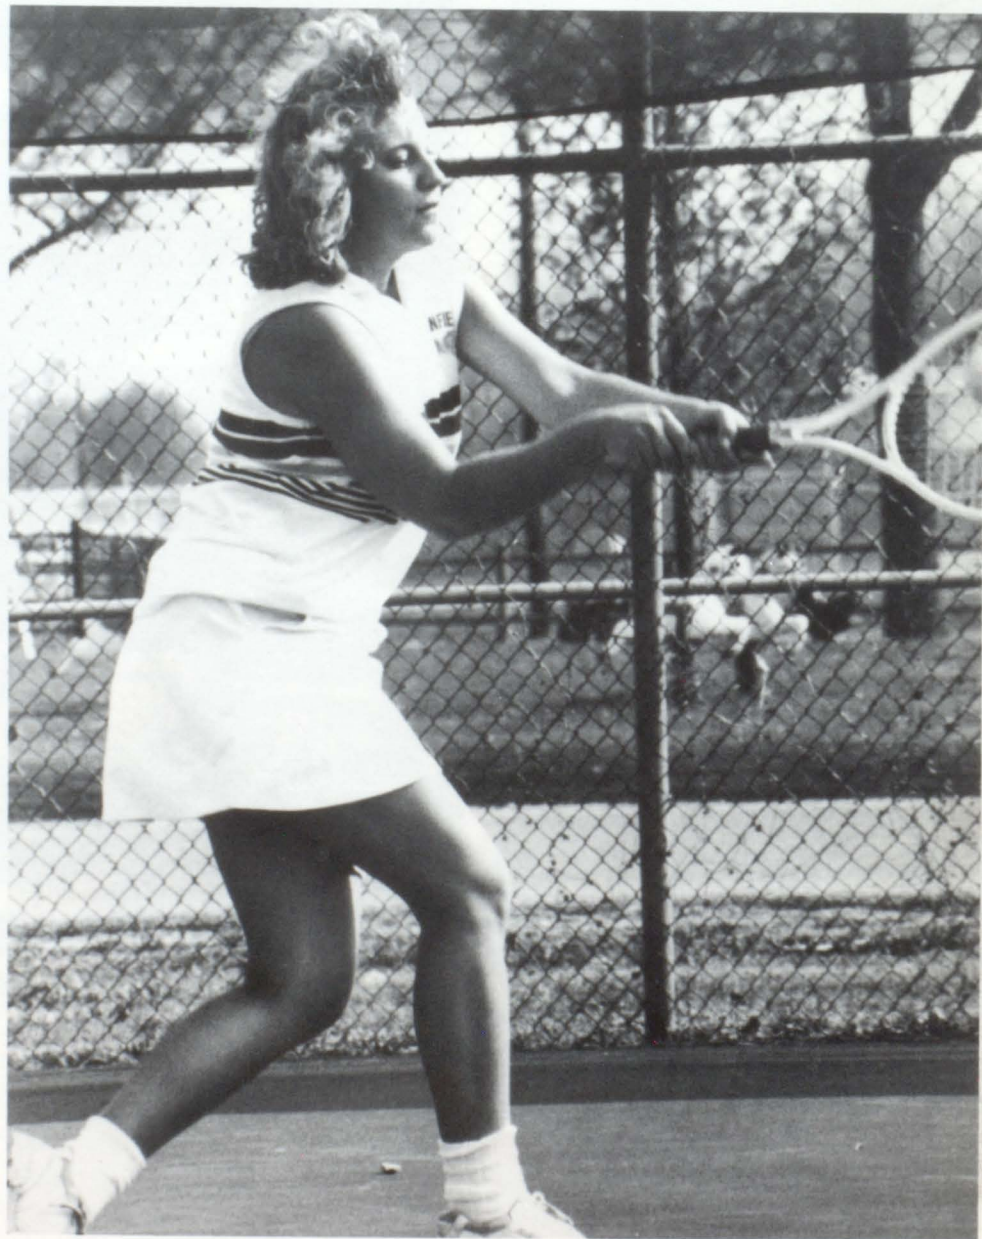

Preceding the match, the girls wait to meet their opponents.

Coach King and her girls saw their season shortened by rain cancellations. The team concluded with an 8-1 season record with four rain outs. Four members with four year awards were honored: Angie Bednarek, Buffy Heckler, Chris Schooley, and Christine Zbikowski. Two of these girls also received other awards. Buffy Heckler was chosen as the mental attitude winner, and Christine Zbikowski was the team's MVP. The girls placed third at the Mid-State Conference competition and second at the county match.

Baseball

Championship at Muncie Central Tourney

After numerous rain postponements, the season proceeded and ended with a 12-11 record. Three games went to nine innings, and one was eight innings before the Quakers pulled out these tight victories. Highlights of the season included the Muncie Central Invitational Tourney championship after wins over North Harrison and Lakeland. Another high point was a Scott Oliver no-hitter against Avon. He was also the team's MVP with the highest batting average and lowest ERA. Ethan Hooper was the mental attitude award recipient. Four players, Jeff Ebarb, Josh Hanlon, Scott Oliver and Brian Skinner, were named to the all-conference team; Scott Oliver was also named to the all regional team. Coach Wood's team ended the season with a first round sectional loss to Martinsville, 5-3.

Coach Rigdon's reserve baseball team ended with a 3-9-1 record. Five rain outs shortened the season. A first game defeat to Ben Davis led to a big second game win against Cascade 13-3. Three more losses followed before an April 26 win against Mooresville. The last team win came May 1 against Greenwood. The season concluded with one tie and four losses.

Peer facilitation, a new class for juniors and seniors, gives PHS students like Cindy Bowen the opportunity to work with Plainfield elementary students as a tutor, friend and listener to provide some individualized attention.

A black and white photograph of a young man, likely a student, working in a workshop. He is wearing a dark baseball cap and a t-shirt featuring a large graphic of a basketball player in mid-air (Michael Jordan). He is focused on operating a large, industrial-style sewing machine. To his left, a sign with the word "PING" is partially visible. The scene is dimly lit, emphasizing the student's concentration on his task.

1990

Left: At 3:00 A.M. after all the prom and post prom activities have ended, Michelle Chaille and Shelley VanWanzele still have a smile left before crashing for the night. Below: Guards stand atop the Berlin Wall, awaiting reaction to the opening of the East-West German borders on Friday, November 10, 1989; later the wall was torn down as the two Germany's began unification.

Clockwise from left: Jenny Anderson seems absorbed in the work she is attempting to do in the cafeteria. Andy Thimlar and Jeff Hartman are immersed in just some of the cash register receipts that students have collected from Marsh and Kroger to earn new computers for the school. To chow down on the typical Friday lunch fare, Pete Jackson gulps down French fries and pizza.

Left: Right hander Terry Whitlow hurls the ball toward home plate in an attempt to strike out his opponent. Project XL, a program promoting creative ways to promote drug free youth, has a number of winners who receive various awards and recognition along with a pizza party.

Tie-dyeing is the art form Tom Breedlove works with for an art project. Being the die-hard IU fan that she is, Miss Hunt finds her Christmas gift difficult to accept. Modeling some of the latest styles is Laura Updike. After starring in the film "Coming to America," Arsenio Hall starts his own syndicated late night talk show featuring a wide variety of guests.

Right: After the prom, Jett Ewing and Jared Stagner try out the post prom games sporting parts of the evening's formal wear. Below: Quarterback Mark Galloway and receiver Brian Joseph take a breather after combining for a touchdown.

Clockwise from left: On a school board visitation, board members Mrs. Pam Hall, Mr. Frank Glad-den, Mr. Chris Shore, Mr. Dave Pilcher and Mrs. Phyllis Palmer stop in the entry for a picture. Dis- playing an overall trophy as well as individual awards are DECA members after contest. Miss Jennifer Frieden dons her mouse ears, a gift from a fellow faculty member.

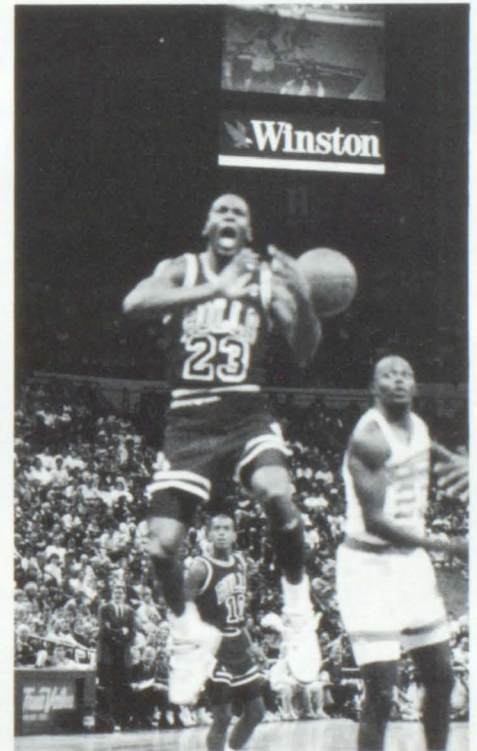

Double victory signs seem appropriate for assistant athletic director Mr. Geoff Bradley. Before the homecoming parade begins from Plainfield Plaza, Milton Briggs finds a companion to share a conversation. To stack the American history books in the social studies book room was the task set forth for Chris Hosek, Greg Shaffer, Cliff Prether and Bret Teany.

Clockwise from left: After winning the sectional game, an excited group of girls' basketball players, their coaches and managers display the game ball, trophy and a number one symbol. Although she doesn't appear to be taking it seriously, Michelle Chaille attempts one of many required AP books. Michael Jordan, the Chicago Bulls superstar, flies through the air at MSA during a contest against the Pacers.

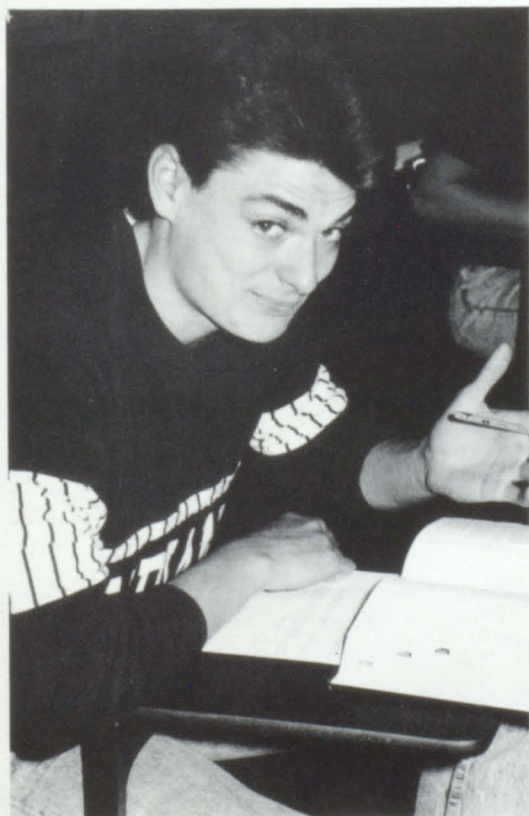

Right: Former choreographer Paula Abdul who worked for Duran Duran and Janet Jackson is topping the charts as a singer, giving her former students a run for their money. Far right: Fab Morvan and Rob Pilatus form the European dance-soul duo Milli Vanilli who put their first two singles on the top of the charts. Below: While Americans waited to see the World Series between the Oakland Athletics and the San Francisco Giants, more than 60 people were killed, hundreds were injured, and damages topped $2 billion dollars with the October 17 northern California earthquake.

Clockwise from above: Displaying sectional champs sweatshirts are players Angie McCool and Janet Giles. For opening day at Churchill Downs, Mrs. Carrigan, Mrs. Kellogg, Mrs. Bowman and Mrs. Cumberworth join other faculty members for the Kentucky bus trip. In San Jose, California, for the national DECA convention are Wes Wilson, Joel Spoon and Brett Ritchie.

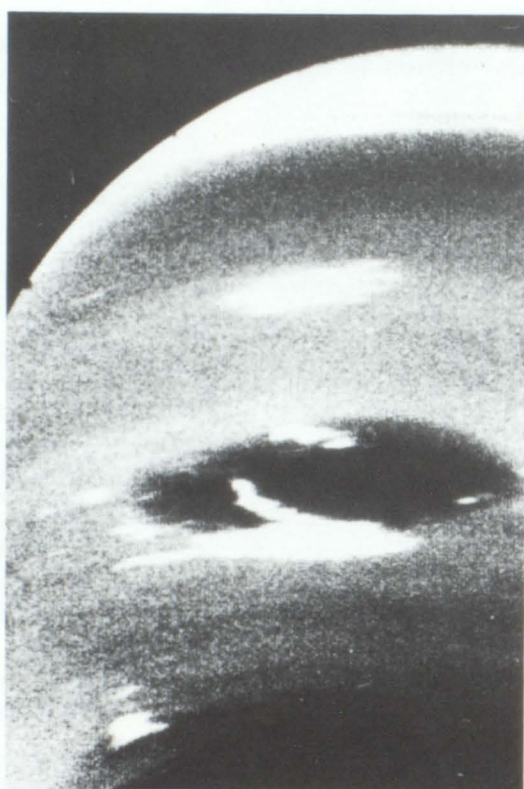

Left: Todd Saylor works to accomplish an art project requiring the detangling of many strands of yarn. Below: New Kids on the Block members, Danny Wood, Joe McIntyre, Donnie Wahlberg, Jordan Knight and Hon Knight, present a street-wise but good-guy image that has taken their songs to the top of the charts.

Appearing puzzled by the assignment of finding appropriate synonyms in the thesaurus, Ron Reeve expresses his confusion. Play police equipment, including a helmet, radio and handcuffs, is the gag Christmas gift for Mr. Jackson. Bundling up before driving the carriage at the Valentine Dance is Justin Kern.

An outdoor graduation ceremony was questionable the morning of Sunday, June 3, with very windy conditions causing difficulties with caps and gowns as demonstrated by Melanie Sutton. Volumes of scientific information and thousands of photographs were sent back to earth after Voyager completed a 12 year 4.4 billion mile voyage to Neptune. Rob Wheeler takes a glance from his assignment to find himself face to face with a camera.

The friendly face of head custodian Earl Carpenter along with a smiling Merchant's frog is a sight to see in the auditorium hallway. Working to check each of the 400 prom glasses for breakage and/or defects are Stephanie Turner and Meredith Sibley. Michael Keaton as Batman/Bruce Wayne and Jack Nicholson as the Joker, along with Kim Basinger as Vicki Vail, produce over $200 million in the box office hit Batman.

To work with the light and sound crew to get the technical aspects correct is the job of auditorium crew member Cindy Bowen. When it's too cold to brave the elements outdoors, teachers Mrs. Dotlich, Miss Reel, Mrs. Obert and Miss Masariu take advantage of the empty hallways at 2:45 to get some mileage.

Clockwise from left: Lunchtime in the cafeteria is interrupted for a photograph and a chance to have a picture in the yearbook. Outstanding government students Suzanne Pyatt and Tim Sweeney (third and fourth from left/front row), along with Mr. Conley (third from right/back row) visit with Senator Morris Mills and Governor Evan Bayh. Bedecked with silly string is a smiling new graduate, Heather Elmore.

FUTURE.

Industry leaders don't simply wait for the future to happen. They shape it with creative energy today. To this end, we're evolving from simply a power and light company to a low-cost supplier of energy and energy-related services. Our commitment to this is unrivaled in the industry.

Conventional wisdom says "make electricity—sell electricity." Our vision reaches far beyond this. Our goal is to become a leader in the energy arena by meeting a variety of customer needs, protecting the environment and creating growth and prosperity throughout the communities we serve.

THERE'S A NEW KIND OF ENERGY IN INDIANA. PUBLIC SERVICE INDIANA IS NOW PSI ENERGY.

PAN BRIO

If you like the Sicilian, then you'll love this! The Pan Brio is formed and baked in a round pan-coated with olive oil. The Brio is then topped with generous amounts of sauce and real American dairy cheese. It is then loaded up with the toppings of your choice and baked to a golden brown.

Come on in to Noble Romans and try a Pan Brio. You're gonna love it!
